Several Members of Stresemann Ministry Consent to Serve Under New Chancellor.

HE MOLLIFIES SOCIALISTS

Offers to End Martial Law and Replace von Seeckt by Civil Commissioner.

BUT ALIENATES RIGHTISTS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—All efforts of Dr. Albert to form a new Federal Cabinet have remained fruitless so far. His strongest antagonists are to be sought at the extreme Right in the German People's Party and German Nationalist People's Party while the two middle parties, the Centrists and Democrats, appear to desire a compromise that would make dissolution of the Reichstag unnecessary.

The Social Democrats are still on the fence. Dr. Albert asked two of their members to join his Cabinet, Dr. Suedekum, the former Prussian Minister of Finance, and former War Minister Noske. These, however, are no longer persona grata with the Social Democratic Party. Suedekum because in negotiating about State and Hohenzollern property was too liberal with the nation's wealth, and Noske because he permitted himself to be surprised by the Kap Putsch. It is believed, however, that Dr. Albert is only waiting for the Socialist Party to name other members for appointment.

Dr. Albert's candidacy became more acceptable to the Socialists this afternoon by an offer to abolish martial law and to place the powers now held by General von Seeckt in the hands of a civil High Commissioner. But this prospect has made him unpopular with the Nationalists and the German People's Party. These parties cannot send their members into any Cabinet that seems predestined to widen the breach with Bavaria, and sooner or later to come within the influence of Marxists, as the Lokal-Anzeiger puts it.

Some Ministers to Stay.

Several members of the old Cabinet have already consented to serve under Dr. Albert, among them Dr. Brauns, Minister of Labor; von Kanitz, Minister of Food Distribution, and Dr. Luther, Minister of Finance. The reactionary organs express surprise that Dr. Gessler has not appeared on Dr. Albert's list as State Secretary of War. Dr. Gessler, however, it has been learned, will retire from office of his own free will "for reasons of health," the truth being, it is understood, that he is somewhat annoyed because much of his power has recently been taken from him and placed in General von Seeckt's hands.

The Socialist organ Vorwärts favors Dr. Albert's candidacy, firstly because the reactionaries do not like him, and secondly because it hopes that by his success in forming a Cabinet dissolution of the Reichstag may be avoided, it being pretty certain that the Social-Democratic Party would lose half its votes to the Communists because of socialistic inactivity regarding the ever-increasing dearness of foodstuffs. Vorwärts says:

"President Ebert's procedure is logical and in conformity with the Constitution. The political parties had the first chance to settle upon a candidate for the Chancellorship, but being unable to unite the only alternative was that the Reichstag must be dissolved or a bureaucratic Cabinet formed. There are grave objections against dissolution of the Reichstag. Indeed there is little chance that elections would return a Reichstag of a different character than the present one. For that reason we think it better Dr. Albert should succeed in his task."

"During his frequent conversations with the leaders of the various parties," it says, "President Ebert recognized there were party differences that made the formation of a political Cabinet absolutely impossible. That is why he called upon former Federal Treasurer Albert to form a bureaucratic Cabinet that would be based on purely business and not party principles. It must be admitted that such bureaucratic Cabinets have not been very successful. But Dr. Albert is a man of the world, very amiable and very well versed in many branches of government.

American Hostility Feared.

"During the war he was sent to America to help improve opinion in Germany's favor. Not he, but unrestricted submarine warfare, is to blame if American opinion was not improved in Germany's favor. We sincerely hope that the unfavorable impression caused in America by Dr. Albert's mission at that time is a thing of the past. Perhaps people there, as elsewhere, will talk less of his pension than of his last portfolio that contained documents concerning all the secrets of German propaganda. Little misfortunes like this will sometimes make a greater impression upon contemporaries than even important political events.

"In foreign countries perhaps it will be said: 'He is only another tool of the monarchy,' but so far as we know the

Peddlers' Coal Price Fixed At 85 Cents for 100 Pounds

The Fair Price Coal Commission, meeting yesterday in the Department of Health Building, 505 Pearl Street, fixed 85 cents per 100 pounds as the price for coal from peddlers' wagons. This does not include any cost for delivery from wagon to cellar or to the living apartments of the consumer.

Representatives of the coal companies told the commission that there is a shortage of domestic sizes of anthracite in this city and particularly in the Borough of Richmond. Within a few weeks, they said, large shipments now going into other sections would be diverted to New York, and that this would relieve the situation. The commission then will be prepared to take up a readjustment of prices.

In order to take care of the regular trade some of the dealers said they were paying the independent companies from $3 to $4 more a ton at the mines than is charged by the old-line companies. It was stated at the meeting that the price for anthracite at the mines was greater today than that at which coal was delivered to the consumer in New York City in 1913.

ROBINSON DEMANDS BONUS OVER TAX CUT

Democratic Senate Leader Says Vote to Soldiers Will Not Block Reduction.

FAVORS A BOND ISSUE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Taxation reduction and bonus payments must go hand in hand, in the opinion of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic Senate leader, who declared today that his party in Congress would favor sweeping reductions, but opposes reductions being made to the detriment of adjusted compensation for the ex-service men. He favors a bond issue to pay the bonus.

As more Senators reach Washington the feeling is more pronounced that a tax reduction which will exclude bonus payments cannot be made, since more than a majority in Congress have voted for a bonus or are pledged to support legislation favorable to veterans of the World War. But, although sixty-nine Senators are reported pledged to the bonus, opponents of the bonus are confident the bill cannot be passed over the President's veto, if Mr. Coolidge gets solidly behind Secretary Mellon's plan.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana predicted today that not even the President's opposition would prevent Congress passing a bonus bill. The Senator said he already had voted on such a measure and would do it again, although he wanted to see taxation reduced just as far as it could be done without doing injustice to the former soldiers.

"I will not support reporting out a tax bill from the Finance Committee," said Senator Watson, "until I am certain that we can command enough votes to pass the bill reported. Offhand, I would say that we have very little chance of passing a much better bill than we did last session. Then we had 154 majority in the House and 24 in the Senate. Now our majority in both houses is merely nominal. Tax reductions, of course, will be made, but along what lines no one can tell."

Robinson Against Mellon Plan.

A Democratic view of tax reduction was expressed today by Senator Robinson, who said:

"I, with many other Democrats, am anxious to see our tax system speedily revised and reformed, if that can be accomplished without creating a deficit. My study of the subject has not been completed, but so far as it has progressed it does not appear just to present the proposal for tax reduction as an alternative to adjusted compensation legislation. Little likelihood exists that tax reductions will be accomplished conditioned upon the defeat of wholesome legislation for the relief of ex-soldiers.

"If the Administration commits itself to the policy that the maintenance of the present so-called nuisance taxes and

GOVERNORS DEMAND PENNSYLVANIA CURB COAL PROFITEERING

TAX AND LAWS ARE SCORED

NOTHING IS ACCOMPLISHED

But Another Meeting Will Be Held After State Executives Study Proposals.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 26.—Representatives of anthracite-consuming States, meeting here today to consider plans to bring about lower coal prices, received from Governor Pinchot a proposal for regulation of the industry through a joint commission to be formed under a compact of States and, they in turn, called upon the State of Pennsylvania to take the first steps by repeal of its coal tax and the passage of other remedial legislation.

The meeting adjourned without action to meet later at the call of Governor Pinchot after Governor Silzer of New Jersey had denounced the Pennsylvania Executive's plan and had submitted a series of resolutions calling upon Pennsylvania to take action. Governor Preus of Minnesota, the only other executive present, also opposed the Pinchot plan and proposed that a special session of the Pennsylvania Legislature be called to pass an act declaring the anthracite industry a public business.

Eleven States were represented. Besides Minnesota and New Jersey, whose Governors were present, those in attendance included delegates from Vermont, Ohio, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, Rhode Island, Virginia, Michigan and New York.

Governor Pinchot's plan centred in the formation of a union of the anthracite-consuming States and an agreement upon the form of regulation which will best work to the advantage of their people, together with the establishing of a joint commission to enforce any regulations adopted. Such a commission, he said, by pooling the police powers of the States and co-operating with Federal authority over interstate commerce, could completely regulate the industry. He proposed that the Governors use all the powers at their disposal and urged further action by the Federal Government.

Governor Silzer led the opposition to Pinchot's plan. Questioning the powers of the proposed joint commission and its rights to come into Pennsylvania and interfere with the industry, he declared "something has to be done" and asserted it could be done by the States and the Federal Government without the formation of a compact.

"At present," he asserted, "we are at the mercy of the neglect of the United States and the failure of the State of Pennsylvania to do its part. This seems to me to be a buck-passing program.

"If the anthracite industry is a monopoly, subject to regulation by the United States, I cannot see why it is not the same thing in Pennsylvania."

He declared the proposed compact of thirty-one anthracite-using States would take thirty-one years to complete and then would require approval of Congress.

Attacks Pinchot's Program.

Taking up Governor Pinchot's proposals in detail, he criticized his defense of the anthracite tax and the Miners' Certification law, and declared action should be started toward reduction of royalties. He said he had been told that the anthracite tax, which Mr. Pinchot said added only from 11½ to 12 cents a ton to the cost of coal at the mines, had resulted in an increase of 50 cents a ton.

Governor Pinchot declared he had been unable to find any truth in the assertion.

"Unless you are willing to do more than has been indicated today," Governor Silzer said, "we're not going to accomplish much."

He submitted two sets of resolutions,

Rome Hears Red Hats May Be Conferred On Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The Pope will hold a secret consistory on Dec. 20, to be followed by a public consistory on Dec. 23, for the creation of several new Cardinals.

This will bring up again the question of American representation within the Sacred College. Well-informed Vatican circles give it as their opinion that certainly one, and perhaps two, new American Cardinals will be created, thus fulfilling what practically amounted to a promise by Pope Benedict XV. after the consistory of March 17, 1921, that America should have a larger number of Cardinals.

On that occasion Mgr. Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, was elevated to the purple, and it was explained in the Vatican that only one new American Cardinal had been created because it was found necessary to confer the red hat upon two German Archbishops—Schulte of Cologne and von Faulhaber of Munich—but that matters would be set right at the next consistory. Each consistory since then has failed to name any new American Cardinals.

Admitting that either one or two American prelates will be elected to the Cardinalate, the names specially mentioned in Vatican circles are Mgr. Hayes, Archbishop of New York, and Mgr. Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago. Another name is also heard, that of Mgr. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco, who might be chosen if the Far West is to have representation.

Many here believe that Archbishop Hayes is certain to be included among those who will receive the red hat in December, owing to the importance of New York as a Catholic city. Others, however, are inclined to think that the Eastern cities of America being already well represented by Cardinals Dougherty and O'Connell, the choice is more likely to fall upon Mgr. Mundelein as a representative of the Middle West.

But two American Cardinals are appointed, for the first time since 1911 America will again have four Cardinals. In that year Pius X. elevated three American citizens to the purple, namely, Mgr. Farley, Archbishop of New York; Mgr. O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, and Mgr. Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to Washington, who though he was an Italian by birth, was a naturalized American citizen. Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, was then alive. All of these, except Cardinal O'Connell, have since died.

Hitchcock to Run Hiram Johnson's Fight; Senator Is Embarrassed by Gov. Small

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Hiram W. Johnson arrived in Chicago today to start his band wagon down the long, bumpy road to the White House. First of all he announced that Frank H. Hitchcock, who has been active in Republican national politics for twenty years, would be his national campaign manager. It was Hitchcock who piloted Taft in 1908 and Hughes in 1916. He was Postmaster General in the Taft Cabinet.

Senator Johnson came prepared to deliver his first public address since he announced his candidacy. It will have two themes: America's international relations and Federal taxation, which might be expected to forecast some of the big planks in his platform.

Senator Johnson's speech tomorrow night will be at a banquet of the Cook County Real Estate Board at the Congress Hotel. Sharing the honors of the speakers' table with him and possibly also speaking, will be Governor Len Small.

This was just the sort of thing that Senator Johnson and his advisers wanted to avoid in Illinois. During his previous recent visit he had shied at going anywhere in the city or saying anything that might jam him up in the Small and anti-Small warfare.

The hosts' program called for speeches by Mayor Dever, Senator Medill McCormick, Senator W. B. McKinley, Governor Small and Senator Johnson, the Californian's address to be the longest and the only one broadcast by radio. Excuses came from all the satellite speakers but the Governor.

Frantic efforts to et substitutes were made, but after all the outsiders had talked themselves hoarse word came from the Johnson suite at the Drake that the Senator was not afraid to face Small sad deliver his speech.

National leaders who have been mapping out the Coolidge campaign plans brought word to Chicago today that the President will probably get into the Illinois Presidential preference primary. When the news reached Senator Johnson he said:

"I know I am in. I don't know who else will be in, and it will make no difference in my plans. I am going direct to the voters in every State where I have that opportunity."

LEVIATHAN BREAKS WESTBOUND RECORD

DETAINED 2 HOURS IN BAY

Eclipses Mauretania by 13 Minutes—Big Game Hunter and Wife Bring Rich Bag.

America's biggest liner, the Leviathan of the United States Lines, reached her pier, at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street, at 1 P. M. yesterday, after breaking the world's record from Cherbourg to New York. She made the crossing in 5 days 7 hours and 20 minutes, at an average speed of 24.17 knots. The distance from Cherbourg Breakwater to Ambrose Channel Lightship is 3,078 miles. The Leviathan's time eclipses by thirteen minutes the record of the Cunarder Mauretania, made in October, 1922, of 5 days 7 hours and 33 minutes.

According to the log records, the daily mileage runs of the Leviathan on her record-breaking trip were 402, 617, 605, 614, 593 and 247 to the Ambrose Channel Lightship, where she arrived and picked up her pilot at 10:02 P. M. Sunday. As there were seven other vessels anchored in Quarantine, Captain Hartley had to anchor in Gravesend Bay for the night. He was annoyed because the Public Health Officer would not board his ship there when her turn came, but made her weigh anchor and steam to the customary position opposite the Quarantine Station.

Captain Hartley's Protest.

Captain Hartley said the Health Officer had boarded foreign ships anchored in Gravesend Bay. He said he could not see why a vessel flying the American flag should be delayed two hours in reaching her pier. Captain Hartley said that if the Leviathan had been boarded by the Health Officers at her anchorage she would have docked at 11 A. M. He showed a radio message from Quarantine to the United States Lines, at 45 Broadway, in which the Health Officer stated that the position of the Leviathan was not satisfactory and requested that she be directed to proceed to proper anchorage unless impossible to do so.

In consequence, Captain Hartley had to enlist the aid of two tugs and a United States Coast Guard cutter to swing around and steam to Quarantine, where the tide again swung the liner's bow toward the south, making it necessary after the inspection for the Captain to return to Gravesend Bay and then turn around to go up the harbor. Another half hour's delay, the Captain added, would have made him miss the tide and defer docking until 7 P. M.

Back From Lion Hunt.

Among the first-cabin passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Burge of Los Angeles, who returned from an eighteen months' hunting trip to South and East Africa, Ceylon, Burma and Central and Northwest India. Mrs. Burge said they went through the great African jungles with 200 native bearers. They also journeyed by flivver, by muleback, in canoes and on foot.

Their bag included 6 lions, 3 tigers, 5 rhinoceri, 1 hippopotamus, 2 elephants, 8 buffaloes, 2 bison, 3 cheetahs, 5 leopards and 2 gnu.

Mrs. Burge said her two biggest thrills came when she killed her first and only lion and when she killed a rhino that charged her one day in East Africa when Mr. Burge was away from the camp. Her first shot wounded the animal, enraging it. As the beast came at her, she fired five shots rapidly and brought it down within a few feet of her. Mr. Burge had a cane made from the hide and another one from the horn.

Mrs. Burge said that she was more afraid of the great hairy spiders which dropped from the trees and the snakes lurking in the jungle grass than she was of the lions.

Another passenger was Hugh Gibson, United States Minister to Poland, who returned on leave with Mrs. Gibson. He expects to go back to his post in January. Mr. Gibson said the Poles have no fear of an invasion from Soviet Russia.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, wife of the publisher, returned on the Leviathan with two Kerry blue terriers. Mrs. Hearst was welcomed at Quarantine by city officials who went down to meet her on the police boat Macom with the Police Band. Mr. Hearst boarded the Leviathan from a coast guard cutter. Mrs. Hearst visited Spain, France, Ireland and England. While in Madrid she met King Alfonso, who told her he hoped to visit New York on his way back from Buenos Aires.

Mrs. Jack London, widow of the novelist, returned from a year's travel in Europe. W. L. George, the English author, was also a passenger.

PLAY JURY SCRAPPED BY LICENSE DIRECTOR

SPONSORS OF PLAN AMAZED

Authors, Actors and Managers Had Worked Out Elaborate Scheme With the Commissioner

The play jury which was organized as an alternative to "political censorship" of the drama last Winter by a score of authors, playwrights, actors, managers and representatives of the public was practically scrapped yesterday by Commissioner of Licenses August W. Glatzmayer. Complaints against theatrical productions, said the Commissioner, will be taken before the Grand Jury and not the play jury.

Mr. Glatzmayer's announcement that the Grand Jury would decide whether or not a theatrical production was indecent or objectionable came as a great surprise to those who, after much labor and numerous conferences with him had worked out in detail the scheme of the play jury. They had understood that the plan had the complete approval of the Commissioner of Licenses, who was delegated by Mayor Hylan to represent the City in the evolving of the plan.

About 200 prominent men and women agreed to serve on the play jury. They were induced to volunteer for that service with much difficulty, according to Owen Davis, one of the organizers of the play jury system. Probably a thousand persons were invited to serve on the panel. Many of them declined and other invitations wer sent out. The names of the play jury were never made public, but the acceptances were on file, and they were ready to answer a call to pass on any play the morality of which had been questioned.

Only One Complaint Received.

The intention of Commissioner Glatzmayer was disclosed by him yesterday afternoon when he was asked if he had received any complaints against Broadway shows in response to Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert's invitation to the public last Saturday to make any such complaints to Commissioner Glatzmayer or to Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach. Mr. Glatzmayer said he had not received a single complaint.

"The only thing approaching a complaint was received by me today in a letter from a writer who signed herself, 'Mary Duross, Oneida Castle.' The letter called on Commissioner Glatzmayer to begin an investigation of three plays which recently have been the subject of adverse criticism.

"The complaint from Mary Duross," said the Commissioner, "was based, however, on hearsay, so I don't intend to take any action on it. I will not proceed against any play until I have a bona fide complaint. Then I will order an investigation and lay the facts before the Grand Jury."

He was asked if he intended to go before the Grand Jury before laying the facts before the play jury. He repeated that he would cause an investigation to be made by the Grand Jury.

"Then you practically scrap the play jury?"

"Yes, it practically means the scrapping of the play jury," replied Commissioner Glatzmayer, whose statement was called to the attention of Owen Davis, leader of those who formed the play jury and worked out a system by which it was to operate.

Owen Davis Surprised.

"I can hardly believe it," said Mr. Davis. "We had a conference with Commissioner Glatzmayer only three weeks ago and discussed the final details of the play jury plan. As far as we knew the system was ready for a tryout. I don't know what to say about Mr. Glatzmayer's intentions. I certainly don't want to criticize anything he has done until I hear from him the reason why he intends to do it.

"He struck me as a very level-headed man and a very sane person. As a matter of fact, I have come to admire him very much. I think if he said he would scrap the play jury he thought it was the best thing to do. I think it is time he did something, and if he has got something he ought to go ahead."

Plans for the play jury were worked out by a joint committee of representatives from the Authors League, the Actors' Equity Association, the Producing Managers' Association, the American Dramatists, the Better Public Shows Movement and the Drama Leagues.

TWO BROTHERS HELD AS BANK MURDERERS AFTER LONG GRILLING

ONE IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER

THIRD PRISONER LOCKED UP

Family's Employe Is Held as a Material Witness at a Midnight Session of Court.

Barlow Morris Diamond and Joseph C. Diamond, brothers, were formally charged with murder at 1:30 o'clock this morning in the office of District Attorney Dodd of Kings County, where they had undergone a ceaseless day of cross-questioning about the slaying of two messengers of the West End Bank from whom robbers took $43,607 at the New Utrecht Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street elevated station of the B. M. T. on Nov. 14.

The formal arrests followed the seizure of Barlow Diamond in Cleveland by New York detectives on Sunday and the subsequent apprehension of his brother in New York. Both men face a charge of robbery as well as the murder accusation lodged against them. They were taken to Police Headquarters in Brooklyn and locked in separate cells.

William Fried, an employe of the Diamond Basswood Company, owned by sisters of the Diamonds and by which the Diamonds were employed as salesmen, was held in $50,000 bail as a material witness by County Judge Bernard Voss, who held court at midnight in District Attorney Dodd's office for the purpose. He remanded Fried to Raymond Street Jail. The Diamond brothers are to be questioned again today and may be arraigned in Flatbush Court.

Joseph Identified as Slayer.

The order that charges of murder and robbery be placed against Joseph C. Diamond, who surrendered yesterday after reading of his brother's capture, was made by Dodd after an eyewitness to the crime, who was walking up the stairs at the time of the shooting, scanned a line-up of twenty-five men in the prosecutor's office and without hesitancy placed a finger on Joseph's chest and said, "That is the man who shot William S. Barlow." This witness, whose name was not divulged, made a second scrutiny of the line-up and, returning to Joseph, said, "I saw him shoot Barlow. I am sure of it."

Neither this witness nor six others called to the District Attorney's office could identify Barlow M. Diamond, though certain of them said he resembled one of the gang.

Although Leonard M. Sachs, sales manager of the box company, gave information refuting the story of the brothers that they were at the shop at the time of the shooting, he was not held as a material witness. Fried was held because, according to the prosecutor, "he received a telephone call on Nov. 18 from Philadelphia, to see the Diamond brothers there. He went to Philadelphia in the morning and returned in the afternoon, making a second trip to that city at night and returning to New York in the morning."

The prosecutor said that the Diamond brothers had asserted they went to Philadelphia the day after the crime. Barlow Morris Diamond came back to New York Nov. 20 to witness the Siki-Kid Norfolk prizefight, visiting a cafe deposit box the following day. He had rented this box a few hours after the crime charged against him. Joseph said he remained in Philadelphia until last Friday night, when he came to New York. From Philadelphia Barlow Diamond went to Cleveland after stops in other cities.

Barlow Makes Written Statement.

Henry Beck, a machinist living near the elevated station, saw the shooting as he was mounting the stairway. It was reported that he was the man who identified Joseph. He was in the prosecutor's office.

Barlow Diamond last night made a written statement for the Prosecutor.

Immediately before Diamond began his written statement, District Attorney Dodd made this report to the public of certain developments in his examination of the prisoner:

"We know that on Nov. 14 at 1:24 P. M., Barlow hired a safe deposit vault at the Fifth National Bank, at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street, Manhattan, under the name of Leonard Ritter. He gave 505 Fifth Avenue as his address, explaining he

Umbrellas at Football Game Held to Be Public Necessity

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 26.—Men who peddled raincoats and umbrellas at the Harvard-Yale football game last Saturday were adjudged public benefactors, even though they had no licenses, when they appeared in the East Cambridge Court today.

"Any man who was selling raincoats, umbrellas or anything to protect the people at that game is a public benefactor," said Judge Stone, "and in no way can I bring myself to impose a fine on him."

Men without licenses who peddled flags, pins and similar articles at the game were fined $5 or $10 each.

KINGDON ACCUSED IN GOULD ESTATE FIGHT

$85,000 INVOLVED IN ACTION

Justice Davis Also Orders Him to Appear in Accounting of Jay Gould Estate.

Mrs. Edith Gould Wainwright, daughter of the late George J. Gould, has applied for the removal of her brother, Kingdon Gould, as one of the executors of her father's estate, it was learned yesterday. She charges Kingdon with withholding property worth $85,000 from the estate. The application was filed in the Orphans' Court at Toms River, N. J., last Saturday, by Mrs. Wainwright's attorney, Merritt Lane, former Vice Chancellor of New Jersey. Judge Harry E. Newman issued an order directing Kingdon Gould to show cause before him at 11 A. M., on Dec. 7, why he should not be removed.

This is the second litigation over the estate of George Gould. A few weeks ago his second wife, Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, filed suit in the Chancery Court asking that the Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey be required to pay her the interest on $1,000,000 in 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds which her husband transferred to her shortly before his death, and which Kingdon Gould demanded five days after his father's death. The application to remove Kingdon Gould as executor presents an analogy to the removal of George Gould as executor of the estate of Jay Gould.

Litigation over George Gould's accounting of Jay Gould's estate is still pending, with some $20,000,000 involved. Yesterday Supreme Court Justice Davis in New York City ruled that Kingdon Gould and S. Nelison Rice, as executors of the George Gould estate, must appear in the accounting suit in the place of George Gould. Justice Davis also denied an application by Frank J. Gould, brother of George Gould, to impound the trust fund left to George Gould by his father pending decision of the accounting suit.

Transferred Properties.

The bill of complaint filed by Merritt Lane on behalf of Mrs. Edith Gould Wainwright against Kingdon Gould included the following allegations:

"On Jan. 22, 1922, George Gould and wife, Edith Kingdon Gould, conveyed two properties, one of 500 acres at Randolph County, N. C., and one of 12,049 acres in Guilford County, N. C., to Kingdon Gould, the purpose being that the said George Gould could sell the land if he had the opportunity without the signature of the said Edith Kingdon Gould.

"Contemporaneously with the execution of the two deeds, Kingdon executed two deeds for the properties, with the name of the grantee left blank in each deed. The purpose was to permit said George J. Gould selling such property without the necessity at the time sales might be made in each instance of securing the signature of said Edith Kingdon Gould. Said deeds were never delivered to Kingdon Gould, but on the contrary were always retained by said George J. Gould and were in the possession and control of said George J. Gould at the time of his death. Said deeds were kept in the private vault of said George J. Gould at his office at 165 Broadway, in the city of New York.

"Prior to the death of said George J. Gould the said Kingdon Gould had not claimed any right, title or interest in said properties, but on the contrary had recognized that he had no interest in said properties and that the said properties belonged to the said George J. Gould, and the said deeds as aforesaid were executed merely as a convenience.

"The said deeds were recorded without the knowledge of your petitioner and without the knowledge of any of the other beneficiaries of the said estate, save only the said Kingdon Gould, and the said Kingdon Gould now claims, through counsel, that the said properties belong to him, having been given to him some time before the death of the said George J. Gould without condition, although your petitioner says

Box Office Man's Salary Only $45 a Week, But He Makes $400 in 'Brokerage' Fees

"The testimony of Mr. Lyons in this case in part explains why the public have to pay such high prices for theatre tickets in New York City," said Justice Selah B. Strong of the Supreme Court in Queens yesterday in commenting upon the testimony that C. J. Lyons of 462 Ninety-eighth Street, Woodhaven, had given that he had made as high as $400 a week extra as Treasurer of the Belasco Theatre by collecting "brokerage" fees from ticket agencies. Lyons is suing for $4,642.30 which he says is due him as the profits of a stock selling syndicate in which he invested in February, 1919, and the operations of which were concluded in December, 1920. Part of the defense of Alexander McAllister, the defendant, is that he loaned money to Lyons to invest and that the amount Lyons owes him is more than enough to liquidate any claims Lyons may have.

Lyons stated that at the time the syndicate was organized he was earning from $10,000 to $12,000 a year as Treasurer of the Belasco Theatre. He was asked by the defendant's attorney if he had not testified once before that he was making only $45 a week as Treasurer, and he answered that he had. When asked to explain this he said:

"That is a simple matter. A Treasurer in a box office receives a salary and he is also entitled to the brokerage from the ticket brokers. Some weeks it will run up to $300 or $400. That is the Treasurer's. I never gave a ticket to a broker unless he paid me at least 25 cents for it and sometimes I was paid as high as $1 a ticket extra."

"Was it the custom at that time?" asked the attorney.

"Yes sir," answered Lyons.

"And still is?"

"Yes sir."

"And the public pay," commented Justice Strong from the bench, to which Lyons again answered:

Inquiry by Daugherty Into Legal Aspects of Case Ordered by President.

GETS FACTS FROM BECK

New York Senator, After Visit to White House, Announces He Will Present Petition.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE ACTS

Urges Presidential Pardon and Recommendation of a Law Preserving Free Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—President Coolidge probably will pardon Controller Charles L. Craig of New York City, who has been sentenced by Federal Judge Julius Mayer to sixty days in the Essex County jail for contempt of court.

No action in that direction will be taken until after the return to Washington on Thursday of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty from Columbus, Ohio, but it was learned in a responsible quarter today that it was highly likely the President would take advantage of his constitutional prerogatives and grant Mr. Craig the pardon.

Washington was interested tonight to learn that the Board of Estimate of New York City had prepared a letter to the President asking for a pardon for Mr. Craig. It is understood here that Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert will ask the White House for an appointment with the President to enable the members of the board to present their application in person.

Developments in the Craig case were rapid today, although the matter has not yet been laid before the President officially. These were:

First—The President conferred with Solicitor General James M. Beck in connection with certain information he asked from the Department of Justice in connection with respect to the legal aspects of the case.

Copeland Urged a Pardon.

Second—The President also conferred with Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, who explained the situation in New York City as a result of the sentencing of Controller Craig for contempt, and was urged by the Senator to grant a pardon to Mr. Craig.

Third—Senator Copeland announced that he would make formal application to the President for a pardon for Mr. Craig, and the Senator took steps to obtain from the Department of Justice a blank form to be used in making his application for executive clemency.

Indications now are that the President's action will be based on the formal application for pardon to be submitted by Senator Copeland, who feels that he can very properly ask the President to take the step, inasmuch as the Senator was formerly a member of the Cabinet of the Mayor of New York City as Commissioner of Health. The Senator's application will be addressed to the President, but will be submitted to Attorney General Daugherty, who will submit it, with the result of the department's investigation into legal aspects of the case, to the President.

President Coolidge has taken a deep interest in the Craig case. He communicated several days ago with his Attorney General, who replied from Columbus that the Department of Justice would make a thorough investigation of the legal questions involved. That investigation has been substantially completed. It is also understood that certain facts which the President desired to know regarding legal aspects of the case were given him today by Solicitor General Beck when the latter called at the White House.

Political Views Obtained.

The political aspects of the Craig case have also been gone into by the Administration, and the President is aware that Republican Party leaders in New York State think it would be a fatal mistake for the Administration at Washington to refuse a pardon to Mr. Craig if that is constitutionally possible.

C. Bascom Slemp, private secretary to the President, when in New York to attend the Army-Navy football game, conferred with leading New York Republican politicians and others. From them he learned that they thought it would be a great error for the President to fail to align himself with those who think the Craig sentence was harsh and excessive.

The investigation by the Department of Justice, it has been learned, has reached the point where there is no doubt whatever of the President's power to pardon Craig. If the view of the department were otherwise the President could hardly undertake to grant a pardon. With the clearing of this obstacle it will be possible for the President for any given reason, or without giving reasons at all, to grant the pardon. Probabilities are that he will act on the ground that the sentence was excessive and because of the effect execution of the sentence would have on the work of the Controller's office.

Senator Copeland explained to the President the importance of the work of the Controller's office and the relationship between the Controller and the Board of Estimate. He told the President that the Craig case arose out of the controversy over the conduct of Brooklyn rapid transit matters in which the municipality was vitally concerned. The municipality, he said, has an interest of some $110,000,000 involved in the controversy and the Board of Estimate had thought it only proper that the city should be represented in the receivership.

Senator Copeland explained that the Controller Craig was made by law an intervenor of the Board of Estimate in the that if the Controller had done anything warranting his going to jail then the whole board ought to be jailed.

"I am going to formally petition the President to pardon Controller Craig," the Senator said after the conference. The Senator saw the President after the latter had learned from Solicitor General Beck that the legal experts of the Department of Justice had found a way by which Craig could be pardoned if the President so desired. All the formal procedure in pardon cases, it is stated, will be gone through by the department, however, when Senator Copeland files his formal application.

La Guardia Hopes to Save Craig.

Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, former President of the New York Board of Aldermen, manifested his active interest in the direction of a pardon for Controller Craig when he called at the White House this afternoon and conferred with Secretary Slemp. Mr. La Guardia regards the Craig case as involving important matters of principle and stands prepared to initiate any legislation necessary, he said, to prevent Controller Craig serving the sentence for contempt.

"I do not care to discuss my visit to the White House," said Mr. LaGuardia, "beyond saying that where there is life there's hope, and that I have hope of saving Mr. Craig from going to jail."

When told that Senator Copeland intended making formal application for a pardon Mr. LaGuardia replied:

"I would be glad to join in signing it; you can always count on my service in this case. If there is any legal obstacle to a pardon being granted Craig by the President I will introduce a bill to remove that obstacle. In any event I shall introduce a bill for legislation making it illegal for Federal Judges to sentence officials for contempt of court when the alleged contempt is merely an official declaration or communication by such official."

Mr. LaGuardia, like Senator Copeland, said after leaving the White House, that he had no doubt of the power of the President to pardon.

Mr. LaGuardia said he intended to bring to the attention of Congress soon after it convenes, with a view to investigation, the whole question of the Federal judicial system in the Southern District of New York and its methods. He declared he would fight for such an investigation by the Judiciary Committee. He said that something had been "started" when the sentence for contempt was imposed on Controller Craig and that he, LaGuardia, would use his best efforts to have that something "finished" by Congressional investigation, with a view to legislation.

Informal proceedings toward the prospective pardoning of Controller Craig are moving rapidly, and there is every indication that the pardon will be granted before Mr. Craig serves any part of his sentence. Twenty-three days remain before the "mandate order" of the United States Supreme Court will be sent to the lower court for execution of the sentence. Meanwhile the formal application for pardon will have been received and action taken by the President.

FOUR CHARGES AGAINST CRAIG.

Record Shows Controller's Conviction on All, Lawyer Says.

A lawyer who was prominently connected with the Federal Government during the trial of the case against Controller Craig pointed out yesterday that the complaint against Mr. Craig contained four specific charges, all of them based on statements in his letter to Louis Nixon, and that Mr. Craig was found guilty on all four charges. Accurate information on this subject, this lawyer argued, would result in a clearer understanding of the situation. The four charges, as shown by the record, were as follows:

1. In said letter it was stated that this court in the said suits and proceeding was responsible for a policy of denying to the defendant and other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York any access to original sources of information concerning the property and affairs of the various public utility corporations in the hands of receivers appointed by this Court and holding franchises to operate in the streets of New York; whereas, in truth and in fact, this Court never adopted such a policy, but on the contrary, afforded to the defendant and to all members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York access to the said original sources of information and every facility for obtaining information concerning the property and affairs of the said corporations and expressly directed that the City of New York and its officials should have access to such information, and in truth and in fact at no time since this court assumed jurisdiction of any of said corporations as aforesaid has this court or any one acting under its authority ever denied to the defendant or to any members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, or to any authorized representative of the City of New York or of any of its officials access to original or to any other sources of information concerning the the property or affairs of any of said corporations.

2. In said letter it was stated that this court made orders which precluded any application being made by the authorities of the City of New York to any court for any hearing or any right of examination into the affairs or conditions of the said public utility corporations; whereas, in truth and in fact, this court has never made any such order, and on the contrary, prior to the writing of said letter, this court expressly ordered and directed that there should be given to the authorities of the City of New York every opportunity and facility for making such examination.

3. In said letter it was stated that the orders of this court denied to the authorities of the City of New York the opportunity to ascertain the truth; whereas, in truth and in fact, this court has never made any such order and has never made any order that has, has had or could have such effect, but on the contrary, prior to the writing of said letter this court ordered and directed that there should be afforded to the authorities of the City of New York every opportunity and facility for ascertaining the truth.

4. In said letter it was stated that an order of this court stands between the public and the truth; whereas, in truth and in fact, no order that this court has made has, has had or could have such effect, but on the contrary, every order in the above mentioned suits and proceeding tended and was designed to place the public in possession of the truth, and prior to the writing of said letter this court expressly ordered and directed that every facility be afforded to public officials and citizens' associations to satisfy themselves in respect to the financial and other conditions existing in relation to the corporations in charge of said receivers.

All of the foregoing statements in said letter, numbered from 1 to 4 inclusive, and each of them, are and were false and were known by the defendant to be false when made and were made in reckless disregard of the truth.

As to the circulation of the letter through the press, the lawyer already quoted pointed out that the information also charged that the defendant "did cause the same to be published in various newspapers," naming seven evening and five morning papers, "all of which newspapers then were and now are the media had general circulation and widely read by the public within and throughout" the district covered by the court.

FAVORED AS CITY MANAGER.

W. R. Hopkins Expected to Be Cleveland Council's Choice.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26.—According to reports circulated here, the new Council at its first meeting will appoint William Rowland Hopkins, attorney and former Councilman, who built Cleveland's belt line railroad, the city's first Manager.

If he is appointed his term will be indefinite, as he may be removed at any time by any City Council. His salary will not be less than $25,000 a year, according to reliable information.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE ASKS CRAIG PARDON

Also Requests Coolidge to Recommend a Law to Preserve Free Speech.

HYLAN SUGGESTED ACTION

Friends Say Judge Mayer Would Welcome Inquiry, but Doesn't Want Contempt Issue Obscured.

The Board of Estimate decided yesterday to apply to President Coolidge for a pardon for Controller Charles L. Craig, sentenced by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer to sixty days in the Essex County Jail for contempt of court.

Just afterminight this morning Frank J. Finnegan, an attache of the Mayor's office, rushed into the Ralph Avenue Police Station in Brooklyn and asked for an escort so that he could make all speed to the Pennsylvania station with the Board's letter which had to be in Washington this morning as he had just received word that an appointment had been made for him to see President Coolidge and he had to get the 1:10 A. M. train. The desk lieutenant detailed a patrolman to accompany him and the trip across the Williamsburg Bridge to the railroad station was made just in time to catch the train.

In a letter to the President the board also suggested that he recommend in a message to Congress an amendment to existing law that would preserve the right of free speech, alleged to have been violated by Judge Mayer's order to imprison Mr. Craig.

The letter was signed by every member of the Board of Estimate except the Controller and was not passed in the form of a resolution, as Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert declared that the signatures of the board members made this unnecessary. On motion of Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Mr. Hulbert was authorized to arrange for the presentation of the letter and, if possible, to obtain an appointment with President Coolidge, so that the members of the board might present it personally.

Letter to the President.

CITY OF NEW YORK,
Office of the Mayor.

Hon. Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Sir: The Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York greatly deplores that one of its members, the Controller of the City of New York, though guilty of no act involving moral turpitude may be incarcerated for a period of sixty days in a jail in another State, because the Supreme Court of the United States finds itself "unable to do anything for his relief since it had to confine itself simply to the question of procedure and could not look into the merits of his case."

Controller Craig had been invited by Public Service Commissioner Nixon to attend a conference. Instead of so doing, he wrote a letter expressing his views in regard to the appointment of receivers for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company—the operator of more than $100,000,000 of transit properties owned by the City of New York. As the chief financial officer of the city and a member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment he expressed an opinion through a letter to a State official and not in the presence of the court, which he undoubtedly believed was warranted by the circumstances. The rational presumption is that such a communication was prompted by a desire to protect the public interest in the administration of his office to which he has been elected and has since been re-elected.

The board is impelled by a deep conviction that a great injustice has been done to one of its members, which, if the sentence be carried out, may impair the power and impede the work of this board as well as the financial administration of New York City's million dollar a day Government.

This board also feels that the precedent thus established of summarily committing to jail an outspoken public official without the benefit of a trial by jury may become so extensively pernicious as to completely deny the right of open criticism of official acts, to instill fear instead of courage to the administration of public office and to lead to a widespread popular misconception of the integrity and ability of officials who may incur the displeasure of judicial tribunals because of criticisms which in themselves may be strictly within the bounds of truth and justice.

Further, this board feels that the condemnation and incarceration of the Controller may work irreparable injury to the name and credit of the City of New York and to the administration of justice.

Because of the time-worn procedure in our system of jurisprudence, the Controller was not permitted to have a trial by a jury of his peers or to have the facts considered by someone other than the Judge who was his accuser; and because of technicalities the United States Supreme Court found itself without power to dispose of the case on its merits when presented to it. Such a situation we do not believe meets with approval at the bar of public opinion and being in derogation of the spirit of our free institutions should forthwith be rectified.

Therefore, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York respectfully petitions that you review the case involving the conviction and sentence of the Controller of the City of New York, in the belief that such review will result in the correction of a grave injustice.

May we further suggest the consideration by you of a recommendation in your message to the Congress at its next session that the revised statutes and be properly amended to the end that the constitutional guaranty of American citizens shall be preserved and the right of free speech shall forever remain inviolable.

Respectfully yours,
THE BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
MURRAY HULBERT,
WILLIAM T. COLLINS,
Acting President, Board of Aldermen.
JULIUS MILLER,
President, Borough of Manhattan.
EDWARD RIEGELMANN,
President, Borough of Brooklyn.
HENRY BRUCKNER,
President, Borough of the Bronx.
MAURICE E. CONNOLLY,
President, Borough of Queens.
JOHN A. LYNCH,
President, Borough of Richmond.

Action Requested by Hylan.

The board's action in moving formally in an effort to obtain Mr. Craig's pardon followed a request to that effect from Mayor Hylan, conveyed to Acting Mayor Hulbert by Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson. Although the members of the board were in final agreement on the draft of the letter, discussion on it lasted nearly all day. It was nearly 7 o'clock before the board, which had been sitting in secret session as a Committee of the Whole, convened in public session in the Board of Estimate room in City Hall.

The unanimous action of the Board of Estimate in asking for a pardon for Mr. Craig was considered of particular significance, as he has been frequently at loggerheads with most of his colleagues on the board. The strained relations between the Controller and Mayor Hylan had reached the stage of a feud at the time the Mayor was stricken by illness in August and many of the Mayor's friends attributed his breakdown in part to the strain of his many verbal encounters with Mr. Craig.

Corporation Counsel Nicholson, who had just returned from a visit to Mayor Hylan at Atlantic City, brought word to the other members of the Board of Estimate that the Mayor wished them to do everything possible to prevent Mr. Craig serving a term in jail.

"Mayor Hylan's personal views on the subject of the commitment of Controller Craig may be best explained by his request on the way to surgery to Acting Mayor Hulbert his earnest desire that the Acting Mayor and the Corporation Counsel co-operate to the fullest extent to prevent the Controller's incarceration," Mr. Nicholson said. "He believes that not only the interests of the City of New York require such action but also that to imprison any man, much less a high public official, on account of his comment upon and criticism of the acts of any Judge would be a long step toward the utter destruction of the Constitutional right of free speech which should be enjoyed inviolable by every man in the United States."

News from Washington that President Coolidge had ordered the Department of Justice to investigate the legal phases of the Craig case was received here with interest by the friends of both Judge Mayer and Mr. Craig. It was learned that Judge Mayer would welcome such an inquiry as he believed it would focus the attention of the public on the facts in the case, namely that Mr. Craig had not been adjudged guilty for contempt of court for criticism of the Judge but far making false statements concerning the court and that he sought to prevent a review of the case on its merits by the procedure adopted.

The friends of Judge Mayer did not express any willingness to have a Congressional investigation of Judge Mayer's official acts or of the matter of Federal receiverships generally, such as have been suggested by Representatives in Congress and others as a probable sequel to the commitment of Mr. Craig for contempt. Judge Mayer was said to feel that any attempt to discuss the possibility of such action at this time was merely an effort to obscure the issue in the case of Mr. Craig's sentence for contempt. Doubt was expressed by Judge Mayer's friends that Congress had any power to make such an investigation.

Interesting comment upon the situation was offered by William Travers Jerome, formerly District Attorney of New York County. "I think it is a shame that Mr. Craig does not get the benefit of the whole matter," Mr. Jerome said, when asked about the case. "Everybody is trying to take away his rightful publicity. He should have all the advertising and should be permitted to dwell in the full glare of the spotlight. When you are going to pay for your advertising by sixty days in jail, you ought to get the full value for it."

Mr. Jerome added that, as he understood the case, the contempt sentence was justified and Mr. Craig could get out of it only by an apology.

Zihlman Confers With Craig.

Controller Craig had a conference with Representative Frederick N. Zihlman of Maryland, a Republican and Chairman of the House Committee on Labor. Mr. Zihlman announced afterward that he would introduce a resolution calling for an investigation by the House Judiciary Committee of the acts of Federal Judges in contempt, receivership and injunction cases.

"I believe there is cause for a Congressional investigation of receiverships," Mr. Zihlman said, "and I understand that New York members of Congress will introduce joint resolutions with me covering this matter. It is my intention to take up the question of personal liberty and the curbing of the power of Federal Judges, not only as far as that power extends to contempt cases and receiverships, but to injunctions as well.

"It seems to me that there is sufficient cause shown in this case to justify a careful scrutiny of receiverships. When a public official, acting for a municipality, is threatened with jail because he wants facts, it is time that the entire subject which has brought about this situation should be gone into.

"This is more than a local situation. It involves a fundamental question of interest to the whole country. There should be curbs and limits placed on the power of Federal Judges.

"Judges have been issuing injunctions restraining laboring men from doing all sorts of things. About ten years ago I was enjoined from soliciting in a certain street by a certain Judge, and some of my friends were sent to the House of Correction for violating the injunction. If a Federal Judge can do that, it follows that he might have the power to prevent a citizen from walking along Broadway or any other part of the city. That is what we want to test."

An application for a pardon for Mr. Craig was made by James P. Holland, President of the New York State Federation of Labor in a letter to President Coolidge.

GILLETT DECLARES CONGRESS IS HONEST

Speaker Replies to British Labor Leader's Charge Against Washington Legislators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The statement by Ramsay Macdonal, leader of the Labor Party in the British Parliament, that "they have more corruption in Washington than in London, and more in the House of Representatives than in the House of Commons," was classified today by Speaker Gillett.

"I know little about the House of Commons, though possibly as much as Mr. Macdonald does about the House of Representatives," said Mr. Gillett, "but I have now been Speaker four years and have had as good an opportunity as any one to observe legislation and the motives which prompt it. In these four years I do not remember an instance where I suspected, or had reason to suspect, any man in the House of being influenced in his vote by corrupt motives.

"I believe the use of money or its equivalent to secure votes is as little attempted in the House of Representatives as in any legislative body in the world, despite the tremendous interests which are affected by our legislation, and I regret that the Labor leader of Great Britain should have allowed the warmth of partisan debate to excite such a mistaken attack. There are many criticisms that can fairly be leveled against the House of Representatives, but I do not think corruption is one of them."

Speaker Gillett said he had met Mr. Macdonald in Constantinople and had a high regard for the British leader.

FRENCH ACADEMY BARS AMERICAN QUICK LUNCH

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The French Academy of Medicine, replying to questions from the Ministry of Hygiene, advises against changing the French custom of a leisurely meal at midday in favor of the quick lunch system practiced in America.

The Ministry asked the Academy first whether it was desirable to do eight hours' work at a stretch and, second, whether from the hygienic point of view there would be any advantages in modifying the French custom of a light morning repast and a substantial meal at noon.

Reporting for the Academy, Dr. Leon Bernard declared that a heavy morning meal was a good idea from a medical and an efficiency point of view, but that eight hours was too long for a worker.

In case the shift could be broken as in England and America by a half-hour lunch period, there would be an advantage, for the output of work depended very largely upon breaking the period of work with a time for rest.

In practice, however, he concluded, the present system could not be changed easily in France as custom is strong here and it would require the installation of quick lunch systems, as most workers now go home for lunch.

DINNER OPENS NEW HOTEL.

The latest addition to Broadway hotels, the Carlton Terrace, at Broadway and 100th Street, was opened formally last evening. This is a $2,000,000 investment by the Morris White Holding Company. It has 250 rooms and is devoted strictly to family trade.

Henry H. Gerard, former manager of the Nassau Hotel, is manager of the Carlton Terrace. Last night he gave a dinner to 400 persons who have been in charge of the construction and outfitting of the hotel.

STOREKEEPER SHOT AS HE FIGHTS THUGS

His Pockets Are Rifled as He Lies Dying, a Victim of New Crime Outburst.

PATRONS HELD UP IN SHOP

Lined Up and Robbed With Clerk—Police, Working Overtime, Catch Dozen Suspects.

The lull in the "crime epidemic" which began early last week came to an end early yesterday in a new outbreak of hold-ups and safe robberies. The police, virtually working under a double shift, composed partly of policemen who already had finished their tour of duty at 12 o'clock Sunday night, arrested twelve men, however, including a negro who is believed to be the man who has terrorized visitors to Morningside Park for a week.

Giuseppe Gresco, 61 years old, was taken to Lincoln Hospital last night, apparently dying after he had been shot and blackjacked in his candy store at 273 East 154th Street, the Bronx, by two robbers who took $80. Gresco was alone in the store when the robbers entered and, pointing pistols at him, commanded him to throw up his hands.

He refused to comply, and while he grappled with one of the thieves the second shot him in the right temple, and his companion fired a bullet into his abdomen.

As Gresco fell to the floor one of the hold-up men took $30 in coins from the cash register, then both stooped over him and took $50 from one of his pockets. As one of them tried to take the victim's gold watch and chain he again tried to fight, but they struck him on the head with the butts of their pistols and he fell back unconscious. The robbers then closed the door behind them and walked away. A neighbor, entering the store soon after to make a purchase discovered the dying man.

Cigar Store Is Held Up.

The boldest crime of the new wave was the hold-up of a clerk and three customers of the United Cigar Store at Eighth Avenue and 125th Street, when hundreds of persons were passing the place, shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning on their way to work. Two gunmen participated in this robbery and escaped with $145.

John Schilling, the clerk, was in the store when the two well-dressed young hold-up men entered and pointed pistols at him. One of them drove Schilling into the cellar. The second robber flung off his hat and coat and stood behind the counter until the first customer, Michael Devine, a chauffeur, of 1,507 Second Avenue, came in. Then he emerged and drove him, too, into the cellar, where Schilling was relieved of $20 and placed beside Schilling by the second robber. The first robber then returned to the store and repeated the operation with John Malloy of 2,193 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, who gave up $47. Then Harry L. Osterhout of 2,537 Eighth Avenue, $15.

With warnings to the four victims lined up in the cellar that they would "shoot to kill," the robbers backed away and fled in a taxicab, which had been standing with a third man at the wheel.

Several hours before, Oscar Zeeman, janitor of the Mount Morris vaudeville and motion picture theatre at Fifth Avenue and 116th Street, reported to the police that while he and his sons were cleaning the theatre, burglars blew the safe in the manager's office and got the Saturday and Sunday receipts of more than $5,000.

Paul Lautrelle, a truck driver, told the police yesterday afternoon that his truck, containing $10,000 worth of cretonne, silk and upholstery coverings had been stolen from in front of Pier 25 on West Street. The truck was found empty last night.

Shortly before dawn the safe in the drug store of Louis Salisman at St. Nicholas Avenue and 125th Street, a block west of the scene of the cigar store hold-up, was blown open, but it contained no money. The robbers took $50 from a cash register.

Isadore Lieberman, 19 years old, who lived at 12 Brederes Place, and Frank Deutsch, 18, who gave the address 1,295 De Kalb Avenue, both in Brooklyn, were held in $30,000 bail each when arraigned before Magistrate Joseph Ralmo in Essex Market Court on charges of having a pistol, burglars' tools and several stolen watches in the room they occupied at 184 Norfolk Street. They said that the watches belonged to Joseph Lidsky, a jeweler, of 202 East Broadway, whose store was robbed Friday night. The youths will be arraigned Friday.

Believe Long Series Stopped.

In the arrest of a negro shortly after midnight Sunday, police declare, they have put an end to a series of hold-ups of both men and women in Morningside Park in the past week. Policemen Harry Wallace and John J. Sheehan, who had volunteered to watch the park after they finished their regular tour of patrol duty, said that when they arrested the negro, Sevenson Van, who gave the address 8 West 135th Street, and forced him with drawn guns to hold up his hands, a pistol fell from beneath his right arm. He was held without bail by Magistrate Jesse Silberman in the West Side Court for examination tomorrow. He was identified by several persons as the man who held them up, and the police said the negro confessed to more than ten hold-ups in Central and Morningside Parks.

Burglars shortly after midnight broke into the stores of the Thomas Roulston grocery corporation and the Sheffield Farms Milk Company at Mineola, L. I., and carted off two safes, containing $700.

Joseph Kuszakowski of River Road, Shadyside, N. J., who was shot by three robbers last Saturday night when they attempted to rob him of $800 near the store in which he was manager, died in the Englewood Hospital yesterday. Alexander Lebowski, a clerk, who escaped with the $800 in the hold-up, was held in $500 bail yesterday by Recorder Ellis in Edgewater on a charge of carrying a pistol.

FINDS THEATRE HEALTHY.

Never in Better Condition, Owen Davis Tells Writers' Club.

Owen Davis, author of "Icebound," and winner of the Pulitzer prize for the best play of 1922, told the members of the Writers' Club in Earl Hall, Columbia University, last night the American theatre was in a healthier condition now than it had ever been.

"To every person who comes to see a dirty play," he said, "there are 1,000 who won't. I never saw a dirty play suspend if it had no other value.

"The low standard of American plays are only the low standards of American audiences. There is no market in America for the sort of play a few people say they would like to see."

Mr. Davis said he considered the "Insect Comedy" of the Capek brothers one of the finest plays ever brought to America, but yet, he declared, it cost its producers $67,000. "Icebound," he said, barely kept alive with a weekly business of $8,000 or $9,000.

"Yet," he continued, "when I dug down to the bottom of my trunk and got out that old farce, "The Nervous Wreck," on which Sam Harris and I had been experimenting, it did a $21,000 a week business.

"Still the American theatre is in the healthiest condition that it can ever been in, and, although there are no outstanding figures like Pinero and Galsworthy, there are many more competent writers than either Europe or America has ever seen before."

COURTED SUPPORT OF CORSICAN BANDIT

LATTER IS A POPULAR HERO

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—There is much feeling among Senators over the recent Senatorial election in Corsica, which has just resulted in the seating of François Coty, wealthy manufacturer of perfume, who defeated Adolphe Landry by fewer than twenty votes. The dispute hinges on the personality of one Romanetti, who is a notorious brigand and a popular hero of the island. Landry and Coty made great efforts to obtain Romanetti's support, but he steadfastly refused to mix in politics on the ground that it was beneath his dignity as a gentleman and a robber to do so.

This was the situation twelve hours before the dawn of election day. Early in the evening of the day before election practically the entire police force of the city surrounded the Grand Hotel in Ajaccio, the capital of Corsica, announcing that they had come to arrest the brigand. They remained outside all night and in the morning searched the hotel without finding Romanetti.

That day Coty was elected.

Landry and his friends now charge that Coty staged the police display to make it appear to the natives that their admired brigand was in a long conference with him, and that as a result enough Corsicans changed their votes to give Coty the victory.

Coty and his friends retort that the action of the police was a put-up job between Landry and the political boss of Ajaccio to prevent Coty from communicating with his lieutenants on the eve of the election.

The Paris papers having published Landry's charge, Romanetti wrote from the Corsican mountains to the French capital demanding that the papers declare that he had nothing to do with the trick, whatever its real nature.

The Liberté has sent a correspondent to see Romanetti. The correspondent reports that it is much easier to find the brigand in the mountains of Ajaccio police have been "seeking" for years, than to cross the Paris boulevards at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Romanetti began by charging that Coty had shown lack of consideration in trying to get him arrested, which the brigand thought very unsportsmanlike, since a short time afterward the millionaire came to see him in the mountains and solicited his aid.

Friends of Romanetti charged that Landry had offered him 50,000 francs to espouse the cause of their candidate. The brigand said he stuck by his decision not to influence the campaign, and if some one had played a trick with the police on election eve he said it was not he.

NEUTRAL ON PRESIDENT, MURPHY TELLS MACK

Says 'Birdie or Par Hole' Could Have Displaced Politics at French Lick.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 26.—Following a long-distance telephone conversation with Charles F. Murphy at French Lick Springs, Norman E. Mack, Democratic National Committeeman from New York, today gave out the following typewritten statement:

"Whatever may have been the talk between Charles F. Murphy, "Tom" Taggart, George Brennan and Joseph Guffey at French Lick for the last two weeks, politics as applied to Presidential possibilities hasn't been a part of it. So Mr. Murphy declared during a long-distance telephone conversation with Norman E. Mack today.

"There has been no talk of Presidential possibilities beyond the customary ante-convention gossip that every group of two or three men inevitably indulges in about this stage of the national contest. We have been neither for nor against any man in any of our random talk.

"'As a matter of fact, Mack,' added the Tammany leader, 'there hasn't been a single thing so seriously important but what a par hole or a birdie would have knocked it out of our heads permanently.

"I'll make just one exception to that statement,' Murphy added. 'We have seriously discussed the effect of the Volstead act, the increasing disrespect for the law and the utter failure of its enforcement. I have reiterated my conviction that the Volstead law should be changed so as to permit each State in the Union to determine for itself the alcoholic content of its beverages. I firmly believe that this must come eventually, and the longer it is deferred the greater the penalty the nation will have to pay in the way of lawlessness, loss of revenue and general dissatisfaction among the American people.'"

88 "BEAUTIES" ARRIVE.

Contestants Will Appear in Taxi Parade on Fifth Avenue Today.

Eighty-eight girls, selected by Rodolph Valentino as the prettiest in their respective cities of the United States and Canada, arrived at the Pennsylvania Station last night by special train from Washington where they had paid a visit to the White House.

The girls went to their suites in the Waldorf-Astoria preparatory to a round of entertainment and sight-seeing today and tomorrow. At noon today they will parade in taxicabs down Fifth Avenue on their way to greet Acting Mayor Hulbert.

Under the auspices of the Beauty Foundation of America the girls will participate tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in a pageant at which a committee of one hundred will assist Valentino in choosing by elimination "the queen of loveliness and first beauty of the land." The winner will receive a platinum and diamond crown and a robe modelled after one worn by Cathrine at Russia.

TWO BROTHERS HELD AS BANK MURDERERS

was in the lumber business. He went away and came back in twenty minutes, at about 1:55, carrying this buffalo leather suitcase. He was in the booth for about a minute and when he came out he said to the manager, Lester B. Scofield, 'I'm glad that has been put away.' The next day, at 11:50 o'clock in the morning, he went in with one of his sisters, who signed a card for access to the vault, using the name J. Ritter. The two were in the booth about nine minutes. Barlow took out a box. Again, on Nov. 21, he went to the vault, at about 10:10 A. M., and remained in the booth four minutes. He was alone. We opened the safe deposit box this afternoon and it was empty. The prisoner said he never put anything into the box. Scofield identified him."

"Has he made any confession of the crime yet?" Mr. Dodd was asked.

"No, but he has made a number of collateral admissions of great importance," said the District Attorney.

Both the hold-up victims knew both the Diamond brothers, the police said. The Diamonds had made deposits in the West End Bank for their mother and thus had become familiar with William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin. The latter, particularly, in his capacity as assistant teller, had done business with them.

According to the police, solution of the crime is due to fingerprints and the Ford license plates found on the abandoned Cadillac. The fingerprints on the car doors and windows coincided with records at Headquarters of Barlow M. Diamond, who had been arrested twice on criminal charges. The plates were traced to "Samuel Josepha" at an address which proved to be a building owned by Mrs. Dora Diamond of 1,959 Eighty-fourth Street, Bensonhurst. She was found to be the mother of Barlow M. and Joseph G. Diamond, both then missing from their home. At the Bensonhurst home it was learned that Joseph obtained a license for a Ford car on June 3 last. This was the date of the issuance of a license to "Samuel Josephs."

Aware of the psychological influence impelling persons desiring to disguise their names to use, unconsciously, part of their real names, the police set out in quest of Joseph G. Diamond as owner of the Ford plates, as well as seeking his brother, whose fingerprints at Headquarters tallied with those on the abandoned murder car.

How Barlow Diamond Was Caught.

The facts relating to the prints and to the plates were run down the day of the murders. From that time detectives kept the Diamond home under surveillance. Meanwhile detectives were sent to twenty cities throughout the East on "blind trails," hoping to stumble upon trace of the Diamonds.

Detectives Thomas Martin and Stephen Donohue of the Homicide Squad first found a clue to Barlow M. Diamond in Philadelphia. This clue led them to Cleveland. They had photographs of Barlow and his signature.

Arriving in Cleveland at 12:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon they went to Police Headquarters for the assistance of Cleveland detectives and then began an examination of the registers of Cleveland hotels. Finally at the Hotel Statler they found on last Thursday's pages the name, "M. B. Diamond, New York City," in their quarry's writing.

They learned from the porter that Diamond had purchased a ticket for the 6 o'clock train to New York. It was discovered later that he planned to leave the train at Philadelphia to meet a chorus girl. It had been his original purpose to leave on the previous day, but was informed by the stage door Johnny at the Monday in which the famous Jim Thorpe was to play he decided to remain over, having himself been a star halfback on the Bay Ridge High School team and still being gripped with the fervor of the game. That decision cost him his liberty. When he returned to the hotel late in the afternoon the detectives were awaiting him. Donohue at the desk engaged Martin on the eighth floor near Diamond's door.

Diamond paid his bill and checked out. When he entered the elevator Donohue went into the car also. As they stepped out on the eighth floor Donohue signaled to Martin. They permitted Diamond to turn the key in his door and then, hands on their pistols, demanded he accompany them.

"I thought you were stick-up men," said Diamond later in explaining his abject and startled appearance. His alarm was evident. "What do you want me for?" he asked, quavering.

"Well, I guess I'd better go back to New York with you," agreed the prisoner. He made no resistance and readily agreed to sign waivers of examination and extradition.

Brought Back Without Handcuffs.

Neither of the detectives had brought along handcuffs. Nor could the Cleveland police furnish any, apologizing that they did not have the authority. As it was Sunday, none could be bought.

A bad ten minutes were experienced by the score of detectives who awaited the arrival of Diamond and his captors at the Grand Central Terminal yesterday morning, more than a hundred persons milling outside the ropes for a glimpse of the prisoner. In the crowd were Mrs. Dora Diamond, his mother, and one of his four sisters.

"Mother! Oh, my boy, Bernie!" wailed his mother hysterically, as she flung her arms around her son. He tried to comfort her. He was escorted through the surging throng to a Police Department automobile and hurried to headquarters, where Acting Police Commissioner John A. Leach, Inspector John D. Coughlin, Captain Arthur Carey of the Homicide Squad and Captains Daniel Carey and George Busby, with many of the detectives who had worked on the case, were ready to begin an extended examination.

"You make me a promise and I'll tell you all I know," pleaded the prisoner when Inspector Coughlin began snapping out questions.

He explained he wanted immunity. Inspector Coughlin replied he could not make the promise. Thereupon the prisoner sidestepped most of the questions he considered incriminating. He besought his questioners to permit him to talk with his attorney. This was denied him. The refusal rendered him adamant when piercing questions were put.

Tells of Rum-Running Trips.

"Barlow M. Diamond admitted," said Inspector Coughlin, "that the Ford plates were to be used in stealing other automobiles and that he and his brothers used them on the Cadillac they admit stealing in running whisky from Canada into the United States. He said they planned to use the Cadillac with the Ford plates 'to do other strange and crooked things.' Several rum-running trips were admitted.

"He would not admit that he or his brother put the Ford plates on the abandoned Cadillac or tell where the Cadillac which he admitted stealing was.

"We confronted him with a woman who was going through the turnstile at the time of the shooting. But she could not identify him."

For more than a week Joseph G. Diamond had been apprehensive, having some days ago interviewed Goldstein & Goldstein, his attorneys. When he read yesterday morning of his brother's arrest he decided the time had come to face the issue. In the midafternoon he went to his lawyers and announced that, being innocent, he wished to surrender. His attorneys thereupon telephoned Police Headquarters that they would surrender him and he was in Inspector Coughlin's office within half an hour.

In response to the Inspector's interrogation, Joseph said he spent the date of the murder in the factory, though the police asserted their evidence is to the contrary. He admitted ownership of the Ford plates and confessed he had obtained them in a plan to place them on cars he intended to steal. His brother confirmed his assertion that Barlow had obtained license plates under the name of Walter Miller for a similar purpose.

Joseph told the Inspector that he spent Nov. 15 with his brother in Philadelphia in the company of two chorus girls. He denied to the last few days he stuck by his pal, Jimmy Sunday, in which the famous Jim Thorpe was to play he decided to lay low. "We're a couple of hold-up men and we just made a big haul in New York. The cops want us in New York."

When the Inspector tried to pin his man down on certain significant phases of the case, the nattily dressed youth waved his suede gloves in a gesture of refusal, explaining always that he was now being led into deep water.

Admits Stealing One Cadillac.

Barlow Diamond denied in all questioning that he knew anything about the Cadillac abandoned at Sixty-seventh Street and Nineteenth Avenue, a mile and a half from the bank crime, and which bore his brother's Ford plates. This machine was stolen the night of Nov. 1 in front of the home of its owner, Jacob Monsky, of 2,663 Grand Concourse, the Bronx. He volunteered, however, that he stole on the night of Oct. 28 a Cadillac sedan from 169th Street and Riverside Drive, belonging to Louis Altschuel of 1,760 Topping Avenue, the Bronx. He said he left the car Nov. 2 in the garage of Brodsky. Brodsky's records showed the automobile was placed in his care Oct. 30.

Hulbert Praises Captors.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert, who was in the Grand Central Station crowd when Barlow Diamond arrived, wrote this letter to Acting Police Commissioner Leach:

"I feel that a word of congratulation is merited for the very effective police work in the trailing through a number of cities and arrest in Cleveland, Ohio, of Barlow M. Diamond, implicated in the robbery and murder of two messengers of the West End Bank in Brooklyn on Nov. 14. To give credit in this instance is but a deserved tribute.

"Murder in any form is horrible that the police can become apprised of the contemplated acts of murder, robbery and burglary, but it is expected that everything humanly possible will be done to apprehend the perpetrators after the commission of the crime. The arrest of Diamond, who was known to have a police record, will meet the public expectation, at the same time that it will demonstrate to the lawless that in the pursuit of wrongdoers the police of this city are adequate to the problems of geography as well as cleverness.

"In order that the criminal element of this city may know that speedy justice is meted out to their kind, I am writing to District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn, urging prompt trial of Diamond."

Hulbert's Letter to Dodd.

To District Attorney Dodd the Acting Mayor wrote:

"The arrest and lodgment in jail of Barlow M. Diamond for complicity in the hold-up on Nov. 14 in which two messengers of the West End Bank in Brooklyn were robbed and murdered, prompts this letter to you in the hope that no time will be lost in bringing this suspect to trial.

"Skillful detective work was manifested in this arrest and there is every reason to believe that similar effective action will be taken in the cases now engaging the attention of the police.

"There can be little doubt that the police will be encouraged and the public gratified to know that this suspect is to be given a speedy trial and swift punishment imposed if found guilty. Toward this end I know I may count upon your hearty official co-operation in order that reassurance may be given to the public and food for thought furnished for the lawless."

OUR RADIO PROGRAM HEARD IN NORWAY

Stations in England and Scotland Also Pick Up Speech in Schenectady.

SOME STATIC INTERFERENCE

European radio stations duplicated the feat of Americans on Sunday when last night signals broadcast from here were heard over there. Within ten minutes after the station broadcasting in the United States "signed off" last night station LCM at Stavanger, Norway, reported back to the United States that it had picked up the signals. The station at Stavanger, maintained by the Radio Corporation, is a high-power station, and it reported receiving the American message at 10:20 P. M.

Presumably Stavanger picked up the message from the General Electric Company's station, WGY, at Schenectady, for WGY "signed off" at 10:18½, and that time more nearly corresponds with the time of the receipt of the message by the Norwegian station than any other. The report from Stavanger was received by radio-telegraph at Garden City by Arthur H. Lynch, editor of Radio Broadcast, which with Wireless World of London sponsored the trans-atlantic radio tests as part of the National Radio Week program.

The message picked up in Norway last night was a speech by Owen D. Young, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the General Electric Company and the

PARIS SEES BRITAIN CORNERED ON RUHR

ITS SESSIONS BEGIN TODAY

But No Decision Is Expected to Be Reached Until British Elections Are Over.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—It is believed here that Premier Poincaré has distinctly the better position in the highly important debate between France and England which is expected to follow the filing tomorrow with the Reparation Commission of the agreements made with the German industrialists for exploitation of the Ruhr. These accords provide that the value of the coal and coke deliveries stipulated in the agreements shall go to the Reparation Commission and that, subject to the approval of the commission, the receipts from the special taxes shall go first to defray the cost of Ruhr occupation.

The French and Belgians, with the deciding vote of the French Chairman, have the power to force technical adoption of the agreements, but it is generally thought here they will not make use of this power and that the decision of the Reparation Commission depends on the attitude of the British delegate, Sir John Bradbury.

Great Britain's Dilemma.

If, maintaining their attitude that occupation of the Ruhr is illegal, the British refuse to approve the agreements resulting from that occupation, it is argued that they cannot hope this will mean that M. Poincaré will withdraw from the Ruhr, and therefore will do what is, both from a political and economic point of view, distasteful to them, namely, leave the French with a free hand in the Ruhr, and, furthermore, perhaps refuse to share what are the only revenues from Germany in prospect for some time to come.

If, on the other hand, the British accept these agreements, they, as the French reason, associate themselves with the Ruhr enterprise and, unless they seek to remain in the rather untenable position of being receivers of stolen goods, must withdraw from the position that the Ruhr occupation is illegal.

This is putting the situation broadly. It has many complications. For instance, Sir John Bradbury, it is pointed out, might agree to the value of the coal going to the Reparation Commission, since that would be a resumption of the system which prevailed before the Ruhr occupation, but should he refuse the French plan that taxes levied in the Ruhr should go to pay the cost of occupation he would be proposing something the French would not accept, although at the same time he would be recognizing Ruhr occupation if he insisted that the product of the special taxes should go to all the Allies, England included.

And so it is evident that the question the French delegate will place before the British delegate to the Reparation Commission is a most delicate and at the same time most important one. It is thought entirely possible that it will be taken away from the commission and turned over to the two Foreign Offices for solution, to which case it is probable there would be no decision until after the British elections.

It is recognized here that Lord Curzon might serve on the French an ultimatum, as he did on the issue of military control, to the effect that England would withdraw from the Interallied Commissions if the French maintained their position; but there is not the slightest possibility, according to his entourage, that M. Poincaré would agree now to scrap his Ruhr agreements, for to do so would be to sacrifice all the fruits of his reparation policy and there would be nothing left for him except to resign or withdraw from the Ruhr, which would amount to the same thing.

It is always possible that the British Government may remain aloof and simply disregard consideration of all matters pertaining to Ruhr occupation, as has been its policy in the Reparation Commission. But again the maintenance of such an attitude at this juncture would leave the French even freer than before, by virtue of the new accords for exploiting and holding the Ruhr.

On Friday last the German delegation raised the question of the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr in its hearing before the Reparation Commission. This was intended by Berlin to precipitate a new Ruhr debate between the French and British.

To Reduce Reparation Board.

The personnel and emoluments of the Reparation Commission seem likely to suffer a drastic reduction if the measures of internal reform now being planned by the Secretary are approved by the allied Governments. Owing to the stoppage of payments by Germany, it is stated, the Reparations Commission has only enough available funds in hand to carry on its present services till Spring.

This does not mean that the entire German payments have gone to keep up the commission. The proportion is, however, even in the minds of the commission itself, disproportionate to the amount of work which has been accomplished since occupation of the Ruhr brought an almost complete end to payments for accountancy and inquiry work.

Many of the services have been entirely idle during the last ten months, and in view of the probability that they will never be resumed it is being proposed that wholesale reformation be operated and many sacrifices demanded of well-paid jobholders.

Owing to the continued absence of Sir John Bradbury in London and to the fact that it was only today that the German delegation submitted its proposals in writing, the discussion of what should be done to meet the German situation and the further question of the advisability of appointing a committee of experts to study German capacity, it is probable that there will be a postponement of any definite decisions until after the British elections on Dec. 6.

Berlin Press Sees "Slim Pickings."

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—"Slim picking for Germany" is about the way the Berlin press appraises the Franco-German industrial accord concluded at Düsseldorf, although the prospect it affords of curbing unemployment in the Ruhr sector is looked upon as one of the immediate benefits. The treaty's political significance is reflected in Germany's ability to force the applications of coal deliveries on her reparations account, for which credit is given to former Chancellor Stresemann. By virtue of the accord the German Government will be able to effect a material curtailment of its unemployment doles, and it is this aspect of the enforced agreement which affords the German press the sole source of comfort.

Poincare Talks Instead on Rhineland Separatist Movement.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Senator d'Estournelles de Constant last week sent notification to Premier Poincaré that he wished to interpellate the Government on the causes and consequences of the "isolation" of France. To his letter the Premier replied that he would give a full explanation today before the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Today he duly appeared before the committee and it is understood gave a very detailed report of progress of the Separatist movement in the Rhineland, with a full explanation of the number of men employed by the Separatists, the number of places seized and the negotiations conducted with the local French authorities. The Premier gave no indication that this movement has the support of the French Government.

After the Premier's statement Senator de Constant let it be known that he intended to persist in his demand for an interpellation on the causes and consequences of the isolation of France.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Nov. 26.—A band of about one hundred anti-Separatists, armed with clubs and revolvers, attacked and ousted a Separatist detachment from the glass works at Duoren on Saturday. The ejection came after a fight in which the Separatists suffered the loss of three killed and eleven wounded.

According to the French authorities the attacking party was commanded by security police from Berlin.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26.—The German Government having failed to comply with the ultimatum addressed to it by the Belgian Government demanding payment on or before Nov. 25 of 1,250,000 francs as compensation for the assassination a year ago of Lieutenant Graff and damages for his family, the Belgian Government ordered the seizure this morning at Duisburg and Hamborn, where the murder took place, of rolling stock belonging to the German Government, which was about to be delivered by local factories.

Reports from the occupied territory show that the seizure was carried out at 9 o'clock this morning by Belgian officials accompanied by six soldiers. There were no incidents. One hundred new cars were confiscated being the whole of the stock found in a finished or nearly finished condition.

Of the sum said to be realized from the sale 1,000,000 francs is to go to the Red Cross and the remaining 250,000 to the father and brother of the murdered officer.

KING A FASCISTA CORPORAL.

MAPLES, Nov. 26.—The King and Queen of Spain arrived here from Bologna this morning and received a cordial official and popular welcome. They were greeted by the Duke and Duchess of Aosta; Admiral Thaon di Revel, Minister of Marine, who represented the Central Government, the Mayor, Prefect and other authorities.

After the exchange of greetings the visitors took their places in the Neapolitan official carriages, and while a salute of twenty-one guns were fired were taken to the review grounds, where detachments of infantry, cavalry and Fascista militia were drawn up. Great crowds lined the route and cheered the royal pair, and the whole city was bright with Italian and Spanish flags.

After a review of the troops, King Alfonso was the recipient of the insignia of Corporal of Honor in the Fascista militia. The King and Queen, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, then drove to the Capodimonte Palace, the Dukes' residence, for luncheon.

NORWAY TREATY RENEWED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The treaty of arbitration between Norway and the United States, which has expired by limitation, was renewed today for another period of five years, it was announced at the State Department today. The treaty was originally signed at Washington in 1908, the ratifications being exchanged on June 30, 1908, and on its expiration in 1913 it was renewed for a period of five years. There was a further renewal in 1918.

The agreement of renewal was signed today by Secretary Hughes and the Norwegian Minister. It provides simply for renewal without change in the terms of the treaty.

1,393 CANDIDATES SEEK TO BE M. P.'S

34 WOMEN ARE RUNNING

But Most of Them in Districts Where They Have No Chance of Winning.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—For the 615 seats in the House of Commons 1,393 candidates were nominated today, and candidates for two seats for Oxford University are yet to come forward. Fifty members were returned unopposed, and the candidates who go to the polls are thus divided into parties: Unionists, 500; Liberals, 443; Labor, 420, and other parties, 30. Included in these figures are thirty-four women candidates.

Of the fifty candidates declared elected today, thirty-five are Unionists, eleven are Liberals; three belong to the Labor Party, and there is one Nationalist. This last is T. P. O'Connor, "Father of the House of Commons," and sole survivor of the once formidable Nationalist Party. He has sat since 1885 for the Scotland division of Liverpool, a district with a large Irish population, and he can apparently continue to sit for it as long as he lives.

According to custom, the Speaker of the last House, J. H. Whitley, was also returned unopposed. He will presumably be re-elected to the Speakership.

There is not much significance in the other uncontested nominations; they only mean that the retiring members are so fortunate as to be too firmly entrenched to make it worth any one's while to try to turn them out. Among them is Major the Hon. John J. Astor, who had a walkover at Dover. The City of London, as usual, returns without a contest two Unionists, Sir Frederick Banbury and E. C. Grenfell. J. M. Erskine, who has plenty of trouble when he defeated Sir Leslie Wilson, Unionist Whip, in the St. George's Division of Westminster as an anti-waste candidate, now meets his reward of an uncontested seat.

Sir Philip Sassoon has been returned for Hythe, and Major J. C. Cohen, who lost both his legs at Ypres, for a Liverpool Division.

No Bargains Between Parties.

"On the other side of politics, Neil Maclean, one of the Labor extremists, is in for the Govan Division of Glasgow.

In the nominations for contested seats it is becoming clear that there are no bargains between the parties. Although there are efforts in the newspapers to bring back the situation of a year ago, when the Unionists and Liberals joined in many constituencies to keep out Labor candidates, both these parties are fighting separately at the present election. In the same way, it seems the Liberals and Laborites are keeping apart. Labor is rightly proud of its position of his Majesty's Opposition, and it knows that the Liberals consider the prospect of becoming again the second strongest party in the House almost as dear to them as their father Paint hopes of gaining an actual majority.

At Liberal headquarters tonight it was estimated that Liberal candidates would be engaged in 170 straight fights with either Unionists or Laborites, and that there would be from a 250 to 270 three-cornered fights. So it is a fight without quarter being asked or given.

Mr. Asquith has reason to congratulate himself, he has no less than three opponents at Paisley, one of them being a Unionist, another a Co-operator, his old enemy, J. M. Biggar, and a Labor candidate. It certainly makes his prospects look brighter.

One interesting nomination was that of Major A. N. Baldwyn, Conservative, at Pontefract, who completed a 5,000-mile rush back from America with three seconds to spare. The moment his boat reached the Mersey he came ashore by special tender, caught the 8:20 train to Leeds, jumped into a waiting car and reached the nomination room on the ninth stroke of 12.

The Women Candidates.

Thirty-four women have been nominated for the House of Commons, but such is the lack of chivalry of men in permitting women to come forward—as a rule only in those seats which are viewed as hopeless. It is not likely that the feminine contingent will be markedly increased in the new house.

All three of the women members of the last house—Lady Astor at Plymouth, Mrs. Hilton Philipson (better known under her stage name of Phyllis Russell) at Berwick-on-Tweed and Mrs. Wintringham at Louth—have been renominated. Mrs. Philipson created two precedents at this election. She has her husband, Captain Hilton Philipson, as a fellow-candidate in a nearby constituency and she has to meet another woman, Mrs. Anna Penny, as Labor candidate in her own constituency.

Of the thirty-four women seven are Conservatives; two are Liberals; thirteen belong to the Labor Party, and two run as Independents. The Duchess of Atholl is Unionist candidate for Perth and Kinross, while a well-known Liberal, Mrs. Cadbury, who is connected with the famous Quaker chocolate-making family, is standing for the King's Norton division of Birmingham. Lady Terrington is running for the Liberals in the Wycombe division of Buckinghamshire, and the Countess of Warwick is continuing her campaign for Labor under the shadow of her own Warwick Castle, which she began for a by-election before the dissolution was announced.

Two well-known trade unionists are also standing as Labor candidates, Miss Margaret Bonfield at Northampton, and Miss Jessie Stephen at South Portsmouth.

LADY ASTOR THREATENS 'CHEEKY' INTERRUPTER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 26.—Today's nominations definitely decided that the fight Lady Astor will have to face here is between capital and labor. It was not a little astonishing to find her getting today at a meeting which had been advertised as non-political a vote of confidence from naval and military men.

At a meeting later in the day, at which thousands failed to get admittance, she perched herself high upon a teacher's desk and looked girlish and winsome as she faced a packed classroom. With characteristic courage she faced a shower of interruptions from all quarters and met them with swift repartee.

Here at one point by veering laughter, she gave her interpretation of a true Socialist as based on great spiritual facts. She replied sharply: "Don't laugh at religion." Again came the laugh, and she replied with great seriousness: "Is it not terrible? It is worse than ignorance; it is blasphemy."

Almost immediately came an impertinent remark from a man sitting high upon a window sill, but she cut it short with the words: "Don't be cheeky, or I will knock that pipe out of your mouth."

When asked if she were not afraid of the capital levy she retorted: "Have you ever seen any one look less afraid than I am?"

And when one of her opponents urged the League of Nations, including America, Germany and Russia she replied: "Are you going to bring America in by your Socialist Government? Why, America would not look at your Socialist Government."

LONDON, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—Today's nominations in the Sutton Division of Plymouth confirmed that Lady Astor will have a straight fight with the Laborite Captain G. W. Brennan. In the last election Lady Astor defeated Captain Brennan by more than 3,000 votes, but there was an independent Conservative in the contest, who polled more than 4,000. The two candidates met at the nomination table today and exchanged greetings. They left together, and in the lobby of the Guildhall held an animated conversation for some minutes, were then photographed together and parted with a handshake and an exchange of battering challenges. Lady Astor exclaiming as she entered her automobile: "Fight fair; let us have cricket!"

UNIONISTS SEEKING A NEW PRESS ORGAN

Report That After Election They Will Obtain Full Control of Morning Post.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The defection of the Rothermere and Beaverbrook newspapers has aroused the officials of the Unionist Party to a sense of its dangerous weakness as far as the metropolitan press is concerned. It is rumored that soon after the election a new Unionist afternoon newspaper will be started to replace The Pall Mall Gazette. It is also likely that The Morning Post will change hands. The Yorkshire Post will not purchase it, but it will probably be sold by Lady Bathurst to a syndicate in which Colonel F. S. Jackson, Chairman of the National Unionist Association, will have an important share. This will mean that The Morning Post will change from being an independent Unionist newspaper with strong opinions of its own—some of which, such as its sympathy for France, it has found difficult to harmonize with the views of the Cabinet—to becoming a regular official organ of the Unionist Party.

As things have been going lately the modification will not be great. Ever since the late Andrew Bonar Law took office Lady Bathurst has behaved with marked loyalty to the Ministry; but it is widely hoped that the new owner will not seek to put a curb on the barbed pen which The Morning Post has wielded so cleverly against its particular enemies.

An unconfirmed but widely circulated rumor declares that Lord Beaverbrook, learning that Lady Bathurst was willing to sell the newspaper, made an offer for The Morning Post, but that this was rejected, as the agreement under which the paper is held forbids its sale except to a purchaser approved by the leader of the Unionist Party.

Meanwhile the manoeuvres of what J. L. Garvin describes as "the press trusts" may lead to interesting results. He himself prophesies that when Parliament reassembles a motion will be made for a Parliamentary Committee of Inquiry into the press trusts and declares that there are many American precedents for such a course. It means impossible to avoid it, he says, for in present conditions no Government can insure the normal working of the electoral system.

The Yorkshire Post, the leading provincial Conservative newspaper, and perhaps the most authoritative exponent of the views of the Central Unionist organization, devotes two columns today to the examination of what it terms Lord Rothermere's amazing volte face," and gives its countenance to the theory that Premier Baldwin, in advocating protection in his Plymouth speech, just managed to forestall Mr. Lloyd George. Just as Joseph Chamberlain came out for tariff reform after his visit to South Africa, so, it suggests, the ex-Premier was preparing to utilize his trip through Canada and America as an excuse for his conversion to imperial preference.

This idea has been propounded from the public platform by Sir R. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, who said that in his view it was only the rapid moves of the Government which prevented Mr. Lloyd George from announcing a change of front. Mr. Baldwin's first announcement for protection was made on Oct. 25, and he did not really define his attitude until Nov. 2, the day before Mr. Lloyd George left New York. It was while he was on the ocean that the necessity for an almost immediate election became clearer, and it was during this period, according to the Fleet Street theory, that Lords Beaverbrook and Rothermere took counsel with Winston Churchill, Austen Chamberlain and Lord Birkenhead to revive the old third party with Mr. Lloyd George at its head and thoroughgoing imperial preference as its program. The rumor is that their plan was, however, upset by the decision of Mr. Lloyd George to effect a Liberal reunion rather than to take up tariff reform. As soon as he learned of the Government's protectionist proposals, this story goes, he saw his chance to close his feud with Mr. Asquith, and the very first words he uttered in his interview at Southampton showed him a staunch champion of free trade.

The Yorkshire Post says that the two big newspaper proprietors were none the less determined to turn Mr. Baldwin out of office. It explains this by pointing out that the present Premier has none of that pliancy which certain newspapers found so convenient in the old coalition days, and that he holds old-fashioned ideas as to the distance between Downing Street and Fleet Street. So, says The Post, they began that series of criticisms of the Government proposals as inadequate to which Mr. Baldwin referred in his Worcester speech as submarine torpedo attacks and sought to disheartem the Government supporters before they openly declared themselves in their Sunday issues.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express this morning turned its guns upon The London Times as a thoroughgoing supporter of the Premier. The Times, says The Express, does well to defend Mr. Baldwin, for the "unpopularity" he has achieved is due almost entirely to his conduct over the settlement of the debt to the United States. It declares he has thus bound the British public to pay the United States £40,000,000 a year, and says:

"The Times all this is, of course, magnificent. This newspaper can always be trusted to give this nation the American viewpoint, seeing that its principal proprietor was born in the United States."

TIKHON PROCLAIMS CHRISTMAS DEC. 25

HINT OF STEP TOWARD ROME

Some Russian Observers Think Solution of Difficulties Will Be a Rapprochement.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special to The New York Times.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26.—The Russian Church will celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25, new calendar. Patriarch Tikhon today issued a proclamation stating that the Council of Patriarchs in Constantinople—according to the Canons, the supreme authority of the Church—had decided to adopt the Gregorian instead of the old Julian Calendar, and that the fixed feasts of the Church would be celebrated on the same dates henceforth as in the Western world.

Easter, he says, will be celebrated on the first Sunday after the full moon following the Spring solstice, determined according to the astronomical times of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, and all movable feasts of the Church will be regulated accordingly.

Although it was issued only today, it is interesting to note that Patriarch Tikhon's proclamation is dated Oct. 1, and that the change of calendar dates, according to his ruling, from Oct. 2. The reason for this is that the Council of Patriarchs in Constantinople did not at first definitely decide to change the calendar and Tikhon after announcing it early in October found it necessary to get for the Council absolute confirmation, which was received here only a few days ago. Luckily for him, the previous announcement was not in the form of an official proclamation, which he is now able to issue under original date.

In his proclamation the patriarch indulges in a fling at "the Living Church," the reformist group here which unfrocked him last Summer before he made his peace with the Government. He points out that the change in the calendar is not made, as the reformers stated, for convenience in order to come into line with the Soviet official calendar, but according to the canonical decision of the supreme ecclesiastical authority, the Council of Patriarchs in Constantinople.

Thus vanishes one of the differences between the Eastern or Greek Church and the Western Church of Rome about which floods of ink and blood were viewed in past ages. By a curious chance the Patriarch's proclamation giving up a point over which the Churches have disputed for a thousand years was published at the moment when Rome's representative, Father Walsh, was absent from Moscow, having gone to consult his superior with regard to the difficulties which had arisen between him and the Soviet authorities.

Many independent observers of the Church situation here have thought that the ultimate solution of the Russian ecclesiastical problem would be a rapprochement between the conservative (that in the Tikhon) group and Rome in order to get from the outside support corresponding to that which the reformists claim to receive from the Soviet authorities. How far the latter claim is justified is uncertain.

By a remarkable paradox Patriarch Tikhon, standing for the old-fashioned element and the Greek Church, is traditionally opposed to a rapprochement with Rome. On the other hand, he greatly needs such support as Rome is now in a position to give. This emphasizes the importance of this first concession on the part of the Orthodox Greek Church to the Western system.

REMIT $116,000 SHIP FINE.

Liner Was Penalized for Entering Quarantine 15 Seconds Too Early.

Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran at Ellis Island was notified yesterday from Washington by the Department of Labor that the fine of $116,000, imposed upon the steamship Estonia of the Baltic-American Line for arriving in Quarantine fifteen seconds before midnight on Aug. 31, had been remitted. The Commissioner said that no reason had been cited for returning the money to the steamship company.

Edward Barnes, Assistant Solicitor of the Legal Division at the Custom House, said he understood the money would be returned to the company immediately. Officials of the line said this action was a vindication of the statement made by the Captain of the Estonia that he did not enter Quarantine until after midnight, by the ships chronometer. The company's check for $116,000 is deposited with Collector of the Port Philip Eiting.

ARRAIGNS BOTH PARTIES.

Mrs. Catt Says Candidates Are Too Small.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 26.—Speaking before an audience of women here today on "World Peace," Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York, woman suffrage leader, declared that in her opinion neither the Democratic nor the Republican Party has put forward a Presidential candidate "half big enough to fill the job."

She added, however, that she was more interested in the "what" of the coming national campaign than in the "who."

World peace, Mrs. Catt asserted, is being blocked by the attitude of the United States, and she added that the question of peace would loom large in the campaign.

REVOLT BREAKS OUT IN VERA CRUZ STATE

Armed Bands Are Reported Killing and Looting—Political Factions Restive.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—El Mundo announces that a revolt headed by the Agrarian Party has broken out in the State of Vera Cruz. An armed group, using army uniforms, is said to have entered the town of Coyol, posing as Federal troops. When the town was in their possession the Agrarians immediately started looting and killing.

El Mundo reports that in the town of Palmillas a group of armed Agrarians imprisoned one family in their own home and set the place afire. The family escaped by digging through the dirt floor to the outside.

El Mundo adds that these groups enter the towns with shouts of "Long live General Calles, our next President," and also vivas for General Jara, Federal Senator from the State of Vera Cruz.

Luis Lion, chief of the Calles supporters, is en route to Celaya to demand that President Obregon give guarantees to the Calles agents. Lion accuses the ranch owners of Vera Cruz of ill treating the followers of General Calles. The Calles followers say that unless they have complete protection they will be compelled to take up arms.

WON'T URGE EUROPE TO PAY DEBTS TO US

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Treasury officials indicated today that no action was contemplated at this time by the War Debts Commission in connection with the French or Italian debts. No date has been set for a meeting of the commission, nor has any plans been discussed to bring pressure on the allied nations which have not made funding arrangements.

In connection with the French debt it was pointed out that with the French franc at its present level of less than 6 cents, against a normal value of 19.28 cents, the difficulties facing the French Government would be increased. A demand for payment by France would probably further depress the value of the paper franc. The American Government will not accept paper francs in payment of interest or principal of the debt, but requires such payments to be made in gold.

The same situation is faced by Italy, the lira now being worth less than 5 cents, although the normal value is also 19.28 cents.

DIFFER ON ART TEMPLE.

Editor's View That It Would Be Park Invasion Is Opposed.

Plans to establish a music and art centre on the south side of Central Park at the Seventh Avenue entrance were discussed last night at a meeting in the Waldorf called by Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert and City Chamberlain Philip Berolsheimer. Nearly all of those present favored the use of the park for the purposes outlined by Mr. Berolsheimer, John Tennant, managing editor of The Evening World, opposed an invasion of the park and said that the public would not approve of it. He approved of the plan of transforming the reservoir into a large playground.

Other speakers, including Felix M. Warburg, Adolph Lewisohn, John C. Freund, Arnold Brunner and Augustus Thomas did not agree with the suggestion that the erection of the temple of art and music would mean an invasion of the park. Mr. Lewisohn said that the art centre would not be an invasion of the park because people would have a splendid view of the park from the new structure.

Mr. Brunner, who is an architect, said that in his youth the park was far uptown and that Olmsted, who designed the park, modeled his plans for a park on the outskirts of a city. Were Olmsted alive today, Mr. Brunner was confident that he would disapprove of the ideas of those who would have the park remain as originally planned. He pointed out that now the park is in the centre of the city and that with changed conditions park requirements also should be changed.

John F. Sinnott, secretary to Mayor Hylan, reported that the plan was Mayor Hylan's pet project and that if the project were approved it would hasten the Mayor's recovery.

DR. ALBERT BLOCKED IN NAMING CABINET

By CYRIL BROWN.

The Tageblatt suggests former Ambassador Hines Wilhelm's last Ambassador to China, for the Foreign Office instead of holding that place for former Chancellor Stresemann, as other papers advise. The Tageblatt reminds that Albert that Admiral von Hinse resigned, though without recall, after democratic measures upon the Kaiser, and that he is a statesman and diplomatist of great possibilities.

The Berliner am Mittag, referring to Dr. Albert's last portfolio says that President Ebert, before commissioning him with the task of forming a new Cabinet should have asked Count Bernstorff or Brockdorff Rantzau regarding public opinion in America, because if Dr. Albert's candidacy is looked upon favorably there French propaganda would not lose the chance of making the most of the unfortunate incident.

WILL INSPECT BAVARIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUNICH, Nov. 26.—It is announced that the work of the Interallied Military Control Commission is to be resumed Dec. 1, and that special measures are to be taken to ensure that in Bavaria the inspection of barracks and munition factories shall be carried out effectively. This announcement, as usual, has aroused a storm of protest and France is accused of wishing deliberately to provoke attacks upon allied officers.

Dictator von Kahr, in a proclamation issued this afternoon, declares the gold mark prices of goods in shops and restaurants are at least four times the pre-war figure, and that this cannot be justified either by the cost of new materials or by overhead expenses. Shopkeepers and others are threatened with drastic penalties if they continue to price their wares at these exorbitant rates.

The public as a whole, however, now regards the dictator's proclamations as scarcely worth the paper on which they are written, and there is little prospect that the cost of living will be affected.

The President of the Supreme Court at Leipsic has appealed to the Central Government against the action of the Bavarian authorities in refusing to surrender for trial persons implicated in the Hitler putsch.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—Adolph Hitler, the Bavarian Fascist leader, who was arrested after the failure of the recent Nationalistic "putsch" here, is reported to have gone on a hunger strike in the jail at Stadelheim, near this city, where he is being confined.

that the said deeds were not, as hereinbefore set forth, ever delivered, remaining in the possession of the said George J. Gould up to the time of his death, and although accompanying said deeds at all times were the deeds hereinbefore mentioned executed by the said Kingdon Gould in blank, and although the said Kingdon Gould recognized up until shortly before the death of the said George J. Gould that he had no interest whatever in said properties.

Deeds Taken From Vault.

"Your petitioner charges that after the death of the said George J. Gould the said deeds as aforesaid were, by the said Kingdon Gould, removed from the private vault of the said George J. Gould and by the said Kingdon Gould, after his qualification as the executor of the estate of the said George J. Gould, forwarded for recording and that the said two deeds executed in blank have been suppressed by the said Kingdon Gould.

"Your petitioner therefore charges that the said Kingdon Gould as executor has misapplied the said properties, a portion of the estate of George J. Gould, committed to his custody and has abused the trust and confidence imposed in him.

"Your petitioner therefore prays that the said Kingdon Gould may be removed as the executor of the estate of the said George J. Gould and from further performance of his duties as executor of said estate and that your petitioner may have such other and further relief as may be proper."

George J. Gillespie of 20 Vesey Street, New York City, attorney for Kingdon Gould, declined yesterday to discuss the application for his client's removal. He said that no papers had been served upon him in the proceedings.

In his decision to make the George Gould executors a party to the Jay Gould accounting litigation, Justice Davis said:

"This is an administrative action. It has not abated because of the death of George J. Gould. A section of the Surrogates' Court act permits bringing into an accounting action either as a party plaintiff or defendant the executors of a deceased executor and for proceeding as if the deceased had not died. I think the power thus conferred by the statute upon the Surrogate's Court is inherent in the Supreme Court.

"Moreover, the estate of Jay Gould, for his administration of which George J. Gould sought to account in this action, is still located within the jurisdiction of this court, and likewise personal and real property of the executor himself, so that a decree made here would be effective at least as far as these assets are concerned. It is obvious that the representatives of George J. Gould must appear.

Justice Davis also said that bringing in the executors was necessary to prevent a waste of time and a failure of justice, in view of the fact that the litigation has been going on for eight years, that the defendants include several nonresidents and more than twenty-five infants with special guardians, and that more than thirty attorneys are in the action.

Frank Gould's motion for impounding the trust fund was that any judgment against George J. Gould might be collected. In denying this motion, Justice Davis pointed out that the funds are already tied up by the Jay Gould executors, and that there was strong reason to believe that their status would not be changed for their custodians.

PROGRESSIVES OFFER A DEAL TO CUMMINS

Will Support Him for Senate President If He Quits Rail Committee.

MOVE FOR LA FOLLETTE

House Radicals Confer and Denounce Mellon's Tax Reduction Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The Radical-Progressive group in Congress was active at each end of the Capitol today, laying plans to exert its strength in both Senate and House. The outstanding developments were a practical ultimatum served on Senator Cummins of Iowa and definite preparations for a caucus on Friday to consider a legislative plan.

Through Senator Norris of Nebraska, the La Follette bloc informed Senator Cummins that it would vote for him for President pro tem. of the Senate if he would resign the Chairmanship of the Interstate Commerce Committee. This proposal was a two-edged sword, for it meant that if the Senator vacated this important post it would go to Senator La Follette under the seniority rule, and if he refused to do so the Progressives might decline to make up the majority necessary to elect him to preside over the Senate. In that case, unless the Democrats swung into line with the Republicans and made up a majority, Mr. Cummins would not be made President pro tem., and that body might be left without such an officer.

At the same time the Progressives were trying to force Senator Cummins out of the committee chairmanship the regular Republicans, represented by Senator Watson of Indiana, were trying to persuade him to retain the chairmanship and to give up the other office. Old line leaders among the Republicans fear the influence of Senator La Follette if he should be made Chairman.

Senator Cummins gave no definite reply to Senator Watson. His friends said he would think the matter over before deciding.

Progressives Confer in Secret.

Behind closed doors the House Radical-Progressives met in the office of Representative Nelson. They held extended sessions both morning and afternoon, but their deliberations were so carefully guarded that even the names of those present were refused.

Although the names of those attending the meeting were not given out, it is known that in addition to Mr. Nelson, Representatives Cooper, Frear, Schafer and Lampert of Wisconsin, Woodruff of Michigan and LaGuardia of New York were present.

The presence of Mr. LaGuardia excited some comment, but when this was brought to his attention, he replied, "Well, don't I belong here?"

Representatives Reid and Michaelson of Illinois and Fish of New York also are said to be aligned with the radical progressives.

"We are only about one-third through our program," Mr. Nelson explained, adding that Mr. Frear was working on taxation features of the legislative program to be submitted to the meeting on Friday next. Over sixty men had told him they were in sympathy with progressives principles, he declared.

The progressive group also gave out a prepared statement attacking publishers of Washington newspapers for their support of the Mellon program, and at the same time asserting that the group saw so little of merit in the Secretary's tax proposals that it would offer a substitute. The statement follows:

"The Executive Committee of the progressive organization of the House, responding to the demands for the passage of Mr. Mellon's tax proposals supported strenuously by The Washington Post and Washington Star and other agencies with criticisms against the motives and justification for any opposition to the Mellon program, offer this brief statement at this time:

"The Mellon program proposing a reduction in high surtaxes from 50 per cent. to 25 per cent., we assert will reduce Mr. Mellon's personal tax payments to the Treasury if accurate tax statements have been furnished by him and his reported income is correctly stated, to an amount ranging from $100,000 to $500,000 per year in tax savings to him.

"If Mr. Mellon's proposals could be accepted, we also assert that the tax savings to the publisher of The Washington Post, Mr. McLean, based on the same conditions affecting statements as to Mr. Mellon, would reach an annual amount of between $100,000 and $300,000 annually, according to Kline's estimates of Mr. McLean's fortune. The estimated savings by the adoption of the Mellon plan to Mr. Noyes of The Washington Star, on the same basis, would presumably reach from $50,000 to $100,000 per year or more.

"If this statement is substantially correct, it may explain the eagerness with which Secretary Mellon and Publishers McLean and Noyes of the Washington papers and others are aggressively supporting the Mellon plan of taxation and denouncing those who differ with them.

GOV. MORROW NAMED ON RAIL LABOR BOARD

Coolidge Appoints Kentuckian To Succeed R. M. Barton, Who Denies He Resigned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—President Coolidge today carried out an unfulfilled pledge of President Harding when he appointed Edwin P. Morrow, who will soon retire as Republican Governor of Kentucky, to succeed R. M. Barton, a member of the public group of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

The White House announcement of the appointment stated that Judge Barton had "resigned." A dispatch from Chicago tonight stated that Barton had not resigned, and while this may be technically true, it is not doubted here that Judge Barton has understood for a long time that he would yield the place to Governor Morrow whenever the latter was willing to accept the appointment.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Judge R. M. Barton, former Chairman of the United States Railroad Labor Board, said tonight that he had not resigned when informed that Governor Morrow of Kentucky had accepted President Coolidge's appointment to succeed him.

"I hadn't heard of Governor Morrow's appointment, and I haven't resigned," Judge Barton said.

rates on earned income is indispensable and unavoidable should the 'bonus' bill be passed, little will be accomplished in the way of tax reductions. Every one must be appreciative of the benefits to industry and business generally likely to result from a reduction of the prevailing high taxes, including the tariff as it affects many of the necessities of life.

"The expenses incident to adjusted compensation for former service men may be borne by a bond issue. The 'bonus' question should be promptly disposed of. Indeed, it has already been too long delayed. Aside from the help which this would bring to the direct beneficiaries, the passage of adjusted compensation legislation would have wholesome influence on general conditions, particularly in relieving the Government of the charge of ingratitude to our soldiers. It does not appear probable that any proposal similar to that of Mr. Mellon will be enacted, on the theory that its passage means the rejection of all compensation legislation.

"While it is not to be expected that a general revision of the tariff can be accomplished during the approaching session of Congress, many Democrats, including myself, believe that a number of features of this form of taxation should receive consideration, and that relief from them will prove gratifying and beneficial to the general public along with a judicious revision of income tax rates.

Says Congress Won't Be Stampeded.

"These subjects invite, and should receive, intelligent and fair-minded treatment, and it is hoped that the proposal of Mr. Mellon may become the basis for remedial action by Congress without stopping the lawmaking body from recognizing the claims and interest of the men who made great sacrifices during the war. The Congress will not be stampeded by the very great influences at work to make it appear that partial relief from existing tax burden can be accomplished only by denying just and generous treatment to former service men.

"Some fear that an additional bond issue might reduce the value of the outstanding obligations of this Government. Whatever might be the temporary effect, there is not the slightest likelihood of seriously or permanently impairing the security of any obligations now in existence by the adoption of any plan for adjusted compensation, and any detrimental effect upon market conditions relating to United States securities would be slight and temporary compared with the far more wholesome benefits to be derived from satisfying the millions who believe an adjusted compensation act an essential feature of the national program to do justice to service men. Legislation for disabled veterans, adequate hospitalization and compensation must be provided, whatever else may be done."

Forecasts Democratic Success.

Senator Robinson also expressed tonight the opinion that the policies to be defined by the new Congress promptly will greatly influence the national election of 1924, but that "until the sphinx in the White House breaks his protracted silence" by giving Congress his views and recommendations, it will be "impossible to anticipate with accuracy legislative issues."

"The present political prospect," said the Senator, "is encouraging to the Democrats. Our chances for success in the approaching campaign are good. They are constantly improving.

"In 1920 the Republican Party secured an overwhelming majority. This was due in large part to the unrest, dissatisfaction and discontent incident to post-war problems and conditions. The Democrats in the last campaign labored under great disadvantage. Their opponents, for the purpose of obtaining political advantage, deliberately stimulated resentment toward President Wilson and his Administration.

"They went too far and aroused ill feeling toward the Government itself. They skillfully sowed broadcast the seeds of suspicion and mistrust. And are now reaping a harvest of discontent and hatred. They denounced President Wilson and the Democratic Party for the passage of war legislation which received practically unanimous support in Congress from both Democrats and Republicans. They charged the Democrats with sole responsibility for extravagant expenditures and consequent high taxes.

"The fruits of their victory proved bitter. Republican leaders were unable substantially to reduce taxes. A comparison of the reductions made by them in Government expenses with those accomplished by the Democrats during the closing years of Mr. Wilson's administration impeached the sincerity of their pledges to economize.

"The problems to come before the approaching session of Congress are both important and difficult. They include measures relating to better provision for disabled veterans, the reduction of both internal revenues and tariff duties on certain necessities of life, consideration of transportation conditions, especially relating to freight rates as the same affect the market for staple agricultural products, the Pullman surcharge, and the disposition of Muscle Shoals.

"Of course, our foreign relations will require consideration and provoke discussion. The situation will be clarified somewhat when the President sends his message to the Congress."

Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who is one of the supporters of Senator Johnson for the nomination for President, returned today. He declined to discuss politics and would not give his views as to taxation revision. But Mr. McCormick said he would have something to say soon in the Senate about the working out of the League of Nations. His speech will be in the nature of a reply to former President Wilson's radio speech, which denounced the American policy after the war as "ignoble."

CREDIT MEN FOR TAX CUT.

Administration Committee Goes on Record Against Bonus.

Far-reaching moral benefits as well as financial betterment will result from a lessened tax burden on the country, according to resolutions adopted by the Administration Committee of the National Association of Credit Men at its first Autumn meeting held here yesterday. The committee which represents 30,000 financial executives of banking and commercial houses, pledged its support of Secretary Mellon's tax reduction plan, and also went on record in opposition to the soldier-bonus proposal.

"The effect of a reduction in Federal taxation cannot be measured alone by the much needed relief it affords to business and individuals," the resolution states. "It is certain to have a prompt moral effect upon States, counties and municipalities in their budget and taxation programs which in the immediate post-war years have been characterized by dangerous extravagance.

"In view of the far-reaching benefits that will result from an acceptance of Secretary Mellon's wise proposal, it is a counsel of folly to consider the payment of a soldiers' bonus."

The New York Employing Printers' Association last night voted unanimously to send a note of endorsement to Secretary Mellon approving his plan of income tax reduction.

Howell for Tax Cuts and Bonus.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — Senator Howell of Nebraska, in the first statement of his views since coming to Washington, said today that he did not regard tax reduction and the passage of the bonus as irreconcilable. He said he would favor railroad legislation which would do away with the minimum rate provision of the Transportation act, and also measures for relief of the farmers.

MUTUAL FAVORS IN GERMAN TREATY

Negotiations for Agreement on Commerce and Consular Rights.

JONES ACT TERMS IGNORED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Most-favored-nation treatment for the commerce of the United States is guaranteed in the draft of the new treaty of amity, commerce and consular rights which it is proposed to negotiate between the United States and Germany, the text of which was made available tonight.

The articles bearing on most-favored-nation treatment will afford the Senate the incidental opportunity of determining whether it intends to stand by the so-called discriminating duty provisions of the Jones Merchant Marine act. Under its terms the President was instructed to notify foreign nations with which we had treaties of commercial intercourse of the intention of the Government to abrogate so much of such treaties as would stand in the way of the United States giving American vessels preferential treatment by way of lower customs duties on goods shipped to this country in American bottoms.

Former President Wilson refused to carry that provision of the Jones act into effect, after being advised by the State Department that it would abrogate treaties with some twenty-three important nations and precipitate a hornet's nest of trouble. President Harding also refused to put this provision of the Jones act into effect.

The draft of the new German commercial treaty indicates that the Coolidge Administration is likewise standing by existing practice and does not contemplate putting the Jones act provision into effect.

Favored-Nation Provisions.

"Article VII.—Between the territories of the high contracting parties there shall be freedom of commerce and navigation. The nationals of each of the high contracting parties, equally with those of the most-favored nation, shall have liberty freely to come with their vessels and cargoes to all places, ports and waters of every kind within the territorial limits of the other which are or may be open to foreign commerce and navigation. Nothing in this treaty shall be construed to restrict the right of either high contracting party to impose, on such terms as it may see fit, prohibitions or restrictions of a sanitary character designed to protect human, animal or plant life, or regulations for the enforcement of police or revenue laws.

"Each of the high contracting parties binds itself unconditionally to impose no higher or other duties or conditions and no prohibition on the importation of any article, the growth, produce or manufacture, of the territories of the other than are or shall be imposed, on the importation of any like article, the growth, produce or manufacture of any other foreign country.

"Each of the high contracting parties also binds itself unconditionally to impose no higher or other charges or other restrictions or prohibitions on goods exported to the territories of the other high contracting party than are imposed on goods exported to any other foreign country.

"Any advantage of whatsoever kind which either high contracting party may extend to any article, the growth, produce or manufacture of any other foreign country, shall simultaneously and unconditionally without request and without compensation, be extended to the like article, the growth, product or manufacture of the other high contracting party.

Reciprocity in Commodities.

"All the articles which are or may be legally imported from foreign countries into ports of the United States in United States vessels may likewise be imported into those ports in German vessels, without being liable to any other or higher duties or charges whatsoever than if such articles were imported in United States vessels; and, reciprocally, all articles which are or may be legally imported from foreign countries into the ports of Germany in German vessels may likewise be imported into those ports in United States vessels without being liable to any other or higher duties or charges whatsoever than if such were imported from foreign countries in German vessels.

"With respect to the amount and collection of duties on imports and exports of every kind, each of the two high contracting parties binds itself to give to the nationals, vessels and goods of the other the advantage of every favor, privilege or immunity which it shall have accorded to the nationals, vessels and goods of a third State, and regardless of whether such favored State shall have been accorded such treatment gratuitously or in return for reciprocal compensatory treatment. Every such favor, privilege or immunity which shall hereafter be granted the nationals, vessels or goods of a third State shall simultaneously and unconditionally, without request and without compensation, be extended to the other high contracting party, for the benefit of itself, its nationals and vessels.

"The stipulations of this article do not extend to the treatment which is accorded by the United States to the commerce of Cuba, under the provisions of the commercial convention concluded by the United States and Cuba on Dec. 11, 1902, or any other commercial convention which hereafter may be concluded by the United States with Cuba, or to the commerce of the United States with any of its dependencies and the Panama Canal Zone, under existing or future laws.

"Article VIII.—The nationals and merchandise of each high contracting party within the territories of the other shall receive the same treatment as nationals and merchandise of the country with regard to transit duties, charges in respect to warehousing and other facilities, and the amount of drawbacks and bounties.

"Article IX.—No duties of tonnage, harbor, pilotage, lighthouse, quarantine or other similar or corresponding duties or charges of whatever denomination, levied in the name or for the profit of the Government, public functionaries, private individuals, corporations or establishments of any kind, shall be imposed on the imports of the territories of either country upon the vessels of the other which shall not equally under the same conditions be imposed on naval vessels. Such equity of treatment shall apply reciprocally to the vessels of the two countries respectively, from whatever place they may arrive, and whatever may be their place of destination.

Can Watch for Liquor Shipments.

Nationals of each of the high contracting parties are permitted to enter, travel and reside in the territories of the other, to exercise liberty of conscience and freedom of worship, to engage in professional, scientific, religious, philanthropic and other kinds of work without interference, and to lease, own and occupy appropriate buildings.

In case of war between either high contracting party and a third State, such party may draft for compulsory military service nationals of the other having a permanent residence within its territories and who have declared an intention to adopt its nationality, unless such individuals depart from the territories within sixty days after the declaration of war.

In these days of keen competition, the only safeguard for prosperity is a spirit of co-operation in the whole body of your employees—a spirit that keeps your normal output moving forward smoothly without the necessity for overtime.

This protection we can promise to any industry—with great profit to both employer and employees.

Executives, everywhere, have evidenced unusual interest in our booklet, "Stopping Payroll Losses." We will be glad to send any executive a copy, gratis. Simply write us on your business stationery. Please address Dept. L 10.

2 DEAD, 13 INJURED IN COAL MINE BLAST

Six Taken From Illinois Workings, 500 Feet Under Ground, May Die.

NEARLY 1,000 MEN ESCAPE

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON, Ill., Nov. 26.—Two miners were killed and thirteen injured, six of whom may die, in an explosion at the 500-foot level of No. 1 mine of the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Company, one of the largest coal mines in the world, this morning. Thirty-five men were working in the explosion zone and nearly a thousand in other sections of the workings fled to safety when they heard the blast.

The small loss of life was attributed by President Harrington to the operating methods of the company. By the use of "barrier pillars" of solid coal, fifty feet thick, the entire mine is divided into a series of small chambers, and the explosion was thus localized. Fire hazards are reduced by the fact that no wooden braces are used.

Rescue teams were organized immediately and entered the mine, bringing out the dead and the injured. The latter were removed to hospitals.

Wives and children of the miners rushed to the mine entrance when the news of the explosion reached them to await the return of the rescue crews.

Frank Waite, one of the injured, was a survivor of the Cherry mine disaster of 1909, in which scores of miners lost their lives. At that time he was entombed at the bottom of a shaft for eight days without food or water.

Superintendent Loutz announced that the damage caused by the explosion was slight and that operations would be resumed at once.

Maloney a Papal Chamberlain.

ROME, Nov. 26.—Pope Pius today appointed Andrew Maloney of Philadelphia a private papal chamberlain, a position held under three Popes by Martin Maloney, a papal marquis and a brother of the new incumbent. The appointment was made at a private audience at which the Maloney brothers presented to the pontiff a generous Peter's pence and gave him the latest news of Cardinal Dougherty and the Philadelphia Diocese.

MRS. HARDING'S TURKEY TO TRAVEL ON PULLMAN

Thanksgiving Gift of Chicago Girls' Club Will Have Compartment to Itself.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The chief Thanksgiving delight of the late President Harding was the turkey which was sent to him annually by the Harding Girl's Club of Chicago, and the spectacular manner in which the choicest of birds was transported from Chicago to where he and Mrs. Harding happened to be afforded great delight to him.

The methods of transportation have attracted nation-wide attention. In 1920 the girls sent "John Gobbler" all the way to Colon, Panama, via boat and train when the President was visiting the Canal Zone. In 1921 the turkey was an aviator and flew to Washington on a mail plane with military guard, clad in aviator costume including helmet, goggles and sweater coat. In 1922 the dinner was sent from Chicago to the White House by auto truck on a non-stop run of 30 hours.

This year the Harding Girls' Club of Wilson & Co. are sending to Mrs. Harding the finest thirty-nine-pound Illinois bronze turkey they could obtain. The bird has been fattened on chocolates and choice tidbits. He will travel in a special compartment in a Pullman car of the Erie Railroad to Marion, where members of the club at the Marion branch house of the packing firm will personally present the gift to Mrs. Harding.

WINS A PEACE CONTEST.

Dr. C. F. Thwing First in Chicago Daily News Competition.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The Chicago Daily News's contest, inaugurated a month ago, for "suggestions bearing upon a practicable plan whereby the United States may co-operate with other nations for the prevention of war," brought replies from every State and from foreign countries, many distinguished persons offering suggestions. Thirty prizes were offered.

Dr. Charles F. Thwing, President Emeritus of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, was awarded first prize of $250; Brig. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, U. S. A., Fort Sheridan, Ill., second prize of $200, and former Judge Gaetano Neale, Genoa, Italy, third prize of $100.

Many of the suggestions urged American participation in the League of Nations and World Court; many took the view that only divine power could be relied upon; a surprisingly large number held that the United States, by physical and financial power, should force its peace views upon the world; many favored an Anglo-Saxon union, while many urged educational methods.

The peace plans were not disclosed in detail without the permission of the authors, many of whom sent their plans to the Bok Peace Competition Committee.

PENNSYLVANIA CURB DEMANDED ON COAL

ons calling for action by the State and the other for Congressional action. The former called on Pennsylvania to repeal the anthracite tax; to repeal "laws now upon its statute books which limit the production of coal"; that it enact laws fixing a standard of quality and size for all coal produced and shipped out of the State, creating a commission to regulate the industry in the State and declaring the anthracite industry a public business, and asking Governor Pinchot to call a special session of the Legislature and lay these proposed measures before it.

The second Set, which contained more than twenty separate resolutions, called upon Congress to enact laws dealing with all phases of the industry and particularly to grant the Interstate Commerce Commission further powers to regulate transportation, eliminate inequalities in distribution and excess charges for transportation "and annul and all other existing evils in the trade in which the transportation companies are in any way connected or to blame." Another section proposed that Congress pass an act prohibiting all contributions for political purposes from corporations engaged in mining coal or coal transportation.

Governor Pinchot expressed criticism of the New Jersey Executive's attitude, which he said was one of "pass the buck to Pennsylvania."

Proposes to Go Ahead.

"Pennsylvania," he added, "doesn't propose to arrogate any of its power. We could perfectly well say this is our business; you've got to have coal and we'll soak you what we please. That is not what we propose to do. Pennsylvania is going ahead, anyhow. If you don't want your State to take part, that's up to you. We're going ahead to do what we can, and all we can."

Action on the Silzer resolutions was put aside in a rush of motions and suggestions, during which Governor Pinchot declared that "as long as New Jersey takes the position it does in these resolutions, it won't get very far with Pennsylvania." Finally, on the motion of E. O. Hultman, Massachusetts Fuel Administrator and delegate for Governor Cox, it was voted to adjourn subject to Governor Pinchot's call, the Governor in the meantime to have a complete record of the proposals forwarded to all the executives. Governor Pinchot indicated his intention of calling the next meeting about Dec. 13.

The proposal of Governor Preus of Minnesota received little consideration by the conference, although it will be embodied in the record for consideration by the other Governors. He proposed that the anthracite industry be made a public business in the manner that the grain elevator business was treated in Illinois, New York and North Dakota. Such action, he declared, would permit regulation of the industry and control of prices.

During the session the Massachusetts delegate presented a memorandum supported by the representatives of Governors Templeton of Connecticut and Flynn of Rhode Island, in which he declared jurisdiction over the industry rests with Pennsylvania and outside consumers "have no recognized right," except to pay prices demanded, together with what he termed "discriminatory taxes" levied by State authorities.

Pinchot Outlines Problem.

Governor Pinchot in his address said in part:

"The anthracite-using people of America are justly entitled to three things. The first is coal. The second is honest coal. The third is honest coal at a decent price. This, in a nutshell, is what I have asked you to come and consider: how to get clean anthracite to the consumer at a reasonable price.

"The settlement of the recent anthracite strike provided coal. But in the nature of things it could not assure relief from the adulteration of anthracite with rock and dirt. Neither could it assure freedom from extortionate prices. Such adulteration and such prices existed long before the strike and they exist in worse form today.

"The people are angry, and rightly so, over the long continued and steadily increasing exactions of the anthracite monopoly. Whose representatives have definitely declined to recommend that the industry shall clean its own house.

"The settlement of the strike put the wages of the miners on an equality, risks considered, with those of other similar trades. The total average increase in labor costs which it involved was 60 cents a ton. But the operators restricted themselves to no such increase. The smallest advance they made was 75 cents a ton. Some added 90 cents and a few more than a dollar.

"Although the mining the operators took before the war gave them a fair profit, to say the least, they have increased them margins far more than their costs have increased. The ten great railroad companies, who produce three-fourths of the coal, exacted a margin of 85 cents a ton in 1921—the year of depression. In the first three months of the present year these same companies exacted a margin of $1.18, and today the same companies are taking margins higher still. These figures, when compared with their margin of 38 cents per ton for the three pre-war years, supply clear proof of extortion.

Points to "Exorbitant" Profits.

"The production and distribution of anthracite is essentially a monopoly. In 1921, 93 per cent. of all the commercial tonnage was produced by forty-eight companies and 99 per cent. by seventy-four companies. Common financial arrangements are generally believed to exist between producing companies, railroads, wholesalers, and in many cases retailers as well. I reiterate my opinion that the whole combination is a hard-boiled monopoly whose prime interest in the public is that it shall consume their coal at their price.

"The profits of the operators are often utterly unreasonable. Thus, in the years 1920, 1921 and 1922 one company paid successive dividends of 80 per cent., 137 per cent. and 168 per cent., while another paid dividends of 70, 205 and 190 per cent. Such dividends are obviously unfair to the people from whose pockets they come. The margins and dividends of the anthracite industry of recent years have been far and away larger than those of any other major industry known to me in America.

"Three kinds of regulation are proposed.

"The first is for State Executives to use the power they have now. Under it they can do much to assure clean coal by publicity as to fraudulent practices. They can ascertain and tell the people what extortions are being practiced and by whom. They can give information as to fuel economy and as to substitutes. They can act jointly, by appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission, in securing adequate consideration of anthracite freight rates.

"As a part of what Pennsylvania can do, it has been urged that she should repeal her tax on anthracite, repeal the certification law, under which only qualified men can mine anthracite, abolish royalties and prevent the sale of unclean coal.

"Pennsylvania has already vigorously attacked the problem of rock and dirt in anthracite and is making public the names of operators who are guilty. The effect has already been strongly felt.

Defends Pennsylvania Tax.

"The Pennsylvania anthracite tax amounts to 1½ per cent. on the cost of the coal at the mine, or on domestic sizes between 11 and 12 cents per ton. The domestic consumer pays more dollars for his coal than ntho State takes cents for its tax.

"The next way of securing honest coal at decent prices to the consumer is by Federal action.

"There are certain things the Federal Government can do. Among these are to establish and enforce in interstate commerce standards for clean coal and for sizes; to license all who are engaged in interstate trade in anthracite; to authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to deny cars to profiteers and to investigate and publish the facts.

"The best legal opinion does not establish beyond controversy the right of the United States to fix prices, establish uniform accounts, examine books or require reports in the anthracite industry. But there is no doubt whatever that each State, through its police power, can do all of these things if it chooses. Whether the coming Congress can or cannot does or does not give the consumer clean anthracite at reasonable prices, there is another necessary remedy. I refer to the treaty or compact between the States authorized by the Federal Constitution.

"If the anthracite-using States will, under this constitutional provision, agree among themselves upon the form of regulation which will best work to the advantage of their people, a compact to establish a joint commission to enforce it will be both lawful and effective when approved by the Congress of the United States. Such a commission, pooling the police powers of the States concerned, could, in co-operation with Federal authority over interstate commerce, completely regulate the whole industry from the mine to the consumer's bin. We have here a powerful weapon, altogether capable of securing justice for the consumer in all the anthracite-using States.

"In addition to what each State may do individually and as soon for the relief of the present situation, I desire to lay the following specific recommendations before you:

"First, that a committee be appointed at this meeting to prepare for the approval of the Governors of all the States in which anthracite forms an important part of the people's fuel, and subsequently lay before Congress, a draft of the Federal legislation I have here suggested, or such modification of it or substitute for it as the Governors may agree upon.

"Second, that a committee be appointed at this meeting to prepare for the Governors of the anthracite-using States a suggested form of compact, as authorized by the Federal Constitution, together with a statement of its legal basis, economic purpose, and the method of procedure under it, with a view to immediate action."

FULLER JUROR INDICTED.

Renfigs Accused of Perjury in Saying He Didn't Know Brokers.

An indictment charging perjury was returned by the Grand Jury yesterday against Charles W. Renfigs, who was a juror in Judge Nott's part of General Sessions, in the trial last March of Brokers Edward M. Fuller and William Frank McGee for bucketing. Renfigs, it was alleged in the indictment, swore that he did not know either of the brokers or their counsel, William F. Fallon and Eugene F. McGee.

It was alleged that Renfigs knew Fuller and McGee well, and that he had dined with their lawyer, Fallon, before he was called as a juror at their trial on a bucketing indictment in General Sessions, and which resulted in a disagreement by the jury. His lawyer promised to appear with him in court this morning.

Edward J. McManus was arrested soon after a jury had been called for the fourth trial of the brokers, and which terminated when they pleaded guilty on an indictment charging him with attempting to bribe a juror through the juror's secretary. District Attorney Banton said yesterday that both men will be called for trial soon.

BROOKLYN UNION GAS PLAN.

Stockholders of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company will meet on Dec. 15 to act on a proposal to change the stock from the present 300,000 of $100 par to 600,000 shares of no par value. The exchange would be on the basis of two shares of no par stock for every one share of $100 par stock now held. There are 180,000 shares now outstanding.

Directors also suggest that of the new stock, 40,000 shares be reserved for conversion and retirement of $2,000,000 of outstanding 7 per cent. convertible debentures, on the basis of two shares of the new stock for each $100 unit of the debentures. An additional 111,580 shares of new stock, under the plan, will be reserved for conversion and retirement of an issue of $5,578,000 of 7 per cent. convertible debentures floated in 1922, the conversion privilege again to be two shares of new stock for each $100 unit of debentures.

Says Few Protestants Die in Chair.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 26.—"Very few Protestants come to a tragic death in the electric chair," declared Dr. A. N. Peterson, Protestant chaplain of Sing Sing Prison, before 500 members of the First Presbyterian Church here. Dr. Peterson attributes this to the strict moral training Protestant churches seek to inculcate into the youth of the country.

SYNOD HOUSE GETS A GIFT OF $100,000

Anonymous Benefactor Also Promises $5,000 a Year to Cathedral Building.

MANNING CONCEALS NAME

Announcement Made at Carnegie Hall Meeting by Bishop—Secretary Davis Speaks.

Bishop William T. Manning announced in Carnegie Hall last night at the annual Bishops' Meeting, that an anonymous benefactor has provided an endowment of $100,000 for Synod House, within the close of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Synod House is a Gothic stone building at the corner of Amsterdam Ave. nue and 100th Street, which contains a large auditorium used for all diocesan meetings and offices for the Bishop, suffragan bishops and others of the Episcopal staff. It was erected ten years ago jointly by the late J. P. Morgan and the late W. Bayard Cutting. Bishop Manning read from the letter of the donor as follows:

"Pursuant to my interesting talk with you with reference to the Synod House, its care and upkeep, and the fact that there has been no provision made for the same, it is my purpose and pleasure (and I consider it my duty) to contribute toward the support of this very important building. Therefore I pledge $5,000 a year for the purpose during my life. I am also making provision for $100,000 to be laid away and invested by your organization for the permanent upkeep of this building, which I consider is as important as any other branch of the great cathedral institution, which is to be the pride of this country in the way of church edifices, and particularly the pride of New York as one of its great institutions."

Cannot Reveal His Name.

The announcement was received with applause. "My only regret is I am not allowed to tell you the name of the generous giver, so I must leave you to guess who he is, and I think some of you can," said Dr. Manning.

Carnegie Hall was crowded when the meeting opened. The speakers included James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor; General Ballington Booth of the American Volunteers; the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Reinheimer, Suffragan-Bishop Elect of Tokio and President of St. Paul's University, Tokio; Judge Augustus M. Hand, and Henry Goddard Leach, President of the Episcopal Church Club, under whose auspices the meeting was held.

Mr. Davis spoke on "Religion in the Nation's Life." He told of working in a steel mill near Pittsburgh after arriving in this country as an immigrant at the age of 7. "I used to sing hymns to my brother as I was going to work at 3 o'clock in the morning and he was returning," he said. "That is what gave us courage to do our work.

"We are becoming too modern today. We are becoming so modern that some of us have even tried to modernize God. To the three R's I would add a fourth—Religion. It is to America's eternal credit that our public men do have faith in God."

Mission of the Cathedral.

General Booth said the Cathedral stands as a temple of God and man. "But if I know anything of the mind of those who have planned to rear the colossal structure of St. John the Divine," he said, "it was not merely that it should be erected to call forth the admiration of those who should gaze upon it. Judging from my standpoint, as engaged in a home-missionary endeavor, the best answer is that it is a missionary agency. It has proved, and is destined to prove, a missionary force to the unchurched and the unthinking visitor."

FARLEY BACK FROM ABROAD.

Tells Need of Definite Policy for American Shipping.

Edward P. Farley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, who returned to New York yesterday on the Leviathan, following a visit of more than three weeks' duration to the Continent and Great Britain, said:

"It has been possible for me to study the problems confronting the Shipping Board and American shipping in general at first hand during my trip abroad, and also to familiarize myself with the personnel of the foreign organization. I expect to make a report to the President and the Shipping Board covering my observations.

"Of one thing particularly I have become more strongly convinced than ever. There must be further assurance given that the American merchant marine is to be permanent. The uncertainty which exists today is detrimental to our own organization and to private American shipping interests. It prevents in large measure greater success in obtaining cargoes both in America and in Europe for the American ships, and in obtaining passengers for our liners, particularly in Central Europe, where reports are continually spread that the American lines are only temporary and may go out of business even in the interval between the time emigrants from these countries purchase their tickets on American ships and the date of sailing.

"Without a definite policy the American merchant fleet is like a ship at sea without a rudder. It is my hope that a definite policy may be adopted and speedily.

"In all conferences abroad, both with officials of the Shipping Board and with foreign shipping men, I laid emphasis on the fact that the American fleet is on the seas to stay.

"The uncertainty of the present situation and the future of the American fleet has been upsetting to foreign shipping companies also. They would rather know definitely what part the United States intends to play in the overseas trade, and what is to be done with our tonnage, than to remain continually in the dark, with a change in the situation likely to happen any day.

"All of my observations have led me, therefore, to the conclusion that there must be no further delay in the establishment of a definite operating and policy which will give the assurance that we wish to give—the assurance that American is to maintain its overseas merchant fleet and to participate, as it must from the standpoint of the interests of all American producers and importers, in the overseas carrying trade."

Guaranteed at 5½%

You can get the best type of first mortgage guaranteed at 5½% on Kings, Queens and Bronx properties. If you wish loans on Manhattan properties it is not wise to seek more than 5% guaranteed. Any higher rate takes the mortgage out of the Savings Bank class.

We have guaranteed mortgages at both rates for sale at all of our offices and they are equally good. The rate differs because borrowers outside of Manhattan generally have to pay a half per cent higher rate.

The resources of the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company to make good the guarantee amount to $13,000,000.

REVEALS LONG TRAIL OF FRAUD ON ALIENS

THOUSANDS FALL VICTIMS

State Investigators Told of Money and Labor Swindles Worked on Immigrants.

How thousands of immigrants are enmeshed in a net of swindlers extending from Europe to the interior of the United States was described yesterday at the hearing of the Joint Legislative Committee to Investigate Exploitation of Immigrants by John J. Pignataro, special investigator for the State Department of Labor.

Pignataro, under examination by Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo, Chairman of the committee, declared that 1,200 steamship sub-agencies, employment agencies, banks and foreign exchange dealers in this State were defrauding immigrants by exchange swindles, employment charges, collection of pay and in many other ways. He testified that he had found a chain of swindlers stretched from European ports to this city, and then to Albany, Amsterdam, Syracuse, Rochester, Utica, Buffalo, Batavia, Rome, Dunkirk and Jamestown and other up-State places.

"Barber shops, old-time saloons—now called soft drink establishments—grocery stores and even private houses I found used by the swindlers," said Mr. Pignataro. "Everywhere they preyed on the ignorance of the foreigners. Labor camp foremen, factory workers, ditch diggers and plain grafters were conducting foreign exchange businesses."

Asked by Senator Cotillo to describe the frauds that he had traced to Italian and Polish ports, Mr. Pignataro said:

"Well, in the first place I found from questioning those who had arrived here that they had been swindled in the matter of shipping their baggage. The agents in the foreign ports would charge them the regular baggage rate. Then they would ask them what money they had. If they showed American money they would be told that the United States Government would not admit them unless they carried the currency of their own country. The traveler would then change his American money, already exchanged at considerable expense, back into money of his own country. They would give him the address of one of these agencies here to exchange it back to American money, and so he would be swindled both ways on the deal."

Immigrants frequently were shipped to places other than those where they wished to go in order to get them into the hands of swindlers, the Labor Department agent said.

A representative from the office of Bernard Shientag, State Industrial Commissioner, said that he would produce evidence today showing conditions even worse than those described by Pignataro.

Edward A. Richards, Business Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the State Savings Bank Association, told the committee that his association knew of enormous losses to immigrants through foreign exchange frauds. He said that he thought his committee should get authority to act under the State Banking Department.

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 this morning.

STEWART BROWNE QUIZZED.

It Develops His Charge Against City Employes Was Only Hearsay.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, appeared before Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield yesterday afternoon to explain a remark he had made recently before the Board of Aldermen. Mr. Browne had said there were many persons who were drawing salaries from the city as employes who were rendering no service whatsoever. He had cited one case in particular where a man, supposedly an employe in one of the county courts, had been drawing a salary and "had not done a stroke of work in seven years."

When Commissioner Hirshfield asked him who this man was he said that he did not know his name, nor did he know where he was employed. This information had been supplied him by a friend about a year ago, but he had not investigated it further, he said.

SWAM EAST RIVER TO FLEE.

Boy, Caught After Numbing Feat, Is Returned to Welfare Island.

Frank Blaia, 15, of 509 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan, was taken from St. John's Hospital in Long Island City to Welfare Island yesterday after he had recovered from the shock of submersion in the chilling water of the East River, which he swam after midnight Sunday in an effort to escape. He had been a patient in the narcotic ward at the Island, where his term was nearly ended.

Eluding the keepers, he dived into the water in his pajamas and made the Astoria shore. Nearly frozen, he ran barefooted to a Vernon Avenue pool parlor, customers of which notified the police, and Patrolman Thomas F. Normoyle put the boy under arrest.

The good uses to which a gateleg table can be put, are practically unlimited. This one has a convenient drawer, is 42"x48", and is priced $46, which is little indeed, for solid mahogany.

THE SCREEN

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED, with Percy Marmont, Jacqueline Logan, David Torrence, Sigrid Holmquist, Mabel Van Buren, Luke Cosgrave, Peggy Schaffer, Winston Miller, Mary Jane Irving and others, directed by George Melford; "Riesenfeld's Classical Jazz"; a Harold Lloyd revival, "I Do." At the Rialto.

Viewing the latest screen version of Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed," which is being shown this week at the Rialto, causes one's mind to be flooded with memories of the days when one first picked up the book and sought a secluded retreat, to read undisturbed. One thought of the different persons to whom one had the great pleasure of lending the volume, and afterward, in discussions about it and the young author, one remembered their tears for poor, blind Dick Heldar and their hot words for flint-hearted Maisie. Over a pipe one chatted of dear, old Torpenhow and of Dick Heldar telling the wicked old publisher that the rings around his eyes denoted but a brief life with such a weak heart. There were the girls who always talked of "The Light That Failed" and "The Barrack Room Ballads." Kipling was so wholesome in all his stories, and one formed friendships on the strength of the admiration for the author and the love of "The Light That Failed."

Any film that can make one think this way is good. There may be faults in this production, and the characters are not all as one pictured them, but after a while one accepts them just as they are, working out the same story in lights and shadows that one pictured years ago from the black type.

Knowing the difficulties connected with the producing of such a narrative, and also the remoteness of any great financial returns, we hasten to say that the director, George Melford, has made a wholesome and sincere photoplay from this story.

Percy Marmont, who we will confess is not our mental picture of Dick Heldar, gives such a splendid and compelling performance that one is not in the least vexed at the difference in physical build. He is excellent in the sequences when he is suddenly attacked with blindness. The scenes where the painting, on which he has been working while sight lasted, is uncovered and shown to Torpenhow and others when Dick is sightless have been wrought with great artistry. There is the picture, smudged and mutilated by Bessie Broke—bitter because Dick had prevailed upon Torpenhow to get out of the girl's way. There is a lot of real drama in this part of the film.

The production opens on the sands of an English seaside place, where Maisie and Dick, as children, play with the goat, Amomma. Winston Miller, who has the part of young Dick, is quite capable, but why he has to wear such an abominable pair of trousers and a Glengarry cap we can't fathom.

The sudden success that came to Dick in Mme. Binat's café in Port Said is faithfully pictured. One sees Dick, laboring but gloomy, suddenly in the seventh heaven when asked to draw for an English paper what he sees of the fighting in the Sudan.

Jacqueline Logan, a pretty girl, emulates Jeanne Eagels in her makeup as Bessie. She has the white-topped button shoes and the short skirt. Miss Logan plays this part quite well, but undoubtedly she could do better. David Torrence impersonates Torpenhow, and except for his choice of suits he is sympathetic. But such clothes as he wears are not congruous with a monocle. The policeman's helmet is not the proper shape, and as usual the player sticks it on the back of his head. There are a number of subtitles in this production which would be ten times more effective if they were chopped down or a few of the last words cut out.

Of course there is a happy ending to the film, but it is well done. Dick is not taken back to the war. He is rescued from his pathetic state by Maisie, played by Sigrid Holmquist, a player who never ought to have been cast in this rôle. Miss Holmquist, with a permanent wave, is not acceptable as a Maisie of the days when such tampering with the hair was unknown. The argument to this would be that the producers have modernised the story. They have in some instances and not in others. We noticed that in the sequences when Dick is blind he appears to be deaf as well, the director not having made allowance for the keen hearing of the ordinary sightless man. But, after all, it is a splendid entertainment in which Mr. Melford has taken advantage of the big situation, even if he has overlooked certain little details of the locale of the narrative.

A Film Farrago.

THE DAY OF FAITH, with Eleanor Boardman, Tyrone Power, Raymond Griffith, Wallace MacDonald, Ford Sterling, Charles Conklin, Ruby Lafayette, Jane Mercer, Edward Martindel, Winter Hall, Emmett King, Jack Curtis, Frederick Vroom, John Curry, Henry Herbert, Myles McCarthy, Robert Dudley, Mattie Peters, Frances Halton and others, adapted from the story by Arthur Somers Roche, directed by Tod Browning; Schubert's "Ave Maria," Miss Florence Mulholland; Capitol grand organ. At the Capitol.

"The Day of Faith," the film feature at the Capitol this week, has a theme similar to that of "The Miracle Man," which met with tremendous success about three years ago. This new production was adapted by June Mathis from a story by Arthur Somers Roche and directed by Tod Browning. Concerning certain weaknesses in "The Day of Faith," it is naturally problematical whether the fault lies with Miss Mathis or Mr. Browning, but, judging from the tenor of some sequences it seems as if the director lost track of the thread of the narrative in his eagerness and enthusiasm to inculcate certain situations. Mr. Browning has certainly not succeeded in injecting the same splendid suspense in this production as did the late George Loan Tucker in "The Miracle Man."

It is assumed that Raymond Griffith and Ford Sterling have their proper places in certain screen productions, but in this film they appear to be miscast. Mr. Griffith plays the rôle of the man who eventually becomes the hero, and his chief fault is that he never appears sincere. He has the rôle of the star reporter on a newspaper owned by Michael Anstell (Tyrone Power) and is described as an individual with a limp in his foot and his soul. He is assigned to write a story against Jane Maynard (Eleanor Boardman), ridiculing her religious activities. The girl's motto is "My Neighbor Is Perfect."

The saturnine Tom Barnett (Mr. Griffith) wheedles information from Jane, but is suddenly impelled to go to the rescue of a little girl. Instantly the lifelong limp leaves him, and he crumples over in a fainting spell. Anstell comes to see him when he is in bed, but because Anstell has no faith in what the young man tells him concerning his cure the limp returns.

Ford Sterling has the rôle of a burglar, Montreal Sammy. He is splendidly introduced, for in the first scenes one sees the Twentieth Century crashing through the upper New York State, and a title informs us that a character of international repute is aboard the train. Then Montreal Sammy is shown being caught by the conductor. He afterward robs the home of a man who believes that such burglars would be good citizens if they had an equal chance with other persons. Montreal Sammy therefore, after being caught, is permitted to go free. But he is vindictive, and enters Jane Maynard's home, where the girl's father is very ill. The old man dies as a result of excitement, and in spite of this Jane finally forgives the crook, who is one of the working pillars of her mission.

There are many ramifications connected with this story in a rambling way, and instead of the newspaper owner's son finally winning Jane's hand it is the former limping newspaper reporter who is shown holding hands with Jane in the last scene. This picture is a good illustration of the importance of a coherent narrative, and although it may have its entertaining moments the production is a tangled mess.

FINDS RENT CRISIS IS A MORAL ISSUE

SAYS STATE MUST ACT

Declares Children Are Exposed to Influences That Cause Many Family Tragedies.

The inability of parents to change their homes so that their children may escape the influences of evil companionship, illustrated by twenty typical cases selected at random from hundreds on file in the Children's Court, indicates the need for an early solution of the housing crisis, according to Justice Edward F. Boyle of the Children's Court, who forwarded a memorandum yesterday to State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag.

Commissioner Shientag said that none of the recent housing hearings developed anything so tragic as Judge Boyle's data showing the handicap under which children have been placed though inability of parents to change their environment. He said it was an amazing document and a severe indictment of present housing conditions which should arouse citizens to the necessity for prompt action.

Judge Boyle, a lifelong New Yorker and a former member of Governor Smith's Reconstruction Commission, said that his observation showed how high rents and the shortage of proper housing accommodations have brought about conditions which end in tragedies for many families.

The twenty cases tell of the menace to girls when strangers are taken into the home to help pay the rent, the contraction of the drug habit by young children, the disappearance of common standards of decency and the insanitary conditions under which many families live. Back of each story, says Judge Boyle, is the hopeless struggle of fathers and mothers to get children out of the unwholesome environments, an ambition that is baffled in almost every instance by the inability to pay higher rents.

Judge Boyle said further:

"Families are 'doubled up' in small apartments to an extent which was never before experienced in this city. Some of the results of this practice are too shocking to describe. The inevitable result in general is a serious lowering of moral standards.

"It seems to me, private enterprise having failed utterly, that the time for temporizing has gone by and that the matter must be faced fairly and squarely by the State itself, or by the city under authority from the State. Far from debating emergency rent laws, a question which it seems to me is outside the realm of debate, we should be discussing what manner of legislation, what means shall be employed by the State to provide for relief of the present crisis and for a permanent program which will insure to the masses of our people, which includes the so-called 'white-collar' man, decent, sanitary accommodations at a reasonable rental."

CLEARS UP ORIGIN OF 'YOUNG VISITERS'

Swinnerton, Here on a Visit, Insists Daisy Ashford Wrote It at the Age of 9.

HE GOT BARRIE'S PREFACE

Novel Published Twenty Years After It Was Penned Brought Romance to Fruition.

The mists that have surrounded the origin of "The Young Visiters" and that have almost made Daisy Ashford a legendary figure while attributing her work to Sir James M. Barrie, who wrote the preface, were dissipated yesterday by Frank Swinnerton, the British novelist, who arrived from England several days ago.

In the office of his publishers, George H. Doran & Co., 244 Madison Avenue, Mr. Swinnerton described the passage of the manuscript from the hands of the then Miss Ashford to the printer.

It was in his capacity as reader for Chatto & Windus, London publishers, that a friend of Daisy Ashford placed the manuscript in his hand, said Mr. Swinnerton. The book, penciled in a childish scrawl, was written by Daisy Ashford at the age of 9 and rescued from a trunk twenty years later.

Mr. Swinnerton showed it to friends who roared with laughter. He took it to Sir James, who thought it "a tremendous lark" but declined to write a preface. He suggested three names, but Mr. Swinnerton finally won him over. The result was 3,000 words from the pen of Sir James, an income to Miss Ashford of $100,000 from the sale of 300,000 copies of the book, and the refusal of a chuckling world of readers to believe that a pen other than that of Barrie wrote the book.

At the time of publication Miss Ashford was engaged to be married to James Devlin, but they possessed no funds to buy the farm they coveted. The royalties from the book enabled the couple to be married and to purchase the farm and stock it. A new arrival in the Devlin family is heralded as a "young visiter."

"But the report still persists that Barrie wrote the book," commented Mr. Swinnerton. "The other day A. G. Gardiner poked me in the ribs and said that of course Barrie didn't write it and then he laughed.

Mr. Swinnerton thought it "quite ridiculous" for a London judge to sentence the publisher of Town Topics to jail for four months because he printed excerpts from Sherwood Anderson's "Many Marriages." In his opinion, Mr. Anderson was a man of great ability, aiming to pioneer in a field that is beyond the present day form of the accepted novel, but he thought that Mr. Anderson lacked humor and had not quite "grasped the nettle."

English readers did not take to Sinclair Lewis's "Main Street," according to Mr. Swinnerton, but they have been eagerly reading "Babbitt." They could not quite understand the first-named book, he said, but they accepted "Babbitt" as "a great comic picture."

Mr. Swinnerton, who declared he had crept into journalism through the back door of book publishing, has written dramatic criticisms and book reviews for The Manchester Guardian. He is on a three months' visit, during which arrangements will be made for publishing a complete set of his books. His latest novel is "Young Felix."

Ten Days for Insulting a Woman.

A sentence of ten days in the Workhouse for insulting a woman was imposed yesterday on Jester Kirkley, a horse-trainer, 23 years old, of 8 West Eighty-fourth Street. Mrs. Anne Massey of 18 West Eighty-second Street complained that Kirkley insulted her as she passed his store last Friday.

Who Is Today's Henry Ward Beecher?

The greatest preacher of his time could be heard by only the handful of people who gathered in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

So marvelous is the virility and the mental alertness of this great orator that his name has become a household word in every home in the Metropolitan broadcasting area.

Sunday after Sunday hundreds of thousands of people set aside the hours between 3:30 and 5.30 to listen to his stimulating words and join with the congregation in singing the old-time hymns.

On Sunday mornings from the pulpit of the most fashionable Episcopalian church in New York and the largest Presbyterian church of this city, often from the rostrum where a rabbi of international fame delivers his discourses, there is carried into the homes of those who own Radio Sets, with clearness and distinctness, every spoken word of these splendid leaders, as well as the complete church service of song and worship.

The Westinghouse Radiola Grand represents the highest achievement in Radio receiving apparatus. Above all, it is extremely simple to operate. The entire set—batteries, tubes and loud speaker—is cabinet in a beautiful case of mahogany, and it needs no outside wires of any kind.

HAYNES-GRIFFIN offer you a safe and sane plan by which you can secure a Radio on seven days' free trial and a year's guaranteed service.

The HAYNES-GRIFFIN Plan gives you the privilege of returning the set and getting your money back if it proves in any way unsatisfactory.

Could there be a fairer and squarer business proposition?

FORBES ON RECORD AS ARMY DESERTER

WON HONORABLE DISCHARGE

Was Restored Without Trial After Apprehension and Rose to Be a Sergeant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—War Department records turned over by Secretary Weeks to the Senate committee investigating the Veterans Bureau today show that at one time Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former Director of the Bureau, was dropped from the rolls of the army as a deserter, it was stated at the department today.

The records show, it was stated, that while Forbes absented himself from the army without leave and was dropped as a deserter, he was later apprehended, restored to duty without trial, completed his term of enlistment after attaining the rank of first-class sergeant, and was discharged with the character of "excellent." His service was described as "honest and faithful."

The service record of Forbes, as summarized by War Department officials, shows that he enlisted in the army as a private in March, 1900, at Boston, Mass. Some two months later, in May of that year, he wa dropped from the army records for desertion. When dropped he was serving at Fort Myer, Va., as a first-class private in the Signal Corps. He was apprehended and, upon authority of the department commander, was restored to duty without trial. During the World War, he was commissioned as a Major in the Reserve Corps of the Signal Corps, and served overseas with the Forty-first and Thirty-third Divisions. In October, 1918, he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

According to War Department officials, the Department Commander had full authority to restore Forbes to duty without trial if he saw fit. The provision of the army regulations dealing with this point reads as follows:

"Paragraph 143—A deserter will not be restored to duty without trial, except by authority competent to order his trial. Such restoration, being ordered only in case the desertion is admitted, does not remove the charge of desertion or relieve the soldier from any of the forfeitures attached to that offense; he must make good the time lost by desertion, refund the reward and expenses paid for apprehension and delivery, and forfeit pay while absent. The same authority is competent to set aside a charge of desertion as having been erroneously made, and his order to this effect operates to remove the charge of desertion and all stoppages and forfeitures arising therefrom."

War Department officials explained that there is no question of further action against Forbes by the department, since his reinstatement and honorable discharge removes any cause for prosecution which might have existed.

Members of the Senate committee decline to state what will be done by that body with the facts furnished by the War Department. When the hearings were in progress some effort was made to bring before the committee and to incorporate into the record various facts concerning Colonel Forbes's service record, but these were ruled out on the ground of irrelevancy, since the investigation was concerned primarily with Forbes's actions while at the head of the bureau.

Work is now progressing on the first draft of the report of the committee, which is being prepared by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan of New York, general counsel, in conjunction with members of the committee. The completed draft is expected in about two weeks.

BOOTH HOME FIRST IN COLLEGIATE RUN

Johns Hopkins Harrier Captures I. C. A. A. A. A. Cross-Country Championship.

SMITH LEADS FRESHMEN

Takes Yearling Race, With 1927 Team Prize Going to Penn State, at Van Cortlandt.

Crowning a year of brilliant competition with what was, perhaps, the best race of his career, Verne Booth, Johns Hopkins University distance running star, yesterday captured the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America cross-country championship in the fifteenth running of the collegiate hill and dale title chase, held over a new six-mile course in Van Cortlandt Park.

The trimly built Baltimore collegian, crouching slightly against a southeast wind and running with a stride which showed that he was unaffected after his race over the two-lap course, dashed across the finish line amid the cheers and hand-clapping of a crowd of more than 2,000, the winner of the title by a margin of about 150 yards over J. G. Bright, Carnegie Tech harrier, who finished second. H. W. Raymond of Maine was the third athlete to cross the finish line, finishing about fifty yards back of Bright and just a few strides ahead of A. S. Hillman, a teammate, who came home in fourth position. E. P. Case, wearing the orange of Syracuse, finished fifth, the lead-off man on a squad of Salt Lake collegians which showed the way to thirteen rival teams in the struggle for the team title.

Booth covered the course in 32 minutes 10 seconds, a time performance which will be regarded as a record inasmuch as it was the first race over the new trail. Only once before has a hill and dale event been held over the intercollegiate course and this was a club handicap race in which the fastest time recorded was 32:33. Bright finished in 32:43. Raymond gained third place in 32:54 and Hillman was fourth a second later. Case finished fifth in 32:58.

Syracuse's well-balanced team carried off the team championship for the second successive year with the low winning score of 58 points. The Blue and White harriers of Columbia University pressed their up-State rivals hard for this honor, but failed because the team lacked the balance and strength of the Orange athletes. The Morningside Heights collegians finished second, with 66 points, just eight tallies behind the victorious team. Harvard's Crimson squad was third, with 100 points, and Maine fourth, with 116 markers. Far down in the list of college finishing full teams was Cornell, once unbeatable in cross-country, Jack Moakley's lads finished eleventh, with 262 points, showing the way only to Rutgers, New York University and City College, which took up the rear in the team title struggle.

Smith Runs Steadily.

The fourth annual running of the freshman championship, run as the preliminary to the varsity event, was captured by Mal Smith, Yale harrier, who set the pace for the greater part of the way. The Eli yearling covered the three-mile journey, which carried the youngsters around one lap of the two-lap varsity course, in 16 minutes 22 seconds. This time, like that of Booth in the varsity event, will stand as a record, since it was the first freshman race over the new course.

Smith scored his victory impressively. He finished with an advantage of about 60 yards on R. R. Fouracres, Penn State harrier, who just managed to snatch the runner-up position from C. Lies, Pittsburgh runner. G. Harris of Penn State, A. M. Briggs of Yale and G. Kerr of Pittsburgh followed close on each other's heels in that order.

The freshman team title went to the harriers of Penn State for the second successive year. The State College cubs scored a hollow victory, finishing the chase with the low winning tally of 40 points. Yale was second with 86 and Pittsburgh finished third with 109. Cornell's yearlings performed more creditable than the varsity squad, finishing fourth in the team battle with 128 points.

In scoring his victory Booth showed his mettle to an even 100 rivals, the survivors in a field of 108 college harriers, representing seventeen colleges and universities, who started in the chase. The finest-footed Baltimore collegian literally raced Elmer McLane, Pennsylvania harrier; Ed Kirby, Cornell's hope, and Howard Dykeman of Carnegie Tech into the ground. McLane struggled courageously with every ounce of his strength to live up to expectations—to give Booth a fight for the title. But the Johns Hopkins star easily beat off the Red and Blue harrier with a pace which both discouraged and defied dangerous contention.

Kirby Weakens.

Kirby and Dykeman likewise suffered under the pace of the Baltimorean, as did also Arthur Fricker, Massachusetts Tech harrier, who was regarded as something of a "dark horse." McLane finished seventh, Kirby came home twenty-seventh, Fricker finished forty-second, and Dykeman, most disappointing of all, finished next to last.

The Baltimore collegian gained the year position at about a mile and one-half. He held to that position, racing over the course with an easy, sure-footed stride. McLane clung tenaciously to his rival's heels as they ascended the hill on the northern end of the course and for the rest of the first lap, but when the race was half over it was evident the Red and Blue harrier was weakening. At three and one-half miles Booth was in front by thirty yards. Bright had moved into second position, fifty in front of McLane. Kenneth Wills of Syracuse and Burdette Lewis of Swarthmore followed in that order, about twenty-five yards ahead of the main body of the field.

Rounding the turn on the short run to the railroad trestle, McLane quickened his stride and moved into second position, but before the trestle was reached Bright was running stride for stride with the Red and Blue harrier and kept this gait until the second ascent of the north hill was started. Here McLane was stretched out and lost ground. Bright set sail for the flying Booth, but the Carnegie Tech harrier was not up to the task of overhauling the leader and Booth continued on to victory, picking up ground steadily.

The victory of Smith in the freshman class came after a brilliant effort on the part of the Yale harrier. He jumped into the lead when the race had progressed half a mile and held the van position throughout, setting a pace which frustrated the challenges of his rivals. Evidence of the pace set by Smith and of the spirited efforts his rivals made to overhaul the Eli freshman was furnished at the finish line when many of the youngsters collapsed after completing the course. The distress of the athletes, however, was only temporary, for willing hands gathered each youngster as he finished and walked him around until he had recovered from the effects of the three-mile chase.

New Cross-Country Course Pleases Chairman Kirby

Gustavus T. Kirby, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the I. C. A. A. A. A., yesterday expressed complete satisfaction with the new course over which the intercollegiate cross-country championship was conducted at Van Cortlandt Park, and declared his confidence in the acceptance of the new trail by the Amateur Athletic Union for its future championship races. "I am immensely pleased with the course and was impressed with the condition of the athletes as they finished today's race," said Chairman Kirby. "The new course provides a cross-country test without any danger of interfering with the development of distance runners. The college coaches favored the new course, and I am sure that the course which was covered today will be accepted soon by the A. A. U. as the most appropriate route for A. A. U. cross-country races."

UNITED STATES TAKES 5,000

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—The French Olympic Games Committee already has hung up the "standing room only" sign at the Colombes Stadium, although the official opening of the 1924 Olympic Games still is seven months away.

The stadium provides accommodations for 70,000 spectators. There will be 20,000 reserved seats, divided evenly among the two covered stands on each side of the track, known as "official," and the "marathon" stands. The remaining 50,000 persons will be accommodated with standing room at both ends of the bowl and at the turns.

The American Olympic Committee has requested 5,000 seats for American spectators; Great Britain has asked for a similar number, while Sweden and Italy each have requested 1,500 seats. Virtually all of the remaining 7,000 seats have been reserved by the smaller nations, leaving hardly any for the French committee to dispose of to French sport lovers.

The reservations must be officially confirmed by the various Olympic Committees by May 1, so that any seats not spoken for may be put on sale. The present plans of the French committee are that seats retained for the various committees will be distributed evenly in different quarters of the stands so that no nation may have a monopoly of any entire single section.

CANADIAN TEAM ENTERED.

An international flavor will be attached to the City Hall-to-Coney Island handicap walk of the Walkers Club of America, to be held Thursday afternoon with the appearance of a Canadian heel-and-toe team among the field of starters in the annual event. The team is scheduled to arrive here Thursday morning. Among the American stars entered are Willie Plant, America's champion walker and his elder brother, Frank Plant. A number of the local clubs have entered teams for the event.

OPPERMAN CAPTURES TWIN CITIES PURSE

M. FATOR RIDES 3 WINNERS

Also Gets One Second and Two Thirds Out of Six Mounts—Aero Purse to Miss Whisk.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 26.—Opperman, a four-year-old bay gelding owned by the Triple Springs Farm, which won the Gilda Gray Purse at a mile and a sixteenth last Friday, this afternoon repeated his victory in that event by carrying off the long end of the Twin Cities Purse over the same route and running the distance in 1:50, exactly the same time as was hung up in his previous race. Marinelli again had the mount and brought Opperman home to beat P. S. P. Randolph's High Prince handily by a length and a half. The winner carried top weight of 114 pounds, giving fourteen pounds to High Prince and winning $1,000 for his owner.

A field of six went to the post, with Opperman the odds-on favorite at 4 to 5. Billy Watts was the first to show after the barrier rose, but Thimble went out in front after they had gone half a mile.

Opperman had been well up with the leaders and Marinelli sent the gelding after Thimble when he was ready, quickly disposing of the bay daughter of Huon. Opperman then drew away and won handily. High Prince made a bold bid in the final furlong, but never seriously threatened the leader. A. C. Bostwick's Hell Gate closed gamely to beat Jacqueline Julian by a head for the show. Thimble faded fast after showing her early burst of speed and finished last behind Billy Watts.

Miss Whisk Scores.

Harry Payne Whitney's Miss Whisk, chestnut daughter of Whisk Broom II. and Wonder, was the winner of the Aero Purse, the chief event of the afternoon card for the juveniles. Packing top weight of 115 pounds, the filly beat a field of eight others, running the six and a half furlongs in 1:20 3-5. Mc Lee had to ride the filly hard to beat the Rancocas Stable's Exploit by a length, the latter being a length and a half in front of the Kenton Stable's Sarko. The latter came with a rush at the end and outstayed Marie Martin to take the show and fourth purse. Miss Whisk, coupled with the Greentree Stable's entry of Dazzler, was the 6 to 5 favorite, with Exploit the second choice in the wagering.

One of the features of the afternoon's sport was the remarkable success in the saddle of M. Fator, the boy had six mounts during the afternoon and on every occasion was in the money. He rode three winners, was second once and third twice. Fator started auspiciously by bringing home the Triple Springs Farm's Ogden colt Maxie in the first opening event on the program, a dash of six furlongs for two-year-olds. Fator sent Maxie to the front early in the race and the colt maintained his advantage to the end, beating Catalan by two lengths. The latter closed with resolution, holding the place safely from Harry Payne Whitney's Gold Bug, which was the public choice at a little less than 2 to 1 in the wagering. Gold Bug chased the winner in the early stages, but weakened slightly in the last furlong.

Fator repeated in the second race, riding R. F. Carman's Excuse Me in a six-furlong dash to beat the favorite, W. V. Dwyer's Sagamore, by a length. Excuse Me assumed command on the backstretch and was hustled along by Fator, lasting gamely to the finish. W. S. Murray's Jacques took the short end. The winner paid $10.10 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels.

Fator's third winning mount was J. R. Skinker's three-year-old Ballot colt Majority in the last race at a mile and a furlong. A field of thirteen went to the barrier, and Majority, the favorite, was easily the best, going to the front with the fall of the flag and winning in hand. He was a length and a half in front of Sea Monarch at the finish, the latter being half a length ahead of Austral.

King Albert Is First.

Thirteen also faced the barrier in the race at a mile and a sixteenth, fifth on the card. The winner was P. S. P. Randolph's six-year-old gelding King Albert, which came from far back, running to his best form, to win easily by two lengths from Care Free. Simoon taking the short end. The winner was the public choice.

Thirteen started in the race at a mile and a furlong, the winner being R. T. Wilson Jr.'s three-year-old Ducks and Drakes, favorite in the betting. The gelding moved up gradually to overhaul the pacemaker and drew away to win easily from Dr. Whitehurst by two lengths. The latter was five lengths in front of Magician, which gained the short end by only a head from Bolster.

Nowadays it's more usual to "dye in the yarn" but in the Seventeenth Century they "dyed in the wool."

That's how it happens that our suits of Forefathers' Cloth*, besides bringing the rugged quality of 1620 down to date, have the added distinction of being "dyed in the raw wool."

Our idea was to reproduce this serviceable cloth of the Puritans as faithfully as possible.

Of even greater interest perhaps is the fact that the wools themselves come from the very County of Norfolk, England, that supplied the early settlers. Colonial shades of brown and gray.

NEW ELEVENS TO APPEAR

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 26.—Princeton's 1924 football schedule, as announced here today by J. R. Murray, general athletic Treasurer, presents much the same line-up of games as the one listed during the last season, with the exception of Amherst and Lehigh, which replace Johns Hopkins and Georgetown in the early season contests. Notre Dame, conqueror of the Tigers this year in their first meeting, will again invade the jungle, but on a date a week later, changing places with the Navy game, which will be played in Palmer Stadium on Oct. 18.

Only one out-of-town contest will be staged, that with Harvard on Nov. 8, scheduled for Soldiers Field in Cambridge. The season will wind up with the Yale game here the following week.

In all respects the program is fully as hard as the one played this Fall, and is probably as stiff a combination of games as has ever been listed for a Tiger eleven. Notre Dame and Navy will provide plenty of competition in the earlier meetings, the midseason climax coming when Knute Rockne's charges arrive here on the last Saturday in October.

The last time Amherst appeared on the Princeton football card was in 1907, and in the ten meetings between the two the Tigers have been victorious every time. Much the same record has been made against Lehigh, although the Bethlehem team has been quite a regular member of past Tiger schedules, having played Princeton twenty-six times, with twenty-five Princeton victories and one tie. The last meeting with the Brown and White was in 1912, when the Tigers won by a count of 35 to 0.

The game with the midshipmen completes the two-year contract, which called for the first meeting this year in Baltimore and the second in Palmer Stadium in 1924. In bringing Notre Dame here again the committee has gained the approval of the undergraduate body in morals, for the Westerners' clean play and keen rivalry caused much favorable comment in spite of their overwhelming victory.

Election of a Captain for the coming season has not yet been held, but there are not a few eligible juniors who may be in line for the post. Among the 1925 men who made their letters this year are Bob Beattie, halfback; Dinsmore and Wingate, quarterbacks; "Red" Howard, tackle; Charlie Caldwell, centre, and "Buzz" Stout, end.

Oct. 4—Amherst, at Princeton.
Oct. 11—Lehigh, at Princeton.
Oct. 18—Navy at Princeton.
Oct. 25—Notre Dame, at Princeton.
Nov. 1—Swarthmore, at Princeton.
Nov. 8—Harvard, at Cambridge.
Nov. 15—Yale, at Princeton.

YALE PAPER LAUDS ELEVEN AND COACH

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26.—The Yale Daily News today praised Captain Bill Mallory and Head Coach Tad Jones in the following editorial article, headed "The Promised Land":

"It was only a matter of hours after the thorough drenching received in the stadium before every spectator had dried off, but it will be a matter of decades before Yale men cease to sing the praises of Captain Mallory, his team and their coach, T. A. D. Jones. Although hampered by psychology and weather conditions which might have dampened the most ardent of spirits, the Blue at last reached the promised land of gridiron success.

"It has been a good many years, just seven to be exact, since Harvard has been prey for the Bull Dog. So long has it been that one might almost expect the Crimson to have forgotten the rules of etiquette for losers. Far from it. Despite defeat and the exultant clamor of delirious victors, Cambridge was devoid of sullen bitterness. Harvard said little, but grinned and offered her hand in hearty congratulation to her visiting rivals. This attitude was only a further demonstration of that inimitable cordiality which has existed since first the Blue and the Crimson fought it out forty-eight years ago.

"But with the color and the excitement of the week-end there was even more significance to the victory than the very important conquest of Harvard. Not only does it mean a season without defeat and a strong claim for championship honors, not only does it mean a clean sweep for 1923 in every major sport over Harvard and Princeton, but it means a vindication of T. A. D. Jones and his policies.

"Coach Jones equipped the team with plays and strategy which many experts pronounced capable of defeating any team in the country. Not every team, however, could make use of such coaching. There must be confidence, determination, a spirit of teamwork over individuality, and a feeling of sheer enjoyment for the game. Without these four factors the 1923 eleven might have gone the way of mediocrity, as have others in their time. But this new spirit was present as well as the man who inspired it and made his team one which could not be beaten. Yale will place among the foremost heroes of her Hall of fame as one of the greatest captains of all time William Neely Mallory.

"And so the curtain rings down upon one of Yale's most glorious football years. What the future holds in store, who can tell? Yet, if captains and teams of future years, profiting by Coach Jones's guidance, laughing at jinxes, delighting in football and refusing to accept defeat, will follow the examples of Captain Mallory and the team of 1923, who can blame Harvard and Princeton for feeling more than uneasy regarding seasons to come?"

W. AND J. IN HARD DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 26.—The Washington and Jefferson eleven was sent through a hard practice this afternoon in a driving rain. The work-out consisted of a dummy scrimmage against West Virginia's famous shift, which is causing the Red and Black coaches no end of worry. No eleven has been able to stop this deceptive formation successfully during the last two seasons.

Another long workout will be given the Presidents tomorrow, but as in today's drill there will be no strenuous work of any kind that might result in injuries. The squad now is so badly crippled that the line-up for the game on Thursday is very much in doubt.

NAVY TO NAME SITE LATER.

Will Not Decide Where to Play Army Until Next Summer.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 26.—Decision as to the selection of the site for the Army-Navy football game for 1924 will not be made until next Summer, Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, said today.

"The choice," he said, "will not be influenced by newspaper reports and what might have happened Saturday, but will be made to the best interests of the Navy."

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26.—Are the goal posts of the losing eleven to be purloined during the snake dance of the winning university in future football games? Yale set an example in this respect after Saturday's game in the Cambridge Stadium. Today The Yale Daily News admitted that the Yale celebrants delivered the posts to the Yale Club in Boston. The News said today that it is expected that a large piece of the posts will be sent to New Haven and placed in the trophy room. The custom has grown for Yale and Harvard oarsmen to bet their shirts on victory in their annual crew races, each man in the losing shell peeling off his garment and tossing it across the water to the corresponding ember of the winning eight. Yale undergraduates are beginning to believe that their only hope of retaining the goal posts in the bowl next Fall is to defeat Harvard.

DOBIE PUTS CORNELL THROUGH NEW PLAYS

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Showers and a wet gridiron greeted the Cornell squad this evening as it began a final tuning up for the Penn game, but the Ithacans, undaunted by weather conditions, ran through the program of plays with plenty of enthusiasm. First in signal drill, and then in dummy scrimmage against the third team. Captain George Pfann kept the varsity moving at a lively pace in carrying out the Dobie formations.

Pfann used practically everything that Cornell had found effective this year, plus a half dozen new plays that Dobie has been saving for the final engagement of the year. On the practice field the second team led by Rooney was going through an identical program. Pfann tried out not only the off-tackle kick formation and line breaking plays, but he gave half an hour's drill to polishing up the aerial game.

Considering the condition of the field the Cornellians gave a first-rate account of themselves and they gave every indication of being in prime shape for the annual battle with their ancient rivals. In today's line-up Buckley and Henderson alternated at left end, Kneen was at right end, Kearney and Sundstrom played tackles, Morris and Berean, guards; Affeld, centre, Pfann, quarterback; Patterson, left halfback; Ramsey, right halfback, and Cassidy, fullback.

Dobie took precautions today to see that the team was well equipped for bad weather. Two years ago Cornell and Penn played in a down-pour and on a wretched field, but Eddie Kaw and George Pfann kept their footing and gave a fine exhibition in piling up points. Drill in wet weather and proper equipment were largely responsible.

So today Dobie went over every man's wardrobe to see that wet weather uniforms, properly cleated shoes and other paraphernalia were in first-class shape for shipment tomorrow night.

DERN SCRIMMAGES WITH PENN ELEVEN

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 26.—With Jack Dern, quarterback, taking an active part in the scrimmage for the first time since his injury some weeks ago, and urged on by the cheers of a big representation of the student body, the Penn football squad today went through its final workout on Franklin Field for the Cornell game Thursday. The squad will leave tomorrow afternoon at 1:40 o'clock for Absecon, where it will remain until Thursday morning, returning in time for the game.

While Dern called signals for the team last week, today's scrimmage was the first in which he has actually engaged. His return for the final game of the season is virtually assured.

The Penn team suffered the temporary loss of Graff, veteran guard, who received a dislocated shoulder in practice. Although the injury was painful it is doubtful if it will keep him from taking his place on the line Thursday. It will, however, prevent his participation in scrimmage tomorrow.

The early part of the afternoon today was spent in running through signals and a strenuous scrimmage between the varsity and scrubs. Various combinations were tried in the varsity backfield, but none worked with sufficient smoothness to influence Coach Dern in his selection of the four backs who will start against Cornell.

For the first time since before the Penn State game the undergraduates were permitted in the stadium during the practice. Led by the band, they cheered throughout the latter part of the scrimmage. Since the team will not return to Philadelphia until immediately before the game Thursday, today was the last opportunity to see the team in practice on Franklin Field.

ROCKNE LENDS A HAND.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 26.—Knute Rockne today lent a helping hand to his old teammate, Charles Dorais, in preparing the Gonzaga University eleven in its intersectional clash with Detroit Thanksgiving Day. The Gonzaga team is stopping in South Bend until Wednesday, and the two ex-Notre Dame players, famous exponents of the passing game, worked together with the Westerners on Cartier Field this afternoon. Gonzaga was sent through a stiff workout earlier in the afternoon, and the Notre Dame team, which plays St. Louis on Thursday at St. Louis, took the field later. Rockne excused his first team from the drill and gave the reserve eleven only a light session.

FORDHAM ELEVEN RESTS.

Takes Breathing Spell Before Final Game Against Georgetown.

The Fordham football squad took a day off from practice yesterday to rest for the Georgetown game, the Maroon's last contest of the year. Graham, Howley and Woerner were forced from the Rutgers game because of injuries, but appeared to be in good condition yesterday. Gargan thinks that they will be ready for the contest at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday. Myers and Leary will start on Saturday. Captain Healey and Zackrzewski are in shape. Healey has just recovered from injuries, and Gargan kept him out of the Rutgers game to save him for Georgetown.

HARVARD STILL HAS OPEN DATE FOR 1924

Nov. 1 Is Only Vacancy on Football Schedule as Announced by Crimson.

GREEN BOOKED FOR 1 YEAR

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 26.—F. W. Moore, graduate treasurer of athletics at Harvard, gave out the Crimson's football schedule for 1924 today. The playing list still has to be ratified by the Athletic Committee, but this surely will be done.

Nov. 1 is an open date, and Mr. Moore mentions, for the benefit of teams which may apply for a game, that, because of the three hard games finishing the schedule, the head coach may think it necessary to use a substitute team on that day.

Virginia replaces Rhode Island, and Tufts is off the list. Mr. Moore stated that it is understood between Harvard and Dartmouth that arrangements to play are for one year only, both managements reserving the date for possible intersectional games in 1925.

Oct. 4—University of Virginia.
Oct. 11—Middlebury College.
Oct. 18—Holy Cross.
Oct. 25—Dartmouth.
Nov. 1—Open.
Nov. 8—Princeton.
Nov. 15—Brown.
Nov. 22—Yale, at New Haven.

WASHINGTON DELAYS OFFER

May Invite Syracuse Eleven to Play —Orange Team Is Home.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 26.—Negotiations which have been carried on for a fortnight looking to a football game between the University of Washington and Syracuse University at Los Angeles Christmas Day have not reached the stage of a formal invitation, it was said today at the University of Washington.

Whether arrangements would be completed for the game was said to depend on the scholarship of the members of the Husky team, declared to be unusually high this year; on whether the Washington players individually wanted to take on the contest, and on the financial attractions to be offered. No doubt was felt that sanction for the game could be obtained from the Pacific Coast Conference.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 26.—A delegation of 10,000 Syracuse students and alumni today turned out in a demonstration of welcome for the Syracuse football team on its return from Lincoln, Neb., where Saturday it defeated Nebraska, conqueror of Notre Dame, by a score of 7 to 0.

Announcement was made that the athletic directors of Syracuse were anxious to accept a proposal to send the football team to Los Angeles for a game against Southern California on Christmas Day.

YOST OUTLINES 1924 PLANS.

Michigan Coach Not Averse to Playing Six Conference Teams.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 26.—Michigan is not averse to playing six Western Conference football games next year, provided two of them are with so-called weaker teams, Fielding H. Yost Director of Athletics at the university, said today. He was emphatic, however, in his assertion that Michigan's four big games in 1924 will be with Ohio State, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota—the same as this year.

Commenting upon a report that representatives of the student body of the University of Illinois had requested a game between Michigan and the Zuppke eleven next year, Coach Yost said that to schedule an Illinois game would necessitate the displacement of one of the other four Conference teams. This, he said, Michigan did not intend to do.

"Viewed on its mental and physical sides," the Michigan mentor said, "Michigan should not meet more than four Conference teams that ordinarily win a large percentage of their games."

MICHIGAN ELECTS CAPTAIN.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 26.—Herbert Steger, Oak Park, Ill., today was named captain of the University of Michigan 1924 football team. Steger has played halfback for two years and was the high scorer of this year's eleven with five touchdowns.

DOUGLAS TO BE RE-ELECTED

Slated to Be President of Metropolitan Golf Body Again.

Findlay S. Douglas of Apawamis, former national amateur golf champion, who has presided over the destinies of the Metropolitan Golf Association for the past two seasons, will again be honored by the district golfers on Dec. 11. On that date, which has been chosen for the annual meeting of the M. G. A. at the Waldorf, Douglas will be elected President of the association for his third term.

Douglas will be the only member of the old regime to retain his place during 1924. C. W. O'Connor of Essex County, who has officiated as secretary for several seasons, will be moved up to the Vice Presidency and his place will be filled by H. Y. Barrow of Baltusrol. Mr. Barrow has served in a similar capacity for the New Jersey State Golf Association for the last few seasons. The new Treasurer will be W. H. Conroy of Apawamis.

The following members have been nominated for the Executive Committee: M. K. Waters of Ardsley, Grant A. Peacock of Cherry Valley, Oswald Kirkby of Knickerbocker, David H. McAlpin of Morris County and G. A. Nicol of Wykagyl.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—At the annual meeting of the Scottish Golf Union, held in Edinburgh today, Norman Bosse, Chairman of the Championship Committee of the Royal and Ancient Club, welcomed an expression of opinion that Scottish clubs should be asked to contribute to the cost of the projected visit of a British team to America to play another international match for the Walker Trophy. The delegates expressed the opinion that the match should be held. Bosse said that the cost of sending ten men was estimated at £1,500.

Henry, Chairman of the association's Football Committee. The Pacific Coast Conference has been notified of the association's selection, according to Mr. Henry.

DARTMOUTH CLOSES WORK AT HANOVER

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 26.—Football in Hanover came to its official finale this afternoon when the student body gathered on Memorial Field to see the tackling dummy burned. Cyril Aschenbach, who will captain the Green for the last time in the game with Columbia at the Polo Grounds on Thanksgiving Day, delivered a short speech at the ceremony, in which he said that there would be no late season let-up for the New York game. He said that the Green would be in better condition and would show as much fight as it has shown at any time this year.

Coach Hawley has continued to stress the fact that Dartmouth is Columbia's objective and that the New York team has been steadily improving under Percy Haughton's guidance.

Another blow to the squad was dealt today when Smith, substitute guard for Diehl, was taken to the hospital. It was necessary to move Whitaker from tackle to guard to cover the weakened position. Trainer Watson said that Kelley could not possibly play on Thursday. With the loss of its best punter and with the second-string backfield ineligible, Dartmouth will be weaker than in any other game this season.

The team will hold a light workout tomorrow morning and will then leave at 11 o'clock for New York. About thirty-five players will make the trip.

The probable line-up will be Bjorkman and Hagenbuckle, ends; Oberlander and Hatch, tackles; Diehl and Aschenbach, guards; Ellis, centre; Hall and Hawa, halfbacks; Dooley, quarter, and Lenvitt, fullback.

LEHIGH ELEVEN BATTERED.

Two Regulars Missing When Bruised Squad Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 26.—A bruised and battered Lehigh team responded for practice this afternoon in preparation for the closing game of the season against Brown University at Providence on Thanksgiving Day. Although showing the effects of the gruelling game with Lafayette on Saturday afternoon, all except two of the regulars were at their positions in the workout today.

Of the players who participated in and emerged from the Lafayette affray, Jacobs, right halfback, and Roth, centre, will probably be the only regulars missing when Lehigh faces Brown.

Captain Springsteen, who after his brilliant display as a roving tackle on the defense against Lafayette, was carried off the field partly unconscious, was none the worse for the bumps he received. Although a bit sore and stiff he limbered up considerably during the workout this afternoon. None of the players had any excuses to offer, taking their defeat with good grace and satisfied that in the three periods in which Lehigh paved the way with a three-point margin, every player gave of his best.

BRITAIN MAY CONTEST CUP.

Will Send Six-Meter Team to U. S. if It Can Be Organized.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Owners of six-meter yachts at a meeting held under the chairmanship of Sir Ralph Gore to discuss the question of sending a team to America next season to compete for the British-American Cup, decided to send a team if one could be organized; if not, the British will compete every alternate year.

The Chairman said it was proposed to invite offers from owners and then pick four of the best boats for the races. Two yachts were offered at the meeting.

COLUMBIA VARSITY IN LAST SCRIMMAGE

At the resumption of practice yesterday at Baker Field by the Columbia University football team, Coach Percy Haughton warned his men that they must not be overconfident about the outcome of the game with Dartmouth on Thanksgiving Day. There has been much favorable talk of Columbia's chances on the basis of the comparative showings of the two teams against Cornell and on the Blue and White's defeat of N. Y. U. Coach Haughton declared that the records of the Green and the Morningsiders for the season do not furnish any reason to believe that Columbia will be the winner of the game. But that on the contrary Dartmouth's showing has been the more impressive.

Yesterday's practice marked the last scrimmaging of the season. The day's workout started with the regular kicking drill, followed by the signal drill and individual practice, after which Coach Haughton ordered the usual scrimmage. Today the team will go through light practice and tomorrow the squad will go to the Polo Grounds for a session of kicking and passing. There are a few members of the squad suffering with minor injuries and bruises, Captain Kopplach is in the best of condition.

M'TIGUE WILL MEET BECKETT IN DUBLIN

NOT TO COMPETE HERE

McTigue Will Not Box in United States Again Until Contract With His Manager Expires.

Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, has engaged in his last fight under the management of Joe Jacobs, who holds a contract as McTigue's manager which does not expire until next August. The title-holder made this statement yesterday when he announced that he had completed negotiations for a twenty-round bout against Joe Beckett, English heavyweight, to be conducted in Dublin, Ireland, on March 17. The Dublin contest, which was announced by McTigue as for the British heavyweight championship, will be held by Promoter Singleton, Irish turfman, who conducted the McTigue-Siki bout in Dublin last St. Patrick's Day.

McTigue has no definite plans as to his departure for Europe, beyond the fact that he will remain here until after the Christmas holidays. The light-heavyweight champion will not return from Europe until late Summer or in the Fall, when he expects to participate in an outdoor bout here in defense of his title.

McTigue stated definitely and positively that he, contrary to popular belief, would not engage in a bout in Madison Square Garden some time in January. McTigue originally was scheduled to defend his title against Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, in a fifteen-round bout to a decision in the Garden on Dec. 10.

Jacobs Arranged Match Here.

This match was arranged by Jacobs, acting as McTigue's manager. Subsequently, however, a rift occurred in the relations between boxer and manager, and McTigue withdrew from the match claiming his injured left hand would not be healed in time to permit him to train properly for the defense of his title. Harry Grab then was signed to meet Tunney in the Garden bout and McTigue indicated that he would consent to meet the winner in January.

The champion, however, has decided, by his own statement, to do no more boxing here until after next August, when his contract with Jacobs expires. The pair now are involved in litigation, both having instituted court actions against each other.

"I do not feel that I can consistently accept any matches here in view of the situation existing between Jacobs and myself," said McTigue. "I will not engage in any bouts he arranges for me and I will not be able to arrange any matches for myself I suppose. I have informed Tex Rickard that I will not box in Madison Square Garden in January. I have just completed arrangements for a match against Joe Beckett in Dublin on March 17. Right now this is the only bout I have in prospect. I intend to return here before the close of the next outdoor season, in time to appear in at least one bout in defense of my title."

License Has Expired.

McTigue stated that he had decided upon his announced course after careful consideration. Asked about the possibility of suffering a suspension from the State Athletic Commission for his failure to fulfill the Tunney bout contract, McTigue declared he had no worry on that score because he was not a licensed boxer within the jurisdiction of the commission. In this McTigue was upheld by Chairman William Muldoon of the commission, who explained that McTigue's license had been allowed to expire. Muldoon added that since the license had not been renewed the commission had no jurisdiction over McTigue.

Efforts to communicate with Jacobs were unsuccessful.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Nov. 26.—A life in the open is what Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion boxer, wanted, and he got it today after he left this city for a week's hunting trip in the mountains of northern New Mexico. The Manassa man mauler will stalk deer, mountain lions and bears. Dempsey brought for his expedition three huge wolfhounds, a staghound and a bulldog. Dempsey was accompanied by Jerry Lavadis, his trainer; Marty Burke, his sparring partner, and Teddie Hayes, his secretary.

No arrangements are under way for a bout with Harry Wills, New York negro, the champion said, as no promoter seems willing to take up the burden of planning the match. Dempsey expects to fight Luis Angel Firpo next Summer, he said.

Billiard Results.

F. Fournier and L. Silver were the winners of two close games in the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler Brothers' Academy, Brooklyn, yesterday. Fournier defeated C. Wallace, 100 to 99, in fifteen frames, making a high run of 15, while the loser's best was 17. Silver won from Tom Meresca, 100 to 94, going out in fourteen frames and making a high run of 24. Meresca's high run was 34. Today Wallace will play Charles McDonald and Fournier will meet C. Scheider in the evening. Tonight, also, the play-off for the interstate amateur three-cushion title will be held between Rudolph Vogel and Charles Hanf. Each won two games and lost 1 in the final round

Two games were played in the national Class C 18.2 balkline championship at the Recreation Academy, Brooklyn, last night. In the first game Dr. R. D. Jennings was the winner over W. L. Bunnell, 150 to 51, in thirty-four innings. Dr. Jennings made a high run of 20, just double that of his opponent. The second game was more drawn out, going to fifty-eight innings. A. E. Simeson defeated W. F. Reynolds, 150 to 104. Both players had a high run of 12. Three games will be played tonight.

J. Howard Shoemaker, who was defeated by Ralph Greenleaf in a three-day match at the Strand Billiard Academy last week, began a three-night pocket billiard exhibition with Carl Vaughan at the Capitol Billiard Academy last night, winning the opening block by the score of 100 to 21. Shoemaker gathered his total in twelve innings and made a high run of 35. The loser's high run was 10.

George Shea won the first two games in the amateur 18.2 balkline tournament at Julian's Academy last night. In the opening game he defeated Tom Hague, 150 to 123, in fifty-one innings. The winner's high run was 34, the loser's 14. Dean Cohen was defeated in the second game, 150 to 80, in seventy innings. Shea's high run was 11, Cohen's 9.

H. Frantzen won from J. Cesarove in the New York State three-cushion amateur championship at Cranfield's 145th Street Academy last night. The score was 35 to 31. Frantzen went out in seventy innings. Each player had a high run of 3.

Budd Adler defeated Morris Wolin, 30 to 28, in the three-cushion tournament at the Ambassador Academy last night. The game was decided in eighty-five innings. The winner's high run was 6, three better than the loser's best run.

Brown, London Bantamweight, Wins Lonsdale Belt and Title

LONDON, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—Johnny Brown of London tonight won the Lonsdale Belt and the bantamweight championship of Europe by defeating "Bugler" Lake on points in a 20-round contest. The fight was held in the National Sporting Club. Lake won the championship from Charles Ledoux, the French boxer, on July 30.

SHOCKER FOR SALE, BROWNS ANNOUNCE

Another citizen of the great city of St. Louis is likely to sever his connections with that municipality, judging from the most recent reports which are floating around the baseball world. Rogers Hornsby, the star second baseman of the Cardinals, has been on the auction block for these many weeks and is almost certain to be traded. Now the story runs that Urban Shocker, right-handed pitcher of the Browns and the best spit-baller in baseball, is on the market, waiting for the highest bidder to step forward and claim him.

Shocker's story goes back to the early days of last September, when he mutinied and refused to accompany the team on the last trip East unless Owner Phil Ball and Manager Jimmy Austin should suspend the club rules and let Urban take Mrs. Urban with him on the journey. When the Browns withheld this consent, Shocker left the team and was suspended without pay for the remainder of the season.

Still brooding over the incident, Shocker recently told George Sisler, the Browns' new manager, that there were several other places in the league where he would rather play next season. Sisler evidently was inclined to agree with Shocker on this point, and in a late interview the manager is quoted as stating that he would not stand between Shocker and a chance to pitch in another city. The intimation was that Sisler was prepared to put his star right-hander on the block and knock him down to the best bidder.

Two Clubs Make Bid.

In fact, two American League clubs have already rushed forward with offers, and Sisler is now considering them. It is a certainty that seven American League teams will make frenzied efforts to land Shocker at the league meeting in Chicago next month. The bidding will be intense and the competition fierce, and the winner of the club with the best trading material and the biggest bankroll. Needless to say, the Yankees will be right in there trying to live up to that description. Shocker was once an employe of Miller Huggins, and the latter hasn't yet recovered from the shock he suffered when he learned he had traded away one of the best right-handed pitchers in the American League.

Huggins to Come Here.

Huggins, by the way, will pay a visit to the metropolis next Monday to confer with Ed Barrow and Colonel Jacob Ruppert on matters of great moment. The battle plans for the Chicago meeting will be mapped out, possible trades discussed and the training camp for next Spring selected from New Orleans, San Antonio and Shreveport. Take your pick from the three, but all the betting is that Huggins will name New Orleans on the old baseball theory that it is bad to change a winning line-up.

Rogers Hornsby is quoted as declaring that the gulf between him and Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon is now too great to be bridged and that he is sure to be traded before another season. That utterance confirms the suspicion which every well-informed baseball man has entertained for many weeks. Hornsby will leave St. Louis, but where is he going? The sharps say New York, and the failure of the Chicago dealings last week was not surprising. Opinion now is that a three-cornered swap will bring Hornsby to the Giants, send Hollocher and Southworth to St. Louis, McGraw also giving up a miscellaneous raft of pitchers, possibly a catcher, in addition to Southworth. Under that arrangement Hornsby would play second, Frisch third, Jackson short, Heinie Groh would be on the bench and Jimmy O'Connell presumably would be in centre field, unless McGraw succeeds in nailing another loan for the position.

MONTCLAIR MEN WANT STENGEL AS MANAGER

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 26.—William Ashton of Baltimore, President of the Newark International League Baseball Club, today confirmed the report that he had given an option on the club to Mayor McConnell of Montclair, N. J., and a syndicate of Montclair men. The option expires Nov. 28. Ashton said he understood the Montclair group would try to get Casey Stengel, recently traded to the Boston Nationals by the New York Giants, as manager.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Nov. 26.—The option on the Newark club of the International League, which Mayor Howard F. McConnell of Montclair said today he had received from President William Ashton of Baltimore, will lapse Nov. 28 unless the group of Newark men, for whom Mayor McConnell has been acting, comes to an agreement on the purchase within the next two days.

"I obtained the option for a period of two weeks at the request of a group of Newark business men," Mayor McConnell said tonight. "They came to me with the proposal that if I would head the team and would invest a certain sum they would furnish the balance. In reply I agreed to furnish a share of the purchase price if they would furnish the rest. As yet, however, we have been unable to arrange any definite terms and I am waiting for the Newark men to take definite action and to signify their intentions."

Mayor McConnell also added that he was not financially able, nor would his business interests permit him, to devote his time exclusively to owning and managing a baseball club.

HARRY LEONARD VICTOR.

Outpoints Lee in Close Bout at Lenox Sport Club.

Harry (Battling) Leonard of the east side won the decision over Danny Lee of Harlem in the twelve-round feature at the Lenox Sport Club last night. It was a close bout, with Leonard forcing the fighting and landing the cleaner blows. The last three rounds furnished the most action. In the ninth round Lee almost dropped Leonard with a left hook to the jaw. Leonard was strong in the eleventh and on the offensive, and opened a cut over Lee's left eye, drawing blood. Leonard weighed 122½ pounds and Lee 122.

In the six-round semi-final Johnny Green got the decision over Herman Silver. The weights were 124 and 117, respectively. Joe Scappatone knocked out Mike Barick in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout, and Charlie Hahn won on a foul from Tony Sirocco in the third round of another scheduled six-round affair.

Kohler and Nable Draw.

Charlie Kohler of Ridgewood and Sammy Nable of the east side fought six rounds to a draw at the Broadway Exhibition Association last night. Both men weighed 121½ pounds. The six-round semi-final between Happy Mahoney and Sammy Markowitz also was a draw. The weights were 141 and 139½ pounds.

BECKER BEATS RAND IN SQUASH TOURNEY

Play in the first invitation squash tennis tournament of the Princeton Club began yesterday on the club courts on East Thirty-ninth Street with the leading players of the amateur ranks included among the sixty-four contestants. All the first round matches in the upper half were played, five of them going by default, and today the second round brackets in the lower half will be filled. Play will continue tomorrow and there will be a recess on Thursday. The tournament will come to an end early next week.

The points of interest of yesterday's play were the defeat of R. C. Rand of the Harvard Club by W. C. Becker of D. K. E., and the narrow escape from defeat of Otis Guernsey of the Yale Club at the hands of Donald Bellows of the Crescent A. C. Becker won by the score of 15—11, 15—8, and Guernsey pulled through at 11—15, 15—11, 17—15. Armin W. Riley of the Princeton Club was carried to three games by F. Loughman of the N. Y. A. C., and E. A. Guggenheim of the Yale Club took twelve points in each of two games from Kingsley Kunhardt of the Columbia Club. R. Earl Fink of the Crescent A. C., the national champion, won easily from J. F. Trounstine, Yale Club, and Hewitt Morgan, the outstanding star in the second quarter, was one of the five to advance by default.

Bellows, who came within two points of defeating Guernsey after the third game had been set three points in the third member on the Harvard Class B team and has acted as substitute on the Class A team. His game has steadily improved since he entered Class B play last year, and his work yesterday against Guernsey indicated that he is well on the way toward earning a return ing. Guernsey partly responsible for his loss of the opening game of the match at 15—11, hitting everything out of the court. Before he had overcome this streak of wildness his opponent had gained a commanding lead and went on to take the game by the margin of four points.

Bellows Masters Service.

The Yale player steadied in the second chapter and played on even terms with Bellows, gradually forging ahead, to win by the same margin by which he had lost the first game. Bellows's service had given him some difficulty at the start, but he was handling it in better fashion now, and his nick shots, hitting in the corner between the front and side wall, began to earn him points as the other returned the ball into the telltale. Guernsey lapsed again in the third game and the outcome of the match remained in doubt until the end. Bellows led at 9—4. The Yale player pulled up on even terms and then went into the lead at 14—11. Bellows pulled up to 16—14 and the game was set three points. Guernsey won one point and then the Crescent A. C. representative evened the score at 1—1, only to hit out twice in Guernsey's next hand and lose the game at 17—15.

Rand, who was the only member of the 1922-23 Harvard Class B team to be rated, had an off day against Becker. The D. K. E. player was not regarded as having any chance of winning the match, but by giving his best at all times in the way of speed and alertness and taking advantage of his opponent's deficiencies he not only won but won by the convincing margin of 15—11, 15—6. He followed the ball so closely and was so adept in making his recoveries that Rand seldom was able to ace him, and the Harvard man won few points on errors, although he hit out and into the telltale frequently himself.

R. H. George, another D. K. E. player, was carried to 16—14 in the first game of his match with A. M. Kidder of the Princeton Club, but in the second chapter he overwhelmed his opponent, allowing him only 3 points. Something of the same story was repeated in the match between Riley and Loughman. Riley won the first game in fairly easy fashion at 15—8.

Wins Three Points in Row.

The N. Y. A. C. man caught him unprepared in the second chapter, showing a burst of speed and smashing the ball with great power. The result was that the game went to extra lengths and Loughman took 3 points in a row for the game at 17—14, making the score 1—all. The Princeton star needed the loss of the second game to arouse him to his best efforts and he swept through the third game, allowing Loughman only a single point.

The summaries:

YACHTSMEN TO PASS ON BUILDING PLANS

Long Island Body Will Consider Enlarging Classes Q, R and S on Dec. 4.

A meeting has been called by the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound to be held at the New York Yacht Club on the night of Dec. 4, at which will be discussed plans for the formation of a new racing class and possible additions to certain other classes. The Executive Committee of the association has had the matter under discussion for several weeks, and its findings will be made known at the meeting, which will be presided over by George Nichols, President of the association.

The classes under consideration are Q, R and S, all of the sloop type. An example of the Q class, which is a trifle smaller than the New York Yacht Club thirty-footers, has already been seen on the Sound. This was the Grayling, built last season by Herreshoff for former Commodore J. P. Morgan, and it is believed this is the forerunner of a much larger class.

Grayling was designed on beautiful lines and was much admired by yachtsmen in Western Long Island Sound when she raced in some of the open regattas. The Q class sloop is the largest and most costly of those under discussion, the probable cost being between $8,000 and $9,000. This is an open class and various designers may draw plans for it.

The R class boats are somewhat smaller than Grayling, costing approximately $7,000, and are also an open class, many of which are raced in Massachusetts waters. The third class being considered for development, Class S, is well known at the western end of the Sound, on Peconic Bay and in Massachusetts waters, where altogether thirty of this type raced during the past season.

The S class sloop is popular at the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club of Oyster Bay, where ten of the boats are owned and raced. This type is 20 feet 6 inches long on the waterline and 27 feet 6 inches long over all. This is a Herreshoff one-design boat and the development of the type is somewhat contingent on the question whether the Herreshoff building plant at Bristol is reopened next year.

A new indoor tennis club has been formed in Brooklyn, to be known as the Second Naval Battalion Tennis Club, which will lay out four courts on the drill floor armory of the battalion at Fifty-second Street and First Avenue. The club will apply for membership in the United States Lawn Tennis and Metropolitan Associations, and plans to hold a tournament for the Long Island Indoor championship early in March, if sanction can be obtained.

SUGANUMA'S PLAY PRAISED BY HOPPE

The latest billiardist to reach the top is Tadao Suganuma of Japan. This 20-year-old star, who won the national junior 18.2 balkline billiard championship in the tournament which ended Sunday night, is the best championship prospect developed in the last decade, according to Willie Hoppe, the world's champion. Hoppe has played with him often during the past year and asserts that he has everything that goes to make a great billiard player.

"His masse and nurse shots are splendid," Hoppe said yesterday, "and once he perfects his open-table play and gains just a little more experience I do not hesitate to say that he will be a real contender for any billiard title."

Suganuma has been in the United States less than two years and really is a pupil of Koji Yamada, the Japanese star who once created a great surprise by defeating Hoppe in a world's championship tournament game. Suganuma started to play billiards when he was 12 years old. He came here to attend college.

The remarkable part of Suganuma's recent feat is that it was the first tournament in which he ever competed. Most of his work in the past has been exhibition work. He has played Hoppe, Charles C. Peterson and other stars, and through these exhibition games he managed to absorb much from the various styles of play.

JEER STRIBLING IN VICTORY.

Boston Boxing Fans Boo Georgia Youth as He Defeats Egan.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Young Stribling, schoolboy light-heavyweight of Macon, Ga., was awarded the decision over Joe Egan of Dorchester after a dull ten-round bout here tonight. Stribling weighed 166 pounds and his opponent 163.

The Georgia schoolboy was jeered by a section of the audience and there were frequent references to his battle with Mike McTigue at Columbus, Ga. Egan was on the defensive throughout, and the only attack displayed by Stribling was a clubbke right to the head.

SUBJECTS DANGEROUS TO "OPEN."

There persists in Congress a remnant of the feeling which was much more pronounced when Secretary MELLON's proposals were first made public, namely, that it may be perilous to take up tax revision at all. If the door is even slightly opened, who knows with what disturbing plans the "wild men" will rush through it? Should a rational bill be introduced, they would be certain to do their utmost to amend it into something dangerous. Better keep the whole thing under lock and key, it is argued, lest our last estate be worse than our first. But these fears have largely been abandoned. It is perceived that the rattle-pated Congressmen would in any case seek to tear the whole question open, and that it is better for the sober-minded legislator to resist their efforts and to press on with a measure manifestly in the public welfare.

We have seen in the Craig contempt case how impossible it is to repress men bent on disturbing the peace. The discussion began as one about legal procedure and the prerogatives of a Judge. Certain dilettante agitators took it up as a tempting subject to play with. They found a sort of childish delight in toying with the theme. But they were not left in peace to enjoy their little game. The simon-pure, thoroughgoing agitators at once rushed in to make the whole affair their own. In their hands it became a question not of the rights or wrongs of the particular decision with regard to Controller CRAIG, but of a demand for the recasting of our whole judicial system. Judges must never be appointed, since in that way they are certain to make themselves tools of the corporations. They must always be elected, so as to keep every heart-beat close to the people. Whenever they go contrary to the popular whim they must be subject to instant "recall." Their powers must be shorn away and their whole function reduced to a kind of slavish servitude to passing public sentiment. This is what comes of "opening" the subject of contempt of court.

What is to be done about it? There is no possibility of preventing foolish citizens from advertising their folly. They will not keep still even if wise men do. If one provocation does not prompt them to an explosion of false ideas, another one will. We cannot go about urging everybody to hush up lest opportunity be given to unsettled intellects to air their unbalanced notions. The only thing to do is to let them have their say, to appeal to the better reason of the people against fallacious arguments, and to fight the thing through as has to be done in a democracy. If a nation is to be ruled by discussion and the results of it, that discussion has to remain open, even if it means free vent for an enormous amount of nonsense and craftily selfish appeal. Silence on the part of those who know will not prevent the ignorant from being vociferous. The true recourse is not to attempt to muzzle them or shout them down, but to reason them down.

THE RAILWAY WAGE INCREASE.

The Labor Board has raised the wages of 5,500 railway workers $606,432 a year and also granted betterment of working conditions. Presumably the Brotherhood of Station Employes and Telegraphers will not protest, and may not join the other brotherhoods that are pressing for the abolition of the Labor Board. The general public will agree that the twenty-six railways concerned should pay what the board says they should. It may be difficult for the railways to find the funds, but not for that reason should railway workers be underpaid.

What is called an increase is really a readjustment up to an average. The Labor Board does not standardize wages, or adjust them to a theoretical cost of living, but merely corrects inequalities of payment as discovered in practice. What one road pays another should pay, if there is to be equality in costs of transportation and fair competition between carriers. Underpayment of labor is a form of unfair competition. Inequalities of payment are as demoralizing to staff morale as underpayment.

A generous treatment of deserving workers is in accord with the tendency of the times. Thus in this State factory workers' wages rose 32 cents in October over September, and the average weekly wages rose to $27.73. That is the highest since 1920, except last June. If the Labor Board had got rid of inequalities by averaging down, it would have made the railway rate of pay compare even more unfavorably with other wage payments. If the Labor Board is to be supported when it finds wages too high, it certainly should be when it finds them too low or unfair. Besides the payment in cash, the Labor Board allows rates for overtime to an amount which would increase the costs to carriers to a total of $449,023. The fairness of the board is shown by its refusal to order overtime rates for Sundays and holidays, because such work is necessary for the public and the railways have no option to abandon or reduce it.

"SELLING ARGUMENTS" FOR TEACHING.

The Institute of Public Service is urging colleges and universities to give more thought to removing "unfounded disparagements" of teaching. It quotes approvingly the following "selling argument" for teaching:

> Prepare to teach; America needs you. Your leadership, your enthusiasm, your inspiration, your intelligent service can make school communities progressive, happy and prosperous. Your preparation for teaching is a safe investment: it pays dividends in salaries based on the service you are able to give; it pays also in durable satisfactions, for, while teaching admits you to the privilege of training the youth of the land, it also allows for continued self-development.

This assumes that boards of education will give full opportunity to those whose enthusiasm, inspiration and intelligence fit them for such leadership. All the advertising in the world is not going to help if the qualities that are most desired in teachers are not recognized in appointments made by boards of education, if personal, political or geographical motives enter to deprive qualified teachers of the highest rewards and satisfactions of their profession.

That seems to have happened in the case of one nomination just made to the New York Board of Education by the Board of Superintendents. It was hoped that Education Week would be observed by selecting three of the best-qualified persons in all the school system to take the important positions of District Superintendent. According to report, one of the nominees named to preside as Superintendent over twenty or more Principals, with a school population as large as that of many a city, has had no experience as a Principal, except as a "teacher in charge," and has received preferment over others whose qualifications were unquestionably superior. A teacher who was appointed by the Board of Education to a still higher position some months ago openly stated that her promotion was due to "political pull." One is obliged to find a like explanation for this appointment. What has been done and is in prospect will make it harder than ever to persuade young men and women of the highest promise into this profession. The best selling argument for teaching will be recognition of the best teachers by those who have the appointing power.

NON-PARTISAN TAX REDUCTION.

Unmistakable public opinion in ever-growing volume has forced many Republican and Democratic members of Congress to support much of Secretary MELLON's plan for tax reduction. The lowering of the normal rates on personal income from 4 and 8 to 3 and 6 per cent., respectively, no politician can be expected to oppose. That touches a lot of votes. The same is true of the so-called "nuisance" taxes. The 25 per cent. reduction on "earned" income has been copiously discussed in Congress. If it has not hitherto made its way, the objections have been rather of detail and feasibility of collection than on the merits. The imperious demand for lower taxes having become too strong to resist, there seems to be general agreement to this proposal on both—or should we say three or four?—sides of Congress.

Mr. GARRETT, Democratic leader of the House, agrees to these parts of Mr. MELLON's program and also to his administrative amendments. He finds it "safe to say that the Democrats in "Congress will at every stage upon "every important question pursue a "sound constructive course and at all "times maintain the integrity of well-"established Democratic principles in "politics." The lowering of expenditures to the utmost possible degree consistent with efficient administration is a Democratic platform principle still, we believe. How do the Democratic Congressmen reconcile that with a bonus bill? Mr. GARRETT says nothing about that. His promise of Democratic assistance in tax-cutting is rather curious. He says that the Democrats won't "play "cheap or mean politics at the expense of the people, as did the Republicans during 1919 and 1920. They will, instead, work wholeheartedly with members of the opposite "'faith,' whether of the stand-pat or "progressive faction, with the sole "object of promoting the public "good."

The progressive faction, not without Democratic assistance, is opposed to the reduction of the maximum surtax. It wants to swell the inheritance taxes on great fortunes, and restore if possible the excess profit taxes. It is not clear how the Democrats can co-operate with those pillers of "wealth." However, the Democrats will bring in their own plan of reduction. The public will judge of it. Meanwhile, let us hope that Democrats enough will join Republicans to carry the essential parts of Mr. MELLON's scheme. What is best for the country is sure to be best for their party. "Let us "be done with partisanship in dealing "with the twin questions of revenue "and finance," cries Mr. GARRETT. That is a fine sentiment and should be made fact. In his famous letter Mr. MELLON said:

> The readjustment of the surtaxes is not in any sense a partisan measure. It has been recommended, on substantially this basis, by every Secretary of the Treasury since the end of the war, irrespective of party. The present system is a failure. It was an emergency measure, adopted under the pressure of war necessities, and not to be counted upon as a permanent part of our revenue structure. For a short period the surtaxes yielded much revenue, but their productivity has been constantly shrinking, and the Treasury's experience shows that the high rates now in effect are progressively becoming less productive of revenue.
> A diversion of revenue from the Treasury, a diversion of productive capital from industry, a loss to the whole community: That is a brief, true description of the super-taxes. Here is a great non-partisan question of revenue, finance and general prosperity. Mr. GARRETT and the other thoughtful Democrats in Congress should deal with it in a non-partisan spirit.

THE GERMAN CABINET CRISIS.

President EBERT's letter urging the formation of a new Government without regard to the political groups in the Reichstag indicates the final effort to keep up at least a semblance of parliamentary rule in Germany. The only alternatives are a dissolution of the Reichstag, followed by the election of a new one, or a dictatorship. It seems plain that neither would be favored by the Socialist Party. Hence it is probable that if Dr. ALBERT succeeds in patching up a new Cabinet, and asks for a vote of confidence from the Reichstag, he will get it. It would mean, of course, only that he was to be tolerated for the time being. His Government could be thought of only as a makeshift. Yet even that might be considered a gain, if merely as putting off the evil day and postponing the danger to the German Republic which would lie in a bold endeavor at this time to govern without a Reichstag or by military force.

The former Chancellor, Dr. STRESEMANN, spoke but the truth when he said that the present Reichstag has gone stale. It cannot be said fairly to represent today even the confused and distracted sentiment of the German people. Whether the election of a new Reichstag would better do so, or would bring new direction and vigor to the German Government, may well be doubted. The best hope lies in a breathing space, during which party leaders may be induced to sink some of their bitter differences and to work together for the unity of the Reich and for the rescue of the nation from its present terrible plight. Even if it is old and feeble, the Reichstag clings to life. If it decides to give a new Government the opportunity to show what it can do, its motive will be mainly dread of dissolution or a dictatorship.

TOO MUCH FOOTBALL.

Dr. STEWART PATON of Princeton thinks that football is getting too much attention. Princeton men are justified in a feeling of the sort, but it may be doubted if the theory will win converts at New Haven this year. Next year is another matter.

Yet there is a good deal in Dr. PATON's theory. For large numbers of students and alumni in most of the colleges in the United States last Saturday was, temporarily, the end of the world, and nothing worth talking about will happen before next September. A good part of the intervening period will be spent in thinking about the next football season, except in those parts of the country where basketball in its turn is an epidemic form of insanity. Dr. PATON likes football, but he thinks that on the present scale it has become a great industry beyond the powers of the undergraduates who should naturally handle it, and that it must inevitably fall into the hands of older men who use the undergraduates more or less as tools of the trade. That is an objection of some force, but Dr. PATON seems to subordinate it to the more serious complaint that football permanently warps the judgment of the average college man.

For four impressionable years the student is taught that glory or shame, eternal disgrace or dazzling triumph, depends on what happens on the successive Saturdays of Autumn, and particularly on the last Saturday before Thanksgiving. Unless he is lucky, he finds it "impossible to readjust his thought processes" after he has left college, and remains permanently "at the football level." This needs no argument in view of the notorious fact that alumni are more responsible for excesses of the athletic spirit than are undergraduates.

What are we going to do about it? The people of this Union are always going to excess about something or other; if football did not permanently warp such judgments as are warpable, something else would. Football is not the only thing which makes men unable to distinguish between the important and the trivial in later life; lack of proportion has attained the dignity of a characteristic national trait. Dr. PATON believes in football as a game and as a sport, and does not propose to get rid of it. This is just as well; if it were cast out, seven other devils, worse than it, would probably take possession both of undergraduates and alumni. Football may aggravate a tendency already existing in Americans, both with and without collegiate training; but the fundamental fault lies in the national character. It may be due to the climate, as flattering foreigners sometimes suggest; but at any rate it is there, and it will not be cured by closing the stadiums.

VOICES ACROSS THE SEA.

How long can we continue to think ourselves isolated from Europe when we can actually hear voices across the sea? The first faint sounds of music and of words that came through the night of Sunday from Liverpool and Glasgow and Cardiff, and that were caught out of the air by instruments along our coast in New York and Massachusetts, were but a premonition of the development of mysterious and wide-reaching agencies placed by science at the command of man. "Beginning doubtfully and far away," as the organist in LOWELL's story of the Holy Grail, who built a bridge of music "along the wavering vista of his dream," the electro-physicist has done a more marvelous thing than ever poet dreamed, artist pictured or engineer constructed, in building a bridge of music and of speech across the ocean.

What the perfection of this means of communication is to bring it is impossible to forecast. We are on the edge of a new age of experience, when the people of the planet will be within the reach of one voice as the people of one country now are. The telephone and the phonograph were at first regarded as mere toys, but the uses to which they have been put have affected the social, industrial and political life of the whole civilized world. It is conceivable that the wireless radio, which has now the novelty of a new toy, will carry mankind even further toward a spiritual oneness and an inevitable internationalism, higher than has been possible with less perfect means of intercommunication.

Before the confusion of tongues at Babel, "the whole earth was of one language and one speech." If wireless telephony progresses toward what now seems its certain goal, it will hasten the day when the whole earth will truly be of one language and speech; at any rate, when every man will be able to hear others speak each in his own language, in a new Pentecost whose electric waves will "gird" with one voice "the countless host."

THE ISSUE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

To understand the significance of Governor General WOOD's veto of the bill to remit penalties for the non-payment of Philippine land taxes for 1923 it must be explained that not long ago MANUEL QUEZON advocated extension of the time for their payment. The Governor General declined to grant this, because he had learned that 90 per cent. of those subject to taxation had paid. For the most part they were people in moderate circumstances. Many of the rich land owners were delinquent. A bill was introduced in the Legislature to remit penalties that had been incurred. The Governor General's disapproval was based upon his judgment that such penalties should not be canceled except when necessary, as in time of flood, drought or epidemic. This veto may have a historical importance. The bill, it is said, will be passed over the Governor General's veto. Then the final decision will lie with President COOLIDGE. To him the bill and the record will be referred, as the Jones act provides. He will have an opportunity to review the administration of LEONARD WOOD—to sustain him in his controversy with the Nationalists or by implication rebuke him for exceeding his powers.

It is maintained by Americans resident in the Philippines that if the autonomous Government is not stable the reason may be found in subversion of the system of checks and balances established by the Jones act. The Filipino politicians, they declare, have steadily undermined the authority of the Governor General. The Jones act provided the Governor General with a Cabinet, but upon it was superimposed a Council of State to consist of the Cabinet members, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House. In this body bills are formulated. Without its approval no bill has a chance of passage. The Cabinet is controlled by the Filipino leaders, QUEZON and OSMENA. Appointments to the Cabinet have to be confirmed by the Senate. Another body that was not contemplated by the Jones act, and that is also ruled by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, is the Board of Control. It consists of those officials and the Governor General. Its powers are of a financial and commercial nature. It votes the Government stock in the "national" companies and elects railroad, bank and other directors. In his policy of getting the Government out of business General WOOD is constantly thwarted by the other two members of the Board of Control. MANUEL QUEZON takes the position that in matters of a local nature the Governor General has no concern.

The real issue at Manila today is the validity of the Jones law and its disregard by the Philippine Legislature. Congress will have to deal with the matter. It is much better that a veto of a taxation bill by the Governor General rather than a petty row about the job of a city detective should bring affairs to a head in Washington.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ready Now to Be Forgiven!

Even wildly theorizing folk like the Soviet leaders learn from hard experience, even to the extent of abandoning or modifying their dearest notions. For months past the great men of Moscow have realized that in the present state of the world and its inhabitants, including those of Russia, thoroughgoing Communism is not workable, and they have allowed the capitalistic camel to get not only his head, but his forequarters also, into the Soviet tent. This was grossly inconsistent, but it simply had to be done, and therefore it was done.

Now another discovery has been made—the discovery that there are several kinds of work and therefore as many kinds of workers, with one about as necessary for the general welfare as another, and that the ideal of a completely proletarian world, with only those whose toil is with their hands allowed to eat, cannot be attained. That experiment was made with considerable thoroughness in Russia, and such of the brain workers as were not shot or frightened out of the country have been treated hitherto as worthless persons, more lucky than they deserved if permitted to starve quietly to death.

The effects of this policy have at last become clear to the Soviet leaders, and in addition to allowing the surviving "intelligentsia" to hold a convention in Moscow as the All-Russian Union of Scientists they have sent high Government officials to the meetings to proclaim a new era. Of course, these officials have expressed no regret for the persecutions of the past; what they have done is to ask that the past be forgotten by the men of science and that they join in with everybody else in the reorganisation of Russia.

That is a pathetic plea! How it will be treated by the Russian savants, especially by those now in other and safer countries, remains to be seen, but probably they will let bygones be bygones and do what they can to remedy the dreadful mistakes made by their now repentant, or at any rate regretful, persecutors.

Fair Weather Railroading Was Enough.

Only the very oldest of New York's Old Residents have memories that go back to the days when the New York Central Railroad was making its first efforts to show the practicability of such services as it intended to render if ever it could get itself built. That was in 1832, or ninety-one years ago—a time not very remote in the history of some cities, and a good way from the beginning even of ours, but New York was then a place quite different from what it is now, and its inhabitants were different, too, else the Central's officers would not have caused to be printed in the newspapers of Nov. 21 that year the following advertisement, which the road's present President, A. H. SMITH, has exhumed from the dusty archives:

> The New York and Harlem Railroad Company. The cars will run upon the rails from Prince Street to Fourteenth Street in the Bowery at 9 o'clock A. M. each fair day, except Sunday, for the purpose of affording evidence to the public of the expediency of using railroads in the city. A small charge will be made to defray expenses.—A. C. Ramsdale, Secretary.

For many a year after that "the expediency of using railroads in the city" was admitted, but always with a reluctance that steadily was growing greater. One need not be old to remember when the Central's and the New Haven's trains ran at street level through the upper stretches of Park Avenue, and of course the tracks coming down from Spuyten Duyvil beside the Hudson still are the subject of frequent comment, more or less heated. But cars that run "each fair day except Sunday" would be regarded nowadays as proving nothing except somebody's distorted sense of humor.

A Bear Not in Wall Street.

ERNEST HAROLD BAYNES, who has demonstrated his passion for giving pain by inflicting an enormous amount of it on the anti-vivisectionists, has caused them new sufferings by writing a book about Jimmie, a black bear cub that for some time was a member of the Baynes family at its home up in New Hampshire. The anti-vivisectionists will hate this book because in it, as in "Polaris, the Story of an Eskimo Dog," the author is revealed as not only a lover of animals but as possessed of almost limitless patience in dealing with them.

For Jimmie, like Polaris, was a troublesome creature, devoting almost the whole of his waking hours to the doing of things mischievous and more or less destructive. What the neighbors thought of his activities is only hinted in Mr. BAYNES's narrative, but it is more than doubtful that they wholly approved of letting young bears roam the countryside. To be sure, Jimmie never hurt anybody. He scared many, however, by his demonstrations of affection, and at last, though he had shown no signs of viciousness, the vigor of his embraces became ominous and he was given to our own Zoological Garden, where he remains among the finest specimens of his tribe.

One readily can believe that Jimmie was greatly missed by the Baynes family and all the people living near them. They no longer had to wait with apprehension to see what Jimmie would do next—to which task previously much of their time had to be given.

He Knew the Man for the Job.

Lieut. Col. GRAHAM F. CHANDLER, the retiring Superintendent of the New York State Police, has been asked by Governor SMITH to name the man whom he considers best fitted to be his successor in this important position. It was like the Governor to seek advice in the quarter where it was likely to be most trustworthy, and it was like Colonel CHANDLER to recommend Captain JOHN A. WARNER, now in command of the troop stationed in White Plains, an officer with whom his association has been long and close and one with whose qualifications he therefore was thoroughly familiar.

Captain WARNER joined the State Police at its organization and has been with it ever since. Not only has he done his full share of the trooper's work on the country roads, but he has studied carefully the police methods of this country and of Europe, and is competent to give to the New York force the benefit of the experiences and discoveries made elsewhere in this form of protective service.

His appointment as Superintendent would seem in every way to promise good results, and the Governor hardly could be mistaken in making it.

COLUMBIA'S PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to raise the question whether Columbia's problem is not a general one in American education. I also ask: Is it not possible that, with all our boasted advance in method, there are yet a good many in teaching positions who need to learn how to teach? Are stimulus and direction made enough of in our schools? Is Professor Garman's classroom method followed as it should be? He said: "Not what we can give the student, but what we can induce him to get, and give his estimate of, in order that we may know how to direct him in further study."

At 2 o'clock A. M. I finished copying sentences found below from a volume of addresses by Edward Thring, Headmaster of Uppingham School, England, from 1853 to 1889.

At 8 o'clock A. M. I read your report of the proposal at Columbia. You may explain as you like the psychology of association between the sentences of Thring and the proposal reported in your paper.

I am to a reasonable degree in sympathy with Woodrow Wilson, who of college training has written: "You know that with all our teaching we train nobody; you know that with all our instructing we educate nobody."

"The swallowing system is all wrong. • • • However good the food, the full belly is not good if the exercise and the strength and the skillful use of strength is not to be the outcome of feeding. Your business is to train athletes, not to fatten geese.

"Those little laborers' sons in the suburbs of Gloucester whose unfurnished heads must be got into by the Cambridge honor man bred in me a supreme contempt for knowledge-lumps, and for emptying out knowledge-lumps in a heap, like stones at the roadside, and calling it teaching.

"They taught me how different knowing is from being able to make others know. They taught me how different is that knowledge which can be produced to an examiner, from that which knows itself and understands its own life and growth. • • • There was a wonderful freshness in these schools, a most exhilarating sense of life touching life, of freedom and reality, succeeding my school and college days—days of heaps of knowledge, knowledge-lumps, which, like sheaves of corn on a day threatening rain, had to be loaded up and carted in, against time.

"I know no sadder sight in creation than to see a slow, good boy kneading himself laboriously, because he is good, into hopeless despair through being forced to load in the measured quantity of knowledge-lumps from outside, against time.

"Life must have free play or there can be no teaching.

"Shoving in the regulation quantity is one thing; clearing the stuff out of the bewildered brain and strengthening the mind is another; and the two are foes.

"Plato's true learner learns 'smoothly, without stumbling, and in a prevailing way.'

"Loving work, unfettered work, persevering work make up Plato's idea of a true worker.

"The knowledge-monger will work for the invoice; the teacher for the picture.

"There is a vast difference between the exquisite gladness of new exploration and the standing up to the neck in rules in a hole. Dropping unconnected fragments into the minds of boys, and being annoyed when they do not understand broken bits of knowledge and refuse to be interested in the uninteresting, will in time cease to be called teaching.

"Teaching gets it all out of the learner, with much fun and sparring in doing it.

"The first article of the teacher's creed is, Work from the inside outwards. The second is, Take the bandage off the eyes. Never fly hooded hawks. How many boys have the slightest real instruction given them how to do it? It is as much the teacher's business to study his material and to make it fit for his work as it is his business to work it up afterwards. This is the pretty law, and is to the intent that the pupil is got into condition to make him fit for work. He must want to work. He must be shown how to work."

LATE BLOSSOMS.

There are small, strong things
That are brave in a garden
Long after Summer's
Dead and done,
Bright colors fade
And soft stems harden,
And satin petals fade
One by one.

But some humble plants,
Like petunias, stay green;
They do not wilt as weaker
Flowers do.
And among dead leaves today
A small, ruddy flame is seen
As one ragged, gold nasturtium
Struggles through.

Sometimes the larkspur bears
One bright blue spire,
Sometimes you'll find a lonely
Marigold,
Single embers glowing in
A burnt out fire,
The last word spoken by
A year grown old.

Now the corn is stacked
And is russet in the sun,
There are red apples piled
In the bin,
We have stores of nuts,
And the Fall plowing's done.
The last, late harvest's Gathered in.

But still, if you'll look
In some safe, sheltered place,
A blossom now and then
You may find,
It comes to Winter's door
With its delicate grace,
An offering that Summer
Left behind.

Hope of Independence Cannot Be Withdrawn Now.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of the 16th there was published a resolution passed by the American Chamber of Commerce in the Philippines demanding that the Philippine Islands be converted into a permanent American territory, giving as its reason that the present controversy was interfering with business, as if success in business were the primary aim of government. When will men learn that it is not so? The primary aim of government ought to be the happiness and contentment of the people concerned.

The American people have been credited with a high sense of honor and intelligence, and there is ample reason for this statement. It seems to me, however, that those Americans in the Philippines who by their votes passed the resolution herein mentioned have permitted the almighty dollar to becloud their Americanism and have distinguished themselves by becoming exceptions to the rule.

I sincerely and seriously wish that it were wise for us to accept American citizenship, for what greater honor can be conferred on a man than the name American? American history and the biographies of all the great Americans are open books to us; our people are versed in the fundamental principles of the Declaration of Independence; and not a few can recite by heart Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Our inherent and natural love for freedom has been enhanced by the above influences. Furthermore, our knowledge of American life and contact with American minds have taught us to believe that "a man who is still dependent upon his parents for support in his full manhood is an undesirable citizen." Americans would pity such a man, and if an American they would call him a mighty poor product of American institutions. On this concept we look forward to the day when we shall be granted our certificate of nationality, and in our humble way will add our light to the torch-light of liberty; and just as it has been so kindly and so generously passed on to us, in the same spirit and generosity we will also pass it on to our next-door neighbors. That day is at hand.

In so pleading for Philippine independence I plead not only in the interest of the Filipino people but in the interest of America as well, for trade cannot be imposed on an unwilling people. Commercial relations are largely voluntary, and for America to succeed financially in her Oriental trade by way of the Philippines she must reckon with one important factor—the good-will of the Filipino people. Ex-Governor Forbes says that American trade with the Philippines is now worth $200,000,000 a year. More important than this, because I feel that my idealism and all that I am now I owe it to America, and although not an American I am American in my heart and in spirit, I plead for the preservation of American traditions, American principles, and American ideals. Most important of all, I plead for Philippine independence in the interest of world peace.

I honestly believe that much more can be accomplished in the Philippines to our mutual benefit, materially, spiritually and in every other way, with America there, not as a colonising power, but as a friend and a helper. Being citizens of the colonising power breeds haughtiness and a feeling of superiority on the part of some. There may be but a few of them, but they are enough to cause irritation and trouble. The Filipino people are satisfied that the American nation has no motive in the Philippines other than an unselfish one, but the passage of the resolution herein mentioned is an evidence of the fact that there are those who for love of personal power and personal gain would ignore an established policy and make "mere scraps of paper" of Presidential proclamations and acts of Congress.

It is my conviction that Providence in its wisdom has brought Filipinos and Americans together to evolve a doctrine and to fulfill a mission. The doctrine to be evolved is "My country for the good of mankind" and the mission to be fulfilled is to convince the world that this doctrine is practical. What a wonderful opportunity we have to show to the other nations of the earth that greater happiness, lasting peace and continued prosperity can be satisfactorily attained when, and only when, the motives of men and the policies of nations are linked with the spirit of service and fellowship among men!

Woodrow Wilson's Popularity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Fromenson's observations concerning applause in the movies when Woodrow Wilson's picture is shown accords with what I have heard many people remark.

I was myself a witness of just such a demonstration recently in a movie house in Cleveland, Ohio. Various celebrities' pictures were shown, and finally Wilson's. There was a crash of applause, real heart-prompted acclamation that contrasted sharply with the merely respectful hand-clapping that had greeted the previous pictures. In front of me sat two of the tribe of "the movie talkers," elderly, well-groomed ladies, who had disturbed all near them by their chatter. I forgave them, however, when their remarks following the outburst gave me light upon the popular attitude toward Wilson.

Said one, "Why is it that Wilson's picture always brings down the house?"

Her companion replied, "I guess it is because the people are finding out that Wilson was right, after all."

There it is! We hear it more and more. "Wilson's coming into his own again." That this is true is a vindication of American intellect. It all revives the hopes of those who have faith in American ideals, who believe that our nation, to endure, must live by the spirit. When all shall have been done and said, it will be seen that there never lived in America a braver champion of that spirit than Woodrow Wilson, "who never turned his back"—except upon corrupt politicians. Unpaid Bills of the Rich.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There have been so many drives for various things, I am wondering if some one will start a drive for rich women to pay their bills. I do not mean the large store accounts, but the small amounts due the dressmakers who go out by the day, seamstresses and a few others who give these women good service. Of course, the women are perfectly good and will pay in a month or so, but if they could only realize the suffering that is caused by their carelessness, I know they would pay the minute the bill was rendered. Guide to the Theatres.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me not only to thank you for, but to congratulate you on publishing your front page article in your issue for Nov. 21 on the usurious prices demanded by some of our New York theatres for the day of the West Point-Annapolis football game. A tabulated list such as you published of the theatres which raised their prices for the evening constitutes a bit of real news, to which New Yorkers are entitled. It will, I hope, serve as some guide to the more discriminating of our theatregoers.

MEET TO CONSTRUE LEAGUE COVENANT

SEQUEL TO CORFU INCIDENT

Experts Will Consider Questions Framed to Remove Ambiguities From Covenant.

GENEVA, Nov. 26.—The removal of ambiguities in the Covenant of the League of Nations is the prime object of a meeting of eminent jurists which began here today under the authority of a decision made at the September Assembly of the League, when the Italo-Greek dispute was so prominent in the League discussions.

The Italian Government maintained that the Covenant did not apply in the controversy with Greece over the massacre of Italian soldiers and the subsequent bombardment of Corfu. The question was finally adjusted by the Council of Ambassadors, which collaborated with the Council of the League, and in the closing hours of the Assembly Italy agreed to the declaration that any dispute between members of the League likely to lead to a rupture was within the sphere of action of the League.

Simultaneously the Council framed five questions the answers to which, it was felt, would give a more exact definition of the meaning of the Covenant, as it now stands, so that in future political controversies members of the League might have before them a clear statement of the League's rights and obligations. It was this series of questions which the experts had before them today. Their report will be submitted to the League Council on Dec. 10.

Question 1 asks the jurists to give their opinion concerning the Council's duty in case of disputes that are likely to develop a break between nations. It is calculated to determine whether the Council, when a dispute is brought to its attention, is obliged to decide whether in point of fact the dispute in question is of a nature "likely to lead to a rupture."

Question 2 asks whether the Council is bound to suspend its inquiry into a dispute submitted to it under Article XV. of the Covenant when, with the consent of the parties, the settlement of the dispute is being sought through some other channel. Lord Robert Cecil is the active leader of a group of League workers who insist that the League's supreme goal is the maintenance of peace, however it may be achieved, and that the League in complicated political controversies must not make the mistake of insisting on a strict interpretation of the Covenant for the sake of League prestige, when other means of peaceful settlement are at hand.

Question 3 says: "Is an objection founded on Article XV., Paragraph 8, of the Covenant the only objection based on the merits of the dispute on which the competence of the Council to make an inquiry can be challenged?" Paragraph 8, thus cited, asserts that if one nation contends, and the Council finds, that its dispute with another nation has arisen out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that country, the Council shall so report and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement.

The next question is an outgrowth of the Corfu bombardment. The jurists are asked for their opinions as to whether measures of coercion not intended as acts of war are consistent with the terms of Articles XII. to XV., when such steps are taken by one member of the League against another without prior recourse to the procedure laid down in these articles. This procedure includes submission of conflicts to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council, a request for an advisory opinion from the World Court of International Justice, and, in a general way, consent to a free and impartial inquiry by the Council of the League.

Italy argued in her dispute with Greece that the Greek Government was responsible in a sense for the massacre of Italian officers at Janina because it should have taken precautionary measures and should have afforded suitable protection to the Italian boundary mission. Greek authorities on international law contend that it was absurd to try to hold States responsible for political crimes committed within their borders. Determined to get a legal decision on this question, the Council compiled this query: "In what circumstances and to what extent is the responsibility of a State involved by the commission of a political crime in its territory?"

The possibility that some or all of these questions may later be referred to the World Court, as many members of the League demanded, still exists. The Council at its December session may take any action it sees fit on the report of the jurists and is empowered to seek advice from the Court.

HAYS—We, the members of the New York Executive Committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in special meeting assembled, record with profound sorrow the passing away of Daniel P. Hays, their leader and guide for many years.

A purer in Israel is lost in his departure. He was a benefactor to our people and an indefatigable worker for the cause of Judaism.

As permanent chairman of the recent Jubilee Convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Mr. Hays inspired the largest gathering of Jews ever assembled in this country at one meeting to reaffirm their devotion to Judaism. As chairman of the Executive Committee of the Isaac M. Wise Centenary his leadership helped immeasurably in furthering the activities of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Hebrew Union College. Of the latter institution he was an ardent advocate and supporter, influencing thousands of our coreligionists to aid in its aim to train religious leaders for our people. In New York he helped in the organization of religious schools to provide Jewish education for children in the congested districts of the city.

The memory of Daniel P. Hays will always be held precious by those who had the privilege of working side by side with him, and his loss will be felt by all who are devoted to the cause of good citizenship.

NATHAN J. MILLER, Chairman.
RABBI JACOB B. POLLAK, Secretary.

HAYS—Daniel Pelzotto. Executive Committee the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. In memoriam, Daniel Pelzotto Hays.

We record with profound regret the passing of our friend and associate, Daniel Pelzotto Hays, who entered the life beyond on Nov. 24, 1923.

A member of our Executive Committee for many years, he brought to our union the full measure of his genial personality, his deep religious fervor, his beneficent influence and his far-reaching executive ability, all of which proved an inspiration to his associates on this board and to the cause he served, the cause of American Judaism. Imbued with the true spirit of American democracy and the immortal tenets of our religion, he stood "four square," one of the almighty brotherhood of souls that seeks the highest good for the world, a soldier true and unafraid.

We mourn his loss. We shall miss his counsel and guidance. We cherish his memory. We extend our sympathy to the stricken family and humbly bowing our heads to the Divine decree, we in youth say: The Lord hath given; the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. Amen."

Investors in National Thrift Bond Corporation Will Be Paid in Full.

REPORT MADE TO COURT

Banking Superintendent McLaughlin Announces Other Creditors Will Get 58 Per Cent.

Supreme Court Justice Mullan received yesterday the report of Banking Superintendent George V. McLaughlin as liquidator of the National Thrift Bond Corporation. All its bondholders, consisting of thousands of employes of 150 industrial corporations, will be paid in full and its affairs wound up without litigation. The report shows that the creditors, other than the purchasers of its bonds, will get 58 per cent. The bulk of the claims were held by the Bank of Manhattan Company and the Equitable Trust Company.

Charles P. Howland, counsel for the corporation, and Ingalls Kimball, the President, appeared before Justice Mullan and asked that Superintendent McLaughlin's report be approved. No objections were made, but Justice Mullan reserved decision until he could examine the papers. Mr. Kimball said:

"The capital of the corporation was impaired to such an extent that when liquidation began it was a question whether there would be sufficient assets to pay the expenses of liquidation. It was only by the skillful, energetic and personal work of Superintendent McLaughlin and Samuel Rauch, special deputy superintendent, that brought the collection of $150,247 of assets for the creditors."

The National Thrift Bond Corporation was authorized to do business as an investment corporatoin on April 20, 1917, its purpose being an easy and safe method to promote thrift among the employes of large corporations. Thrift bonds were sold on the instalment plan, and in order to make it possible for the employe to save his employer deducted from his pay each week the amount paid toward a bond and gave him a receipt.

The corporation bought $822,400 of Municipal, State and Liberty bonds, which were deposited with the Equitable Trust Company and held in trust to cover the amount of the thrift bonds. Up to July 31, 1920, $391,348 of thrift bonds, thrift bond certificates and thrift receipts were in the hands of employes and the public. During the war the corporation used its sales forces in selling Liberty bonds instead of its own thrift securities, and a result more than $10,000,000 in Liberty bonds and Victory notes of small denominations were distributed among wage earners.

The failure of the banking firm of Imbrie & Co. in 1921 removed financial support upon which the corporation had been relying and caused an impairment of its capital. On July 31 of that year, when the directors found it impossible to restore the impaired capital, the State Banking Department was asked to take it over. Ex-Justice Robert L. Luce was made counsel to the Banking Superintendent in his efforts to save all the money invested by wage earners.

A bit of our business that is your business

A few blocks from the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan Bridge is a large new factory —Library Bureau's new card factory.

A few blocks from the Manhattan end of the same bridge is a 5 story building—Library Bureau's new store for serving New York.

This new factory has been built on three important facts about record cards that experience has taught New York business men—

—That there is as much difference between record cards as there is between filing cabinets.

—That inasmuch as even an expert can be fooled by substitution of card stock, it is good business to buy cards from a reliable organization.

L. B.'s new store at 320 Broadway, N.Y.

And business has learned that Library Bureau is a dependable source for all cards—the finest cards for permanent records or cards at a price.

New York's demand for Library Bureau cards has increased 150% in 3 years. It has built this new factory in Brooklyn, that produces 250,000 cards a day. It has helped open the new store in New York.

Come to this store for your card requirements or ask an L.B. salesman to bring samples to your office.

SEA RUMRUNNER HELD ON 2 LIQUOR CHARGES

ARRAIGNED IN BROOKLYN

CREW ALSO ARE HELD HERE

Report of Seizure Shows That Liquor Runner Fired on Cutter With Machine Gun.

William F. McCoy, accused of being chief of the West Indian liquor runners, who was seized on the British schooner Tomaka outside the three-mile limit by the United States Coast Guard on Sunday, was arraigned in two Federal jurisdictions yesterday. He faces arraignment in a third today. The charges grow out of his alleged rum-running expeditions. Reports from Washington were that the seizure was ordered by the Treasury Department after it was established that the Tomaka had been in contact with the shore.

British Vice Consul Leonard Parrish was at the hearing yesterday when McCoy was questioned, and refused to comment on the case, explaining that he would closely follow the preliminary investigation of the Federal authorities and report to the British Consul General. He is expected to make his report to the British Ambassador at Washington. A cable from London yesterday showed that the British Government was without official information of the seizure of the Tomaka.

In Washington it was explained that the British schooner was seized under instructions of the Treasury Department, which had a record of the Tomaka's alleged liquor-running activities, including contact with shore when liquor was landed. It was said that no protest was expected from the British Government.

The record of the Tomaka, according to Edward Barnes, Assistant Solicitor of the Port, shows that the schooner repeatedly has fired on Coast Guard cutters. The testimony at the hearing before Mr. Barnes showed that the Tomaka had opened fire with a machine gun on the Federal cutters that effected her capture.

All Give $5,000 Bail.

McCoy and the crew of eight were first arraigned before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock on a complaint charging them with being fugitives from justice in the State of New Jersey. In the complaint made by Lieut. Commanders Louis W. Perkins and James J. Lynch, Special Agents of the Treasury Department, it is charged that they landed more than 100 cases of liquor in violation of the Volstead act at or near Seabright, N. J. The prisoners were held in $5,000 bail each for a further hearing on Dec. 6. They furnished bail.

McCoy was then arraigned before Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin in Brooklyn on a charge of smuggling liquor off Montauk Point. He pleaded not guilty to the charge contained in the indictment handed down, Nov. 9, 1921, and was held in $15,000 bail. McCoy and his men will be taken today to Newark for arraignment on smuggling charges in New Jersey.

The sailors who were arraigned with McCoy before Commissioner Hitchcock gave their names as John Downey, alias John Brophy, 37, Claire Tanner, Haslem Knickes, Percy Levy, George J. Morash, Clark Hubbey, Harold Knuckle, and Michael Murphy.

McCoy was represented by Colonel Thomas B. Felder before Assistant Solicitor Barnes. He was questioned by Collector of the Port Philip Elting to whom the official report of the seizure was made and by Chief Deputy Surveyor of the Port William R. Sanders. Following a conference with representatives of the Collector of Internal Revenue, McCoy's $68,000, which was seized by the Coast Guard agents, was returned to him on instructions of Assistant Solicitor Barnes. The money was in paper currency and it filled a large burlap sack. Assistant Solicitor Barnes said he wished the people of the United States could have seen the money as he thought it would have been a good "object lesson."

Runners Returned Fire.

The report to Collector Elting showed that the Tomaka was first boarded by Lieut. Commander Perkins of the Coast Guard cutter Seneca, who ordered the crew to keep silent. The bow of the schooner then was turned out to sea, and when the commander of the cutter observed the movement, he sent a shot across the bow of the Tomaka. She returned the fire with a machine gun set up on her forward deck. The machine gunners ran to cover when the shells of the Seneca began to fall so close to their mark that they kicked the spray over the Tomaka's deck.

When McCoy appeared at the hearing before Assistant Solicitor Barnes, he was asked what defense he planned to make. He replied:

"I have been a lot of woe to tell you. I was outside the three-mile limit, selling whisky, and good whisky, to any one and every one who wanted to buy."

"Up until three years ago I lived with my parents in Daytona, Fla., and built high-class yachts, he continued. I built one for Frederick Vanderbilt and another for Maxine Elliot. Then in 1921 my parents died. Shortly after this my bulldog died. That was the last tie to my affections in Daytona, so I decided to go to sea.

"I bought a yacht of British registry, stocked her with booze at Nassau, put the liquor under seal and brought her to various American ports. The most profitable port was New York. I would dock at that port, then go up Broadway and accost pleasure parties desiring to take a little excursion trip. I later formed the British Transportation Company, Inc., with headquarters at Daytona. I bought two yachts, put them under charter to various parties, specifying that they stay outside the twelve-mile limit if they intended to peddle liquor. The Henry Marshall, sister ship of the Tomaka, was manned by a crew and officer with little discipline, who ran liquor off Atlantic City. Owing to the fact that there was little discipline aboard, these men were arrested in a drunken condition at Atlantic City and I as owner of the yacht was indicted for conspiracy.

Crew All British, He Says.

"I think I should have surrendered then, but, having heard weird tales of the treatment accorded bootleggers, I stayed away from the prohibition authorities. The captain of the Henry Marshall was a cheater and, after his arrest, I decided to go in business for myself.

"It was from the Ocean Trading Company of Halifax that I bought the Tomaka. I put her under British registry and manned her with a British captain, mate, engineer and four sailors. I ran the vessel for a year outside of the three-mile limit selling liquor only of a high quality and giving every one a square deal.

"The price of my liquor was $22 a case, giving me a profit of $4 on each case. The American Consul at Nassau had known all along that I was selling liquor, but he also was aware that I sold it only off the three-mile limit."

He said that every man aboard the Tomaka but himself was a British subject.

Walter G. Winne, United States Attorney at Trenton, N. J., made a request of the local authorities to turn McCoy over to the Federal authories in New Jersey for arraignment on a charge of smuggling from the schooner Marshall as well as from the Tomaka. Following arraignment in New Jersey today McCoy and his men will be brought back to the barge office for further questioning by the Customs authorities.

TREATY NOT INVOLVED.

Washington Reports Tomaka Had Contact With Shore.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The schooner Tomaka, alleged to be the flagship of a fleet of rum-runners which has given the authorities endless trouble, was seized Sunday afternoon off Seabright under orders issued by the Treasury Department, which has supervision over the Coast Guard Service. This action was taken after the Department of Justice had supplied information indicating that there was evidence of irregularity in connection with the registry papers of the vessel, and also that she had carried contraband liquor and had established contact with the American shore.

The treaty now being negotiated by Great Britain and the United States, under which, if ratified, this Government will have the right, within a twelve-mile limit, to search and seize vessels of British registry suspected of engaging in rum running, was not directly involved in the capture of the Tomaka, but it was indicated by Treasury officials that no protest by the British Government in the Tomaka case was expected. The treaty negotiations, however, have reached a point where the facts developed in conversations between the Governments might be taken into consideration, where there was a reasonably definite evidence, as in the Tomaka case, that smuggling of illicit liquor had been going on.

It is the policy of the Treasury Department that other seizures outside the three-mile limit will be made, if evidence which appears satisfactory to the Government is obtained.

The British Embassy was awaiting today a complete report of the capture of the Tomaka and did not communicate with either the State Department or the Treasury. It was said at the embassy that there was no statement to make at this time except that there was no verbal or other understanding with the American Government, because of negotiations for a twelve-mile limit treaty, under which search and seizure of British vessels was permitted.

LONDON STILL IN THE DARK.

Government Has No Formal Report on Tomaka's Seizure.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The capture of the British ship Tomaka on a charge of liquor running has not yet been called officially to the attention of the British Government and consequently there is as yet no official information as to whether it will raise the question as to the schooner being outside the three-mile limit when the Seneca boarded it.

There seems, however, not much doubt that if the British skipper can establish the fact that he was more than three miles off shore the British authorities will feel themselves bound to make a protest to keep their record on the question of territorial waters clear. But there are many kinds of protests, and it may be assumed that if this one is made it will be entirely formal.

The British Government has no sympathy whatever with liquor runners, and as it hopes that Washington will soon be able to enter into a bargain by which American customs patrols can search suspected British craft a good deal further out than three miles it will certainly not take very seriously a seizure which is merely anticipatory of the proposed agreement.

WILL ASK TO SEARCH CANADIAN RUM SHIPS

American Delegates Will Present Proposals at Ottawa Conference Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The United States Government will propose at the American-Canadian conference on liquor smuggling opening tomorrow at Ottawa that clearance of ships destined for United States ports with liquor cargoes be prohibited by Canada; that search and seizure of vessels engaged in smuggling on the Great Lakes be authorized, and that a treaty arrangement be made for extradition of persons accused of violating the liquor laws.

Other points on the tentative list of American proposals are:

Obligation of vessels to proceed to ports for which they clear.

Measures to stop smuggling by land, to include the reporting by Canadian officials to United States officials of all shipments by automobiles or by airplanes.

A reciprocal arrangement for attendance of witnesses, execution of commissions and certification of records necessary in liquor cases.

Assistant Secretary Moss of the Treasury Department, who heads the American delegation to the conference, left today for Ottawa. He said he hoped to report an arrangement within a week.

Parliamentary Action Needed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—The list of proposals which American delegates purpose to introduce at the international conference on rum smuggling opening here tomorrow far exceeds the scope of a purely administrative conference, and involves changes in legislation which could be carried into effect only by acts of Parliament.

This was the opinion expressed today in official circles after a close scrutiny of dispatches from Washington indicating the subjects which would be brought up by the Americans.

The view taken here was that the proposals introduced a new element and further complicated a situation already complex. It was pointed out that Canadian liquor laws were provincial in scope; that the Dominion Parliament thus far had passed only ancillary legislation, and that any proposal involving a general prohibition law for the Dominion would meet vigorous opposition.

Landlord Gets Thirty Days For Failing to Heat House

Herman Steinhart of 1,565 Park Place, Brooklyn, was fined $500 with the alternative of thirty days in jail for failing to provide heat and hot water for the thirty tenants in his apartment house at 54 Hunterspoint Avenue and 75 Van Alst Avenue, Long Island City, by Magistrate James J. Conway in Long Island City Police Court yesterday. Steinhart refused to pay the fine and took the jail sentence.

Testimony of the indignant tenants was reinforced by an examination by the Board of Health, which led the Magistrate to say: "I find conditions here about the worst I have ever heard of."

QUACK TRAIL LEADS TO OCEAN LINERS

EVIDENCE BEFORE COOLIDGE

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 26.—One subpoena having already been served on a surgeon at a United States veterans' hospital in Massachusetts, there is reason to believe that medical fakers, many of whom have already been exposed by the Connecticut Grand Jury, have entered the Public Health Service and the Veterans' Bureau. Not only do the Connecticut authorities concede the possibility of such a situation, but it is declared that many of the big ocean steamship companies have been deceived by quacks like those licensed by the Connecticut Eclectic Examining Board and that they are even now in charge of the medical departments of some liners.

Evidence bearing on this point and assumptions drawn from it, it was learned today, were laid before President Coolidge Saturday in the two hours' conference with Governor Charles A. Templeton and State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, who returned to Connecticut yesterday. From reliable sources it is learned that the possibilities of the penetration of the Federal health departments by quacks were grave enough to warrant Prosecutor Alcorn halting his Connecticut work to go with Governor Templeton to see the President on the advisability of prompt and drastic action.

Hundreds of Quacks Outside State.

Dr. Charles E. Prior, Secretary of the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Medicine, arrived today and had a long conference with Connecticut State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborne, with the result that both learned many things of value in the work of clearing up their respective States. Dr. Osborne has been perusing the records of the Connecticut eclectic Board and he finds that about one-third only of the "doctors" certified to his department for licenses ever located or attempted to practice in Connecticut.

This means that undoubtedly other States got what the Federal Health Service and ocean liners did not get. Dr. Osborne figured that in the last fifty years Connecticut has licensed approximately 300 of them and reasons that there must be several hundred lurking outside of this State.

Dr. Frederick K. Works, an assistant surgeon at the United States War Veterans Hospital 44, at West Roxbury, Mass., who also conducted a Sunday afternoon business in Stonington, Conn., has been reached by subpoena servers who sought him for several days. He is represented as having told when he passed his Connecticut eclectic examination that he was a graduate of the Eastern University Eclectic School of Medicine at Baltimore.

The investigation has shown that this Baltimore institution is mythical and that although it never had more actual existence than a lithograph stone in a printing office, its spurious diplomas were scattered throughout the country.

Member of State Board Missing.

Samuel Posner, a licensee of the Connecticut Eclectic Examining Board on a Kansas City college diploma, was served with a subpoena at 354 Hopkinson Avenue, Brooklyn, and although he was here today waiting to be called into the Garnd Jury room, his testimony went over until tomorrow. Until a few weeks ago Posner lived at the home of Dr. John O. Perry on Howard Avenue, New Haven.

Dr. Perry, who is a member of the State Board, was reported tonight as having disappeared. His telephone was reported disconnected and callers at the Howard Avenue address tonight were told that Perry had moved away. Other members of the board remaining in the State tonight, so far as could be learned, are Dr. James E. Hair of Cheshire, Dr. Frederick A. White of New Canaan, and the board President, who has been aiding in the present investigation, Dr. Ernest B. Markham of Durham.

Dr. George Sutcliffe, who was chased to Albany and Canada on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death on his operating table, on May 22, of Albert C. Hoody, from an overdose of ether, was before the Grand Jury this afternoon, and will finish his testimony tomorrow. He has not been arrested and the bench warrant which is in the hands of County Detective Edward J. Hickey, will not be served until after the Grand Jury has finished with it, in order to prevent him invoking the prerogatives of an accused party.

Dr. Sutcliffe was preceded into the Grand Jury room by M. H. Dubbs of The Kinderhook Bureau of Privacy. Both had spent a restless night at the Bond Annex Hotel, where reporters and photographers had occupied adjoining rooms. Sutcliffe, who used to be a newspaper photographer before he became a doctor, tried unsuccessfully to avoid being snapped by photographers at the hotel, but later at the court house he was persuaded to face the lenses.

Sutcliffe Insists on Innocence.

Concerning Hoody's death, Captain Thomas J. Bannigan of the American Legion Bureau in this city today gave out a letter received on May 30 from Dr. Edwin M. Ripley, stated last week as Medical Examiner of the town of Farmington, in which Unionville is located. When the American Legion asked for details of the death of the war veteran, Dr. Ripley, from whom Dr. Sutcliffe bought his practice on the installment plan, wrote:

"Albert C. Heody died from ether anaesthesia following an accident. After a thorough examination I decided that an autopsy was not necessary. It is one of those rare happenings due to an idiosyncrasy, which could not be foreseen or prevented."

Dr. Sutcliffe, so it was said, devoted most of his testimony today to his previous confession of buying his diplomas in St. Louis and getting a Connecticut license, while in Colorado, for $100.

His previous confession involves two members of the State Eclectic Examining Board and about twenty other Connecticut "doctors." When asked by THE NEW YORK TIMES reporter if he wished to repudiate, amplify or comment on his published confession, Sutcliffe answered he was not saying anything, on the advice of Attorney George F. Hannahan.

Later, Dubbs said the confession was more of a statement than a confession, but agreed it was a matter of choice as to characterization. Dr. Sutcliffe was reported to have made this statement:

"My confession to the Governor was the plain statement of an innocent man who had nothing to hide. I have been advised not to make a statement outside the Grand Jury room and can only say I will be completely vindicated."

Hannahan said tonight he had not yet been formally retained as Dr. Sutcliffe's counsel.

Declare Ship Surgeons Qualified.

Relative to the fears expressed at Hartford yesterday that doctors holding fake diplomas and illegally obtained licenses are sailing on big ocean liners, steamship agents in New York ridiculed the idea.

So far as the foreign liners are concerned, they said, the medical officers have to satisfy the Government authorities that they hold the proper diplomas from recognized universities, because they have immigrants under their care. Most of the ship surgeons under the Union Jack, it was added, are Scotch or Irish and hold degrees form Edinburgh, Glasgow, London and Dublin universities.

The same fact applies also to liners flying the American flag which carry immigrants, the agents declared, and the steamship companies are careful to see that their medical officers have proper diplomas.

STUTTGART, Germany, Nov. 26.—Thirteen thousand Germans weekly are obtaining visas for the United States since it became known that the German quota for the fiscal year ending July 1 next will probably be exhausted this month.

The consulate in this city, which leads all the American consulates in Germany in the number of visas issued, is practically besieged, most of the applicants being peasants who are in a panic lest they be too late. Bremen comes next in the number of visas being granted, and Hamburg, Cologne, Munich, Frankfort and Berlin follow in the order named.

Germany's quota for the year is 67,000. In Germany alone 50,943 visas for the United States had been granted up to Oct. 31, and 37,152 Germans had sailed for America, leaving only 29,848 vacancies.

Emigrants now are seeking to take the first steamer lest they be barred and the Shipping Board and foreign lines are hard pressed for space and much concerned over the prospect of several lean months before next year's quota brings another rush for transatlantic travel.

After the quota is exhausted students will still be permitted to go to America if they can present to the American consulates satisfactory proof of their preparation for higher educational work and can satisfy the United States authorities that they have sufficient funds to carry on their studies or have friends on the other side who will finance them.

KNAUTH PLAN PUT UP TO MORGAN PARTNER

TRIED TO AVERT FAILURE

Frederick P. Delafield, counsel for George W. Perkins, testified at the Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne bankruptcy hearing yesterday regarding the Perkins-Peyton $3,000,000 loan to the banking firm in November, 1922. Mr. Delafield was questioned in his own office by James N. Rosenberg, attorney for Middleton S. Borland, the receiver, whose purpose is to determine whether the Perkins-Peyton group were in effect partners in the firm and as such liable to the creditors.

After Mr. Delafield had recounted the various conferences on the firm's reorganization, after the intimation by Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the Stock Exchange, that the firm faced suspension, Mr. Delafield said there had been no agreement with Mr. Cromwell on this question.

"The principal reason for going to the Stock Exchange," said Mr. Delafield, "was to put them in possession of the facts of what negotiations were going on between the Perkins and Peyton interests and Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne that they might be in possession of the facts and act as they might see fit."

When the reorganization plan had been worked out Mr. Delafield said there had been a conference at his office at which it was decided that he and George B. Case, representing one of the partners, see Thomas Cochran, a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co.

"Mr. Case was to tell Mr. Cochran that an agreement to make a loan, evidenced by papers, had been signed to. I was to go to the Stock Exchange and tell them that these loans were to be made. I went over to the Stock Exchange, I think, after leaving J. P. Morgan's office and showed the committee the plan of Nov. 15."

"Did the time ever come when the Stock Exchange told you that the situation was satisfactory and they would not suspend Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne?" Mr. Rosenberg asked.

"No, they never told me that," Mr. Delafield replied. "They simply said me that were awaiting further notice."

A hearing scheduled for today has been postponed until the morning of Dec. 5.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, No.. 26.—Mrs. Esther Litt, aunt of Howard Rothenberg, 7 years old, of Newark, who was strangled to death and his body left near an old mill in the village of Windham, was before the Greene County Grand Jury today, which is investigating the boy's death.

It is understood that Mrs. Litt repeated to the Grand Jury her assertions that she had not seen the boy on the morning of the murder, but that when he was slain she was on her way to a creamery at the other side of the village, accompanied by Bert Branaugh, son of the proprietor of the Sumner boarding house where Rothenberg's parents and Mrs. Litt were guests.

Branaugh, who preceded Mrs. Litt in the Grand Jury room, made a statement that appeared to upset the theory of the prosecution that the boy had been murdered in a barn. An autopsy had shown the boy had taken part of an onion. The other part was found near the barn. Branaugh said this onion was taken from a yard near the fishing hole where the boy usually went each morning.

District Attorney Charles C. Coffin intimated tonight that the investigation would close tomorrow with the examination of Mrs. Joseph Serafin, foster-mother of Annie Sobin, the sixteen-year-old nurse of the murdered boy.

SHORT SKIRTS PREDICTED.

Dress Manufacturers Say Paris Again Has Willed It.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 26.—The return of the short skirt was predicted here today by David N. Mossessohn of New York, presiding officer of the annual convention of the Associated Dress Industries of America. "Advice from Paris," he said, state that the dress of the fashionable woman should be eight inches from the ground." In convention circles this word from Paris was taken as assurance that the short skirt would come back in the very near future.

A movement is afoot to put the convention on record as opposed to the marketing of prison-made wearing apparel, and manufacturers will be asked to co-operate with Chambers of Commerce in agitating for legislation against such competition.

"We must demonstrate to the American women," said E. Irving Hanson, Vice President of H. R. Mallinson & Co., "that we in America can create American styles in American fabrics. There are 5,000,000 engaged in occupations at an average salary of $2,000 a year who spend more for their clothes than the wives of men with salaries of $10,000 a year. These busy women pay cash and demand the best quality, and form a valuable group in the clothing market."

DEFEATS ANTI-KLAN MOVE.

Oklahoma Senate Refuses to Vote Publicity for Names.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 26.—Opponents of legislation to reveal the membership of secret orders won another victory in the Oklahoma State Senate today when that body, by a vote of 19 to 13, rejected an amendment to the original bill which would have made membership lists available to any competent court. Supporters of anti-Klan legislation in the upper house had indicated that they placed great expectations in the success of the amendment.

Governor M. E. Trapp announced today that he had abandoned his plan to address the Legislature at present on legislation affecting secret organizations. The Governor gave no reason for changing his program. He indicated that the message would be delivered later.

HUNT FOR $7,500,000 JONES & BAKER CASH

Creditors Say That Sum Was Involved in Deals With Affiliated Concern.

GOVERNMENT ASKS $600,000

In asking yesterday that certain material witnesses be subpoened to testify at the inquiry into the affairs of Jones & Baker, the Curb brokerage firm which failed for about $10,000,000, it was stated by Loring M. Black Jr., counsel for the creditors, that $7,500,000 had been turned over by the firm to the New Finance Corporation and that this money should be accounted for. The finance corporation was said to have been affiliated with Jones & Baker, but this was denied by the brokers. Mr. Black said that he believed that the securities pledged with the corporation by the firm found their way to a third broker.

At the hearing yesterday before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, the United States District Attorney answered that in any plan of compromise the $600,000, alleged to be due from Jones & Baker for income tax, must be taken into consideration. When the hearing opened John W. Dixon, counsel for Jones & Baker, offered a new plan for compromise which differed only slightly from a previous offer. Under its terms the firm offered cash payment of 50 per cent. and a distribution of securities on the basis of their value on May 31, when the receiver was appointed. It was estimated that this would bring the creditors 90 cents on the dollar.

Apparently the Government's claim for income tax had not been considered in the plan, and the Court was told that the Government was a creditor and that the 90 per cent. compromise could be accepted only with that understanding. In any case a new plan will have to be submitted, for the two already brought forward have been opposed by the creditors.

Among the witnesses Mr. Black seeks to put on the stand are Raymond D. Stone, a broker; one Kerstetter, who had been an employe of Jones & Baker, and Burt Brown Baker, a lawyer now in Europe, and the fate of whose return is uncertain.

The hearing was adjourned until the afternoon of Dec. 14.

ALBANY, Nov. 26.—During the 1923 hunting season, according to a report of the Conservation Commission covering the period to Nov. 15, 20 persons were killed and 77 were wounded. Five were killed and 30 wounded by the accidental discharge of firearms.

Hunters were unusually numerous this year, but while four more people were killed and nearly twice as many injured as last year the percentage of fatal accidents was only 26, as compared with 40 per cent. in the 1922 season.

Three hunters were killed and 28 wounded while hunting birds; two were killed and one injured hunting ducks, one was killed and two injured while hunting squirrels and three were killed and six injured while hunting rabbits. There was one less fatality and four more injured among the deer hunters as compared with last year.

HER DYING WISH GRATIFIED.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 26.—The desire of Helen Hamilton that her weak heart might keep on beating until her thirteenth birthday was realized today. The child has received gifts of eighteen birthday cakes, each with thirteen candles; twenty-four books, and candy enough to stock a store, but she can enjoy none of them. There is an abundance of flowers, however, in the room where she lies awaiting death.

Practical sympathizers sent gifts of money for the mother. When the child saw the presents and the flowers she said to her mother, "They are beautiful, but I am so tired." She was unconscious part of the day.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26.—C. L. Bardo, general manager of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, today said that reports of curtailment in car shops on the system were correct, but that 1,000 men only, not 1,500, were to be laid off for a time. The order will affect 200 men here, 500 at Readville, with others at East Hartford, Providence, Norwood and Van Nest. Mr. Bardo explained that there is a surplus of box cars on hand.

TRACE MYSTERY OF DUAL IDENTITY

Father of J. M. Arnof Says Son Met a Harry Wolfe and Went to Buenos Aires.

BODY HELD FOR BROTHERS

McCRORY, Ark., Nov. 26.—H. Arnof, father of Jacob M. Arnof, principal figure in the mysterious case of dual identity in Buenos Aires involving Harry Wolfe, Shipping Board embezzler, who, before killing himself, left a note saying that he had assumed Jacob Arnof's name, today declared that Harry Wolfe was not a fictitious person, as contended by officials in Buenos Aires.

The father said that Jacob Arnof, early in 1920, left his home here to visit Harry Wolfe, a friend in New Orleans, and a few weeks later the two youths sailed for South America.

A clerk, known as Jacob M. Arnof, committed suicide last week in Argentina after the discovery that the Buenos Aires office of the Shipping Board, in which he was employed, had been defrauded of more than 400,000 pesos. He left a note declaring that he was not Arnof, but Harry Wolef, who on Nov. 7, 1920, had assumed the identity of Jacob Arnof after Arnof was drowned while the two were canoeing. The note, signed, Wolfe, said the writer wanted to clear the name of his friend.

Whether the body of the suicide is that of Arnof or of Harry Wolfe will not be established until David Arnof of New York, a brother of Jacob, arrives in Buenos Aires. David telegraphed H. Arnof, the father, here today that he would sail at once. The father, however, is convinced that the strange story of assumed identity is true, and doubts the theory said to be entertained by officials in Buenos Aires that Jacob Arnof in dying merely sought to save his family name from dishonor.

The Arnof family here declared that while the story came from Buenos Aires by The Associated Press Saturday night revealed a weird mystery to newspaper readers, it served to clear up a situation which for the last three years has distressed the family of Jacob Arnof, and toward the solution of which Secretary Hughes, the Governor of Colorado, consular officials in South America and others have lent their assistance.

Demanded Money Many Times.

The Arnofs exhibit a series of cable messages and letters dating back three years to show that their suspicions were aroused by strange phrases used by "Jacob," by his failure ever to mention one of his sisters and four of his brothers, by photographs he had sent home which only slightly resembled Jacob, and by desperate demands for large sums of money.

The statement in the suicide note signed by Harry Wolfe, to the effect that Arnof was drowned Nov. 7, 1920, was declared significant. On arriving in South America in the Spring of 1920, Jacob wrote home frequently, his father asserts, but after November of that year the letters suddenly were discontinued and an interval of six months elapsed before the father heard again. Then it is said, the difference in handwriting was noticeable.

Letters received since November, 1920, have always mentioned a sister, Esther, but have made no mention of the four brothers and another sister, Ruth.

A photograph received early this year is said not to resemble Jacob closely, except for a scar on the face. The suicide in the note signed "Wolfe" declared that the writer had burned this scar into his face with acid in order to make the assumed identity more positive.

Early in 1921 "Jacob" drew a draft on his father for $500. In 1922 he drew another for $250. On Aug. 6, 1923, the following cable message was received by the father:

"I need $25,000 at once. Failure to send means disgrace to the family. Cable funds at once. Do not send check. JACOB."

The father's suspicions, however, had long since been aroused and when he was in Colorado last Summer, he visited the office of the Governor of that State and had a letter written to Secretary Hughes. Sometime later, Mr. Arnof declares, the State Department advised him not to send more money, as an investigation had disclosed mysterious circumstances.

On Sept. 5 of this year, the Consul at Buenos Aires transmitted, through the State Department, a request of "Jacob's" that the father send $700. The father cabled to the Consul asking if he could positively identify Jacob Arnof, the following reply was received:

"Positively identified Jacob. He declines to tell why money needed, but urgently requests that you send by cable at once."

Dispatches further describing the suicide note quote Wolfe as saying that he was able to deceive the officials with Arnof's passports, and by the fact that he resembled Arnof and had the scar on his face.

Another cablegram came to the father here Oct. 21 in reference to the request for $25,000, saying:

"Answer yes or no. Jacob."

That was the last the family had heard until Saturday night, when they were informed by The Associated Press of the strange story of the suicide and tangled identities. The mother was not told of the tragedy until yesterday and is prostrated. The father, although in ill-health, bears up bravely, and is convinced that "Harry Wolfe" really did steal the name of his friend; that Jacob died in November, 1920, and did nothing to bring disgrace on the family.

Brothers Have Believe Wolfe's Letter.

David Arnof, 238 West Seventy-third Street, and Joseph Arnof, 170 West Seventy-second Street, brothers of Jacob Arnof, around whose death in Buenos Aires a mystery has been woven, may depart shortly for the Argentine for the purpose of clearing up the tangled web of circumstances.

Both David Arnof and his brother are convinced that the man who committed suicide in Buenos Aires after leaving a note signed "Harry Wolfe," which told of a three-year impersonation of young Jacob Arnof following his death in November, 1920, was not their brother. They have cabled to the Buenos Aires authorities to hold the body so that it may be possible to identify it if either of them should make the journey to South America.

David Arnof said yesterday that he is awaiting final word as to the journey from his father in McCrory, Ark. He also said that he had been suspicious of the actions of the man in Buenos Aires who was representing himself as his brother Jacob, because of the fact that young Jacob had been his close confidant and had written him many letters until about November, 1920, after which he never received any word. In fact, he said, the family had received hardly any communications since that date, except demands for money. He also said that the circumstances of his brother's death will be investigated, including Wolfe's story that he was drowned Nov. 7, 1920.

As to the Harry Wolfe involved in the mystery, he remarked that he had never heard his brother Jacob mention his name, but that he thought that Jacob had encountered him either in Memphis or New Orleans, and that they had set out to "see the world together."

Record Snowfall in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—Constituting a record for fifty years, fourteen and a half inches of snow fell in this city and vicinity between Friday night and Sunday. Branches of trees were broken and electric light and telephone wires were snapped in some sections.

Felon Aliens Being Sent Here, House Chairman Declares

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 26.—America is deliberately being made the dumping ground of Europe and Asia, despite the immigration quota law, Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, Chairman of the House Committee on Immigration, said today in an address before the Buffalo City Federation of Women's Clubs.

"One nation, I am informed, gives felons the choice of a jail sentence or an American passport," he said. "Others deport their radicals to this country."

Mr. Johnson declared that nearly 300,000 immigrants defeat the purpose of the law, which, however, had prevented the landing of 4,000,000 immigrants when millions in this country were out of employment. He added that new immigration legislation must be yet more drastic.

READY TO REMOVE PHARAOH'S SHRINES

TWO GOLD MONKEYS FOUND

They Are Supposed to Be Sentries to Protect the Sanctity of Tut-ankh-Amen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 26.—The taking of photographic records of the outer shrine in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen and of the various objects mentioned as being immediately within its doors, which occupied the greater part of last week, is now completed. The store chamber, containing, among other objects, the canopic shrine and the beautiful goddess figures, has been boarded in to protect it during the coming operations and will remain sealed up in this way until the removal of the shrines renders it practicable to deal with its contents.

The objects between three sides of the outer shrine and the walls of the sepulchral chamber have now been removed, thus freeing a passage all around for the erection of scaffolding. The objects within the outer shrine have still to be moved before the doors can finally be closed in readiness for the dismantling.

Tomorrow being Tuesday — the local day of rest—there will as is usual on that day be no work in the tomb.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 27.—The London Times in publishing today its copyrighted account of the work at the tomb, adds this editorial note:

"In view of the misleading statements which are again obtaining currency it seems desirable to place on record the fact that the financial proceeds of The Times's arrangement with the executors of the late Lord Carnarvon for the distribution throughout the press of the world of the news and photographs of Howard Carter's discoveries in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen are wholly devoted to the cost of the work at the tomb. The sole beneficiary is the cause of scientific research.

Two Gold Monkeys Are Found.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—Continuing his investigation of the contents of King Tut-ankh-Amen's mortuary chamber, Howard Carter is said to have discovered against the outer shrine another huge bouquet of flowers, faded to a drab color by their long preservation.

On a back beam of the outer shrine, which encloses the inner shells around the sarcophagus, were found two statues covered with gold representing monkeys, each seated on a miniature chair and the other so placed that the tail curled around the woodwork. It is believed they were posted there to represent sentries protecting the sanctity of the inner shrines and whatever lies beneath them.

It is officially announced that the first press visit to the tomb will be on Tuesday of next week.

STOKES ASKS QUASHING OF CHICAGO CHARGES

Files Petition Referring to Indictment on Wife's Evidence as 'Conspiracy.'

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Attorneys for W. E. D. Stokes of New York today made their first move against the criminal charges of conspiracy brought against Mr. Stokes, Daniel Nugent, one of his New York attorneys, and five others in an indictment returned here several weeks ago, when they asked leave to file a motion to quash the indictment, on the ground that there was a conspiracy against Mr. Stokes.

In their petition, which Chief Justice Caverly of the Criminal Court granted them leave to file, they charged that the indictment is contrary to law, and is vague and uncertain. They ask the right of a hearing and the calling of witnesses to establish that there is no legal evidence presented, that no evidence of crime was placed before the Grand Jury and "that solely by virtue of a criminal combination, confederation and conspiracy against him, the Grand Jury of this county and the Criminal Court have been imposed upon and this defendant wrongfully and wickedly harassed and prejudiced contrary to the law and contrary to justice."

The indictments charged a conspiracy to defame Stokes's wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, who was a witness before the Grand Jury. The indictments came shortly before the second trial in New York City of Stokes's divorce suit against his wife in which a decree was denied him. Later it was announced that a settlement had been agreed to by which Mrs. Stokes would be allowed a separation, custody of their two children, and that there was a financial arrangement for support of Mrs. Stokes and the children.

Witty Words on Weighty Problems.

"The Light Side of Heavy Things" was the subject of a discussion of the Society of Arts and Sciences at a dinner held at the Hotel Astor last night. Those who tried to lift up weighty problems, using wit as the crowbar, were Clement Wood, Dorothy Parker, Peter B. Kyne, Arthur Guiterman, Winifred Harper Cooley, Thomas Grant Springer and Dr. W. Warren Giles, who was toastmaster.

MUSIC

By H. C. COLLES.

MEFISTOFELE, opera in three acts and eight scenes. Book in Italian by the composer, after Goethe's "Faust." Music by Arrigo Boito. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Margherita	Frances Alda
Elena	Frances Peralta
Pantalis	Flora Perini
Marta	Kathleen Howard
Mefistofele	Feodor Chaliapin
Faust	Beniamino Gigli
Wagner	Angelo Bada
Nereo	Giordano Paltrinieri

Conductor—Roberto Moranzoni.

In Italy and especially in its own home at Milan Boito's "Mefistofele" holds an assured place in the canon of the operatic classics. Elsewhere its position is less assured. The composer's rather fitful attempts to take the drama of Goethe seriously give it a certain grandeur of conception too often expressed in a grandiose musical manner. It does not go far enough in the direction of serious music-drama to fulfill the conception, yet it goes far enough to be removed from the purely human interest of the Faust and Marguerite love story which satisfied Gounod and still delights audiences who go to opera chiefly to hear favorite singers in pretty tunes.

Boito rather falls between two stools, but when his work is given, as it was last night, with so stirring a dramatic figure as Mr. Chaliapin in the name part and a stage mounting of the most brilliant description, it cannot fail to be exceedingly effective. Its prologue is musically its strongest scene, and with Mr. Chaliapin declaiming his scoffs and taunts among a sea of shifting clouds and before a musical background of the fine choral tone, the "Prologue in Heaven" has a majesty which is irresistible. After it the composer falls back into the conventions of his time, and several of his scenes, particularly the garden scene, may be compared with Gounod to the advantage of the latter.

Mme. Frances Alda gave us some earnest singing as Marguerite and Mr. Gigli was generally adequate as Faust. Her final scene in the prison was very warmly applauded and deserved the appreciation that it got in spite of some moments of unsteadiness, which imperilled the intonation. But it is not with the soprano and the tenor that the main interest rests.

Mephistopheles is the monarch of this opera and the Brocken scene displays him among his subjects. Nothing was left undone which could add to the furious energy and the kaleidoscopic orgy of color here. Yet there seemed a certain discrepancy between Mr. Chaliapin's idea of the scene and the rest of the production. He presents Mephistopheles as a gaunt and terrible figure, but there is nothing terrible in the troupes of red devils and scarti-colored figures in elaborate muslin draperies who caper around him.

He is the being that denies, and they are all affirmations. They must be effective at all costs, while he casts aside effect together with his outer garments. At the Scala, in Milan, they have a presentation of this scene which is much less brilliant, but much more convincing in its suggestion of horror.

In contrast with this there is the cool coloring of the Grecian scene. Mme. Peralta was heard singing charmingly as Helen, and the ballet of cupids, nymphs and fauns danced decorously to music in which, for the moment, Boito seems to have remembered Gluck. So scene after scene is passed before the eyes and into the ears, and the listener wonders what the prologue in Heaven has to do with all these heterogeneous types and carefully devised stage contrasts, he at least comes away feeling that he has been given a full evening's enjoyment, and that the opera house had exhausted its resources for his benefit.

Beethoven Association.

The Beethoven Association's program of chamber music at Aeolian Hall last night must be briefly noticed. Sonatas of Mozart and Brahms and Schubert's trio in B flat are the sort of music to which one should settle down to listen at leisure in order to get the measure of the performance. Unfortunately it was only possible to hear a part of the program, but that part was sufficient to convince one that the majority of the large audience who could give their evening to it were rewarded in the playing.

Bronislau Haberman and Miss Katherine Goodson began with Mozart's sonata for violin and piano in E minor, and after Miss Claire Dux had sung a group of German Lieder, Felix Salmond and Ernest Hutchinson followed with Brahms's sonata for violoncello and piano in the same key. Both pairs of performers showed the true chamber music style, which places the content of the music before the display of virtuosity and relies on clear phrasing and unanimity in ensemble.

As to Miss Dux's singing, there is only one thing which limits the pleasure it gives, and that is a certain overconsciousness of manner, which seems to have grown on her. Her singing of a small group of Brahms and Wolf, however, was exquisite and all too short.

With RUTH NUGENT and a Special Cast

Is A. S. M. Hutchinson the literary anarchist of the century because he wrote THIS FREEDOM?

Is he the greatest enemy or the best friend of all husbands and lovers everywhere because he tells them a secret that wives rarely ever reveal?

THIS FREEDOM is the story of the "free woman"—the woman who is able to go it alone without her husband.

Sancho as Governor.

It is rather a bewildering extravaganza that Melchoir Lengyel has "based on certain episodes in Cervantes' story." It is bewildering because it is enveloped in the most brilliant beauty of scenery, costumes and music. It is bewildering because of the vigor of Otis Skinner's characterization of Sancho Panza—and also because of the humor of Robert Rosaire's animal-actor characterization of Sancho's gray ass, Dapple, who follows Sancho through scenes of court revel and court intrigue, from a palace revolution to a counter-revolution of the people. And, through the chinks and crannies so much splendor, so much varied action, one perceives also the shadow of a bewildering doubt as to precisely what the Hungarian dramatist, was driving at.

Don Quixote appears only in a tableau prologue, Silhouetted against the midnight stars on the back of his steed Rosinante, he discourses of chivalry and windmills to the hungering Sancho who grasps at his fact for food ("When do we eat?" his strangely modern words are), and who beguiles the hounds of hunger by imagining what it will be like when the melancholy Don has fulfilled his promise and made him Governor of an island. In the act that follows Sancho appears at the strangely anachronistic court of Barataria, where they are already reading the novel of "Don Quixote"; is welcomed by the amiable and cultivated Duke—and is actually given an island city to rule.

The three subsequent acts have the air of making comment on the problems of government which, at the time the play was written (1920), were engrossing the small nations of Central Europe, as they are today. From the atmosphere of musical comedy "Sancho Panza" ranges through critical satire to something very like propaganda, embodied in the person of this shrewd and homely peasant. Just what the propaganda is, if it be propaganda, is quite impossible to say. At one moment Sancho says that all laws shall be destroyed and all food shall be free; at another he acquires merit merely by lowering prices. At the climax of by far the best scene of the play, in which he meets the populace, quells it and wins its heart, he utters a rubric for rulers that has a certain dignity and eloquence: it is "to work, to love—and to pray." Yet in the very moment in which the people have put down a court revolution and reseated Sancho in power, he gives over his royal robes and returns to his good wife and his farm in La Mancha—ending with Candide's philosophy of cultivating his own potato patch. Whatever post-war philosophy Lengyel's original may or may not have contained, Mr. Skinner's version can only be taken as brilliantly irresponsible fantasy.

The production, by Richard Boleslawsky, is in the very best manner of the Russians—a primitively grotesque curtain revealing scene after scene of highly colorful architecture entirely out of plumb. The costumes and other incidentals, designed by Emilie Haspood and James Reynolds, touch the very summit of brilliance in fabric, in color and in design. The music and songs by Hugo Felix struck at least one lay auditor as original and highly characteristic. It is many a long day since so brilliant a galaxy of talent has shone upon a single production.

Sidney Howard's translation is, for the most part, entirely literate and commendably simple. Of the virtue of the adaptation as a whole (if it be an adaptation) it will not be possible to speak until the original is at hand.

One feature of the evening deserves unabated superlatives. As impersonated by Robert Rosaire, Sancho's faithful ass Dapple is an incessant delight, a creature of excellent humor, of infinite fancy. His smirks, ear-waggings and cavortings are something more than human. If Dapple seems out of place in a milieu of political and social pronouncements which have a somewhat muddled air of being portentious and eternal veracities, it is not his fault. Whatever the case with the law, this propaganda is undoubtedly an ass.

Actor-Plated Artifice.

Ma Hutchenson	Jessie Crommette
Romeo	J. C. Nugent
Aggie	Ruth Nugent
Ted Stone	Kenneth McKenna
Mrs. Stone	Ethel Winthrop
Ann Worthing	Gladys Wilson
Jones	John Daly Murphy

The pressure that forced this new offering by the authors of "Kempy" into the dim subconsciousness of spare matinees at the Belmont is said to have been the current shortage of theatres, but it was probably something even more powerful than that. The plot of "Dumb-bell" and at least two of its pivotal characters were old, bad stuff when the Victorian theatre was still at its stagiest. Behold once again the haughty, patrician mother who scorns mere maidenly worth and the side-whiskered village magnate who plots to steal the hero's invention! Messrs. J. C. and Elliott Nugent may be relied on to give all their characters occasional touches of truth, to turn out effective lines, and to cast comedy parts to perfection, but there are certain artifices of the theatre that can no longer be actor-plated.

That the attempt was made is a great pity, for there is much excellent material in "Dumb-bell." The title part is a village half-wit of amiable nature and a luminous childlike imagination, who stumbles on the invention of a novelty in Christmas toys. The character is freshly imagined, and played with much humor and pathetic charm by J. C. Nugent. Equally admirable is the Peg o' My Heart heroine, who captures the aristocratic hero and ultimately wins over his supercilious mother; and Miss Ruth Nugent's performance is also deliciously fresh and appealing. When the two Nugents link up in scenes that also involve Kenneth McKenna the little play touches high-water mark in its kind. But such moments are rare. The other characters are always intruding, and often with an incisiveness and loudness utterly destructive of illusion.

Gladys Wilson and especially Jessie Crommette strive sincerely to breathe life into their characters, but the handicap is too great. Ethel Winthrop and John Daly Murphy are hopelessly submerged from the start, playing the aristocratic mother and the side-whiskered villain in the worst manner of the old century.

RUSSIANS GIVE "IVANOFF."

Brilliantly Act Tchekhoff's Melancholy but Vivid Play.

Nikpial Ivanoff	Vassily Katchaloff
Anna Petrovna	Olga Knipper-Tchekhova
Matfei Shabelsky	Constantin Stanislavsky
Pavel Lebedieff	Vassily Luzhsky
Zinaida	Yevgenia Rayevskaya
Sasha	Alla Tarasova
Lyoff	Alexei Bondrieff
Marfa Babakina	Faina Shevtchenko
Kosikh	Vladimir Gribunin
Mikhail Borkin	Leonid M. Leonidoff
Avdotya Nazarovna	Maria Uspenskaya
Giorgi	Mikhail Tarkhanoff
First Guest	Lyoff Bulgakoff
Second Guest	Nikolai Alexandroff
Third Guest	Giorgi Burdzhaloff
Fyotr	Boris Dobronravoff
Gavril	Nikolai Rumiantseff

Like all the serious plays written by Tchekhoff, "Ivanoff," put on last evening by the Moscow Art Theatre, is melancholy and tragic, yet still brimming with life. "The Three Sisters" and "The Cherry Orchard," which were played here last season, came later in Tchekhoff's career as a dramatist, and in many ways are better works of dramaturgy.

"Ivanoff" is more violent than these two masterpieces, lacking in subtlety and fineness. Yet as an acted drama it came off last evening as a superb performance; the Moscow Art Theatre has not played more brilliantly in this city.

The matfiness of Tchekhoff's drama are already familiar to many playgoers. A French critic once summarized them as "l'impuissance de vivre," a veritable rag, tag and bobtail of verbosities and misunderstandings. Ozo, according to the play, Ivanoff was a vigorous young man, industrious and able, the pride of his province; but when the play begins he is an apathetic and lost soul. And for no reason; says, possibly, for psychopathic ones. His wife is dying gradually from tuberculosis. Ivanoff can stay the disease, perhaps, by trusting her with the honor becoming a gentleman, and he has the will—but not the power.

Meanwhile, the affairs of his estate slip out of his grasp; he has no energy for anything; and while his wife grows more frail, he blunders into a love affair for which he really has no heart. When he is free to marry this silly girl, he drifts toward the ceremony with the same indifference. On the eve of the wedding a last throb of conscience prompts him to declaim the whole affair as ridiculous, as more impossible than his previous marriage. He is treated by the bride as a child, and by her father likewise.

The family doctor denounces him as a scoundrel and impostor. Ivanoff, untangles the mess by shooting himself.

Such a thin story cannot go so badly in the theatre. And it does not; for Tchekhoff aimed at larger prey and brought it down. He aimed at the Russian society he knew and loved all about him. And as "Ivanoff" gathers its strength, not from this fragile fable, but from the ill-assorted mob which passes through the play—all chattering about little matters, their game at cards, possible ways to make money, politics; and particularly they prattle of their neighbors, shrilly and malignantly. All quite irresponsible, intolerant, bored with one another and themselves.

"There is no making out anything in the world," Tchekhoff once wrote in a letter. To the family doctor Ivanoff remarks in this play, "I cannot understand you, you cannot understand me, and neither of us can understand himself." A useless existence? Quite! But, for all that, a mental and nationalistic fact, a product of a civilization and a period. And Tchekhoff never lost interest in this leaden phantasmagoria.

Much has been expected of the Moscow Art Theatre and much has been gained, but little in their previous performances prepared the audience for the symmetry and beauty of last evening's production. It was at once unmarred or unrelieved, boisterous or still, buoyant or heavy. To detail the individual parts would detract from their highest achievements, their blending and their shading. By many signs Tchekhoff drama suits them best. And their performance of "Ivanoff" was delicately and lovingly cut in every detail.

"TIME" IS CHARMING.

Arthur Henry's Amiable Comedy Is Excellently Acted.

Mabel Prescott	Lucile Nikoias
John Barrett	William Kirkland
Ruth Prescott	Dorothy Francis
Georgette Barrett	Margaret Mower
Jim Prescott	A. H. Van Buren
Patsy Prescott	Maris Curtis
Joshua Prescott	William Evarts

"Time," which opened at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night, turned out to be an altogether sweet and charming play. It was of no particular weight or substance; but neither was the sound of maudlin music as it stirred through the bushes of a moon-lit beer garden in happier days. Yet it was just as provocative of that sustained inner warmth and that happy smirk that are essential to the well-being of the race as the thoughts induced by the profounder drama and the breath-taking guffaws roused by the lesser.

It is such a play as one might take his grandmother to see, unless she were of that younger generation that prefers the revues. It deals, in a leisurely fashion, with the frustration of an amiable person of 40 who has decided to divorce his wife in favor of the charms of an attractive widow. The to-be-divorced couple have a daughter and the widow has a son; the children, unbeknown to the parents, marry. The elderly mother of the divorcing husband, in a not too convincing fashion, shakes her son out of his intention by the invention of a similarly scarlet intrigue on his father's part. And so all is well, and the arrival of what the play manfully refuses to call a little visitor to the young couple, further cementing the repaired romance of the elders, is heralded as the final curtain falls.

Not much of a plot, to be sure, but it is handled with much amiability and shrewdness. The essential sentiments are suggested rather than revealed, and there are liberal doses of bourgeois cynicism ready for administration whenever things seem on the point of becoming too sticky.

The cast was for the most part excellent. A. H. Van Buren was the husband who presses for romance, and he played a fairly routine straight part gracefully. Dorothy Francis was the placid, spotted wife and mother and was quite without opportunity to reveal her operatic voice. Margaret Mower, as the beguiling widow, was as beautiful as ever and a better actress.

The grandmother from the machine was Marie Curtis. She had what seemed to be an observer's role but must be included among the richest in laughs in the contemporary theatre. She was vastly funny, but her material was superior to her manner, which was of the stage stagey. William Evarts did his best with an unimpressive rôle.

The two very young people were competently played by Lucile Nikolas and William Kirkland. Miss Nikolas, sweet, demure and possessed of the rare virtue of restraint, is a first-rate addition to the ingenue crop. Young Mr. Kirkland revealed in a rôle that might have been out of something by Booth Tarkington and brought dignity and plausibility to a character that might very well have been without either.

The play has much in common, it will be seen, with "Mary the Third," last year's attraction at the same theatre. It provides a genteelly agreeable evening throughout and it is not without its hilarious moments.

"MEET THE WIFE" AMUSING.

Mary Boland's Acting Greatly Enriches Lynn Starling's Play.

Gertrude Lennox	Mary Boland
Harvey Lennox	Charles Dalton
Doris Sellmore	Eleanor Griffith
Victor Staunton	Clifton Webb
Gregory Brown	Humphrey Bogart
Philip Lord	Ernest Lawford
Alice	Patricia Calvert
William	Charles Bloomer

A comedy with many moments of gorgeous amusement, and which manages to be entertaining even during its less sparkling portions, came last night to the Klaw Theatre under the title of "Meet the Wife." It is the work of Lynn Starling, a young actor, and it is something more than a promising first play. It is enormously enriched and at times lifted to the skies, by the performance of Mary Boland in its leading rôle. Now and then Miss Boland pounces a bit avidly upon a succulent line, but there never is an instant when she is not doing a lot for the play.

"Meet the Wife" starts out to be a play about a busybody type of woman who achieves by main force—and by wearing out his lecture manager in a three-hour session—the honor of entertaining a great English novelist in her home. Perhaps because the play is the offering of the same producers who put forth "The Torchbearers" a season ago, or perhaps because it began in the mood of genuine satirical comedy, there were a few hopefuls in the audience last night who expected much amusement to be drawn from the entertainment of this visiting writer in the local community.

The author, however, had elected to turn his piece into quite a different kind of play—and at the end of the first act he did the turning by having the great writer turn out to be the absconding first husband of the ambitious wife. Therein, probably, he was wise, for, although the twist vastly disconcerted the handful, it will probably be of value to the play. Thereafter came a reasonably conventional farce of the wife-and-two-husbands school, but one that was lifted above the ordinary by the presence of quite a little wit and Mary Boland.

Miss Boland is a joy throughout, even during her occasional moments of overplaying. Those moments in which she places herself under control by clenching her fists and repeating that she is the captain of her soul—she loves dear Mr. Browning—or when she declares that this is Liberty Hall—these and few score like them are the high spots of the play.

Clifton Webb, stepping out of his dancing shoes, also supplies a good deal of amusement, and there is another newcomer from musical comedy in the person of Eleanor Griffith, who gives a good account of herself. Ernest Lawford, as the visiting author, seemed to this observer to be somewhat out of the key.

"Meet the Wife" has an excellent first act and a hilarious third act, with only a bit of a let-down in between. It is high above the average run of comedies, and if there is any justice it should do well.

The French players from the Grand Guignol of Paris began their last week last night at the Frolic Theatre with two of their famous "thrillers," a comedy and a very French French farce. The usual audience of faithful Francophiles was present and appreciative of the efforts of the company. Particularly they had occasion to applaud the actors after the little one-act tragedy, "La Griffe," a homely and touching play of French peasant life. Here it was M. Henriet who took the honors with the portrayal of an old man whom paralysis had robbed of the power of speech and almost all his other powers except the great strength of his peasant hands. A figure of tragic helplessness, he watched his son's unfaithfulness to send him to certain death, then caught her by the throat for a typical Grand Guignol finish.

Here the Grand Guignol finish grew naturally out of the play, but as much cannot be said for the other thriller, which is founded on a story by W. W. Jacobs. In this play the finish is promised as "une mort épouvantable" and there is keen dramatic suspense in waiting for the finish. But when it comes it is dragged in like the moral of a tale. Sol Hyman, the pawnbroker of the tale, as played by M. Defresne, gave a realistic impression of nameless fear, for his ideas as to his fate were as indefinite as those of the audience. Both of these plays will be interesting for those who know only some French, for the language is unusually simple and clearly spoken.

The two lighter plays are deceptive in their titles. "Frana ms. Femme" is an amusing and harmless little comedy of a husband who learns of his wife's rendezvous and arrives before her. He stays to moralize with the young man and to beat him at a game of checkers. As for "Petite Bonne Serieuse," it is shocking in the sense not applicable to Grand Guignol thrillers. There is plenty of material for farcical misunderstanding there, but it is hard to follow for us foreigners, and "The Serious Little Maid" probably will not do New Yorkers very much harm.

BARRYMORE AGAIN HAMLET.

SHAKESPEARE'S HAMLET. At the Manhattan Opera House.

Francisco	John Boyd
Bernardo	Lark Taylor
Horatio	J. Colville Dunn
Marcellus	John Connery
Ghost	Reginald Pope
Hamlet	John Barrymore
Claudius	Kenneth Hunter
Gertrude	Blanche Yurka
Polonius	Moffat Johnston

Second Player	Joss Ruiz

A Gentlewoman	Winifred Salisbury
King's Messenger	C. H. Smith
First Grave Digger	Whitford Kane
Second Grave Digger	Russell Morrison
A Priest	Reginald Pole
Osric	Edgar Stehli
Fortinbras	Richard Morton

Marked by the same distinguished characteristics which made his first appearance in the rôle a noteworthy one, John Barrymore was seen last night in "Hamlet" at the Manhattan Opera House.

With the exception of Kenneth Hunter, in the rôle of Claudius, and of Moffat Johnson as Polonius, the cast was identical in the revival with that which appeared in the original production by Arthur Hopkins last year. The electric ghost of that production was eliminated in this, Reginald Pole, whose voice, intertwined with flickering lightnings, was then heard, was visibly seen this time.

The addition of Mr. Hunter to the cast seemed to be more of a gain than the addition of Mr. Johnston, whose performance, while sound enough, was lacking in any appreciation of the comedic values of "the foolish prattling knave." Mr. Hopkins admitted in the course of the evening that he preferred the ghost in person to his earlier offering.

Blanche Yurka was impressive again as Gertrude, and the rest of the cast was certainly adequate. But it was the figure of Hamlet as impersonated by Mr. Barrymore, which vocally dominated the stage and gave the evening something of the air of a new triumph.

Gray Goods Prices Higher.

Gray goods prices rose again in this market yesterday, in sympathy with the gradual mounting of cotton. For December delivery, sales of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths were put through at 11 cents, with January-March shipments of the same goods sold at 11¼ cents. The asking price for the latter deliveries is now 11¼ cents. In the other principal sales of the day were November lots of 39½-inch 60-48s at 9¾ cents and similar lots of 39-inch 80-squares at 15 cents. January-February sales of 37-inch 48-squares, four-yard sheetings were at 18 cents. This established the market for sheetings, but there was not much of interest done in them.

Wool Buying More Hesitant.

After doing some purchasing of wools to cover part of their requirements for heavyweight season, the mills during the last few days have tended to go slow in further commitments. This action in what would ordinarily be an active period in wool buying is interpreted as reflecting the desire of the mills not to bid prices up against themselves at present by too heavy purchasing. Some speculating, it is said, has developed in certain parts of the wool trade and the mills have no desire to encourage this now. The clearing down also reflects the generally cautious feeling with which the mills are approaching the heavyweight season. The belief with regard to wool prices in many quarters, however, is that they will tend higher in the further covering of requirements, which admittedly the mills have done to only a slight extent as yet.

Coats for January Sales.

Coat manufacturers are liquidating their stocks in the current between-seasons period. Better grade merchandise, while not scarce, is not overplentiful and additional cutting is practically at an end. The cheaper grades of "greasy" coats, which glutted the market from the time the season opened, have been moved to some extent by concessions all along the line. There are still some quantities available, but the supply is said to be by no means as large as only a short while ago. It had been predicted that coats for January sales would be in short supply, but excepting those of certain cloths, this is not expected to be the case.

Gingham Stocks About Exhausted.

The improved demand for ginghams that has been reported from the local dry-goods district in the last two or three weeks was said yesterday to have taken some sizable stocks of the goods in mill centres to such an extent that they are now practically exhausted. One of the largest producers of the goods in the country was "unofficially" said yesterday to have no goods in stock, this last 500 cases in that category having been sold in the last few days. In addition to this, the concern was said to have a comfortable volume of advance business booked. Reports from and concerning other producers of ginghams as to stocks are almost similar in tenor, and at least two of the lower-priced Southern brands have been advanced half a cent a yard in the last few days. Certain Southern mills that until lately had not been selling production are now keeping their stock sheets well cleaned up.

Flannels Priced for Fall.

Manufacturers of flannel garments yesterday received the Fall, 1924, prices of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company covering the 32 and 36 inch napped fabrics it makes for the cutters-up. The new prices, which cover deliveries from March through July, show no change from those quoted on similar goods by the company last January. The quotations on dark flannels are a cent a yard higher than those quoted for bleached and light goods, prices on the latter clothe running this way: 36-inch fancies—"1101 Cloth," 17¼ cents; "1921 Cloth," 20 cents, and "Tease Down," 22 cents; 36-inch plains—"1101 Cloth," 17 cents; "Francis Cloth (001)," 19½ cents; "1921 Cloth," 19½ cents; "Tease Down," 21½ cents, and "Daisy Cloth," 22 cents; 32-inch shirting flannels—"1701 Cloth," 22½ cents, and "2801 Cloth," 20 cents.

Silk Sentiment Better.

Although the volume of business being done is not said to be appreciably greater, there is a better feeling in many quarters in the silk trade. It is held by some that the worst part of the depression since the earthquake has now been passed, and that the outlook is for daily gains in yardage sold. Practically all of the unsettlement was due to the belief of all concerned that raw silk was too high in price and that it had to come down. It now has moved to levels where more mills are willing to consider purchases. Firmness in the primary markets has contributed to a stronger feeling here. Without the bugaboo of a raw silk decline both the retail trade and the cutters are expected to operate more freely. The opinion is expressed by leaders in the trade that the Spring will be a good season.

Percales Still Moving Well.

Yesterday's mails brought to sellers of percales and prints in this market one of the largest volumes of business that has been received here in many months. Not only did the orders run into a tidy amount, but it was said that a number of them were larger, individually, than has been the case of late. They came from the South and Southwest in great measure, and were said to reflect the certainty of jobbers in those sections that still higher cotton is due and that the goods at their present levels are cheap. Stocks in the hands of leading printers are considerably smaller than they were a few weeks ago, and there is a strong probability that prevailing prices will not stand much longer.

Blanket Prices Go Up.

Prices named yesterday on 1924 lines of cotton and wool mixtures and all-wool blankets by Department 8B of the American Woolen Company show a considerable advance, according to trade reports, over those quoted for the new line is from $3.35 to $12 per blanket. That of last year for the 1923 season was from $3.25 to $10 each. Comparison of the two ranges indicates an advance of from 3 to 20 per cent., or somewhat larger than was anticipated. It is claimed, however, that there is no exact basis of comparison for figuring the advance, owing to changes in the styling of the lines and variations in the manipulated blankets.

Early Buying to Be Light?

In many quarters of the men's wear trade, including the piece-goods market, the feeling is growing that when the heavyweight lines are opened, within the next six or seven weeks, the early buying will be light. This idea is not being particularly encouraged in reports from the piece-goods division. Many manufacturers here are discussing the question stress the importance of conservatism. Certain of the leading lines of some men's wear fabrics in the market, it is pointed out, may sell fairly well, particularly Whitney finish and plaid back overcoatings, the business to be done with the larger clothiers. As far as the rank and file are concerned, however, it is thought that the volume may not, as far as the early business is concerned, shape up as well as is hoped. No excess amount of optimism appears to be current over the outlook for suitings. Thorough liquidation by retailers this Fall, greatly delayed so far, would do much to change the aspect of the market for the better.

Handkerchiefs Told the Story.

An interesting sidelight on the recent case of Ridley Watts & Co., dry-goods commission merchants, vs. the Phillips-Jones Corporation, prominent manufacturers of shirts and collars, concerning an alleged violation of contract by the latter in failing to accept merchandise that had been ordered previous to a break in the price of the goods from $1.50 a yard to 50 cents, became known yesterday. The plea of the defendant firm was that part of the goods, which had been received prior to the abrogation of the contract, was "seconds." A Harvard professor, employed by the defendant as an expert, testified that his laboratory tests of the goods showed them to contain many weaving defects and imperfections. On cross-examination by counsel for the plaintiff the professor was asked to produce his handkerchief. Counsel produced handkerchiefs also, and did the jury. Examination of them disclosed that every handkerchief had weaving and yarn defects similar to those of the goods involved in the case. Not long afterward the jury brought in a verdict of $71,000 for the plaintiff.

FALL GARMENTS SHOWN.

The designers of fabrics are looking backward for inspiration in patterns for the creations of today and in their quest they have settled upon the materials familiar to our mothers and grandmothers. At the Fall showing yesterday by Haas Brothers, 417 Fifth Avenue, of costumes made from new fabrics novel variations of the old alpaca, mohair and moire are to be found. Even the prints, which for several seasons now have been enjoying popularity, have an old-fashioned appearance which makes them seem quite different, even though the costume is fashioned after a design not new.

That this is to be a tailored season is apparent from the fabrics shown. It looks as though those gay women still care for nothing but sports clothes, but then they will be glorified sports clothes. The plaited sports skirt is given over now covers a multitude of designs. They range from sleeveless gowns of woolen materials that would grace almost any evening function to the rough-and-ready suits that homespun materials can make.

Perhaps the most interesting fabric in the exhibition is Cyclonic. It is a woolen material of very fine weave, which is cashmere, serge and broadcloth all rolled into one. It is best suited to the tricot suit, although in several of the models it was shown to advantage in both morning or street dresses and elaborate afternoon gowns. Patou has successfully used the material in a smart coat dress of navy blue with sleeves of sand-colored cloth, the bodice sleeves and all the bottom of the skirt. It is also used in a three-piece dressy street costume of black in combination with Byzantine plaid, a material which is successfully holding over from last season. The dress is trimmed from the neck line to the bottom of the skirt and has stitchings about five inches apart above and below the waistline to give outline to the figure. The front has an opening almost to the waist which reveals the bib bodice of brilliant Byzantine plaid. The plaid is also seen under the arms.

Of the silk fabrics, the Alapaquin was the most novel. It is an unmistakable echo of the old alpaca, though it is softer and lends itself more readily to drapery and more informal frocks. One afternoon dress of black Alapaquin was designed in a somewhat old-fashioned way with the waistline clearly identified and the gown so draped as to accentuate the hips. A girdle effect was achieved by inserts of kitten's ear broadcloth, which was outlined with narrow metal braid embroidery and made large medallions at the left side front.

Soft satin are also favored and are shown in many attractive new models, the all-over shape. The latter was most effectively used in a Jersey of maximum colored afternoon dress. Tucks of the same shade of silk and stitching form the trimming, which begins at the neck line and ends just below the hips. The skirt, which is quite straight and plain at the front, is cut to give a perceptibly circular effect at the back, thus making a straight panel under it. Wildflower prints are favored by designers for afternoon frocks, both for Southern wear and the North. They, too, carry one back many years. A very pretty one was of tan and brown in a large floral pattern. The material was sufficient trimming in itself and the design was quite plain save for two wide circular flounces when finished the skirt.

Canadaire fabric is the new note in the more sturdy materials for out-of-doors. It is something like a cross between grass cloth and basket weave and was shown in several smart top coats and three-piece walking suits. It is shown in both plain and plaid patterns.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks, Bonds, Foreign Exchanges and Commodities Move Upward in Orderly Fashion.

Markets of all sorts yesterday took further strides forward. Violent movements were conspicuous by their absence and in stocks, bonds, the foreign exchanges and such commodities as cotton, corn and sugar, there appears to have been a steady upward trend established. This was noticeable, of course, last week and the week before, but on many occasions during this period the movements were so erratic as to create the suspicion that they might not last long. This condition, doubtless caused by nervousness on the part of holders of stocks and commodities purchased lower down the scale, is quite evidently disappearing, and in its place there is a growing feeling of confidence in the immediate future. The natural result is more orderly markets, and in this category must be put those of yesterday. Not only Wall Street but the investing and speculating portion of the country as a whole is now more readily disposed to believe that the recent strength in all markets was not an artificial "flash in the pan" but was, in reality, a reflection of the development of a bettered industrial and business situation, about which the markets now can speak freely and with confidence after a long period of silence.

It might be said that the Stock Exchange resumed activities yesterday about where they left off on Saturday. The market had no unsettling news to cause it apprehension. On the other hand, it had the published assurance that the forthcoming message to Congress by President Coolidge will be a constructive one and that the Administration leaders are of a single mind, not only in regard to the tax problem but in following out a general policy which will make for further national prosperity. It appears to be perfectly natural, therefore, that without the development of any over-Sunday obstacle, those who favor higher prices and who are friendly to the present market, should bestir themselves in behalf of their favorite issues. This is just about what happened yesterday. Such corporate shares as New York Central, Baldwin Locomotive, United States Steel common, and many others of the same class, moved upward in moderate fashion, and the market, as a whole, finished the day at a slightly higher level. The usual pyrotechnics were set off in the ultra-speculative issues, but the market appears to have such a firm foundation that it is very prone to ignore a violent move in one or two specialties and to pay strict attention to and follow only the recognized market leaders.

In the foreign exchanges and in most of the commodities the up-trend was an unmistakable one, but still, of more moderate proportions than characterized the fluctuations on many days last week. Doubtless, these vehicles of speculation and investment are under the same sort of influence as stocks, and one, which, while fully recognizing the trend, nevertheless makes for caution and moderation. Sterling, for instance, sold above $4.40, gaining thereby slightly more than three cents to the pound for the day and placing that exchange 14 cents to the pound above the extreme low recorded when the recent International crisis reached an acute stage. All of the exchanges, as a matter of fact, showed a very good tone yesterday.

Cotton continues to be under the influence of trade buying, somewhat belated, of course, but still of prime quality. Foreign and domestic spinners are engaged in replenishing their stocks and this demand is automatically taking up the slack created by sales of the "actual" and by speculators. It is becoming rather a trite expression in financial history that cotton "reached a new high for the year." Nevertheless, it is worthy of record that December, January, March and May options all sold above the 35-cent mark yesterday. There was another advance, too, in both raw and refined sugars, a development instantly recognized by the sugar shares on the Stock Exchange.

MONEY.

MONDAY, NOV. 26, 1923.

After ruling for the better part of the session at 4% per cent., Stock Exchange call money advanced to 5 just before close. Advance was not attributed to calling, of which there was quite an amount in the forenoon, but rather to scarcity of funds near close with natural consequence of higher rate on borrowers' demand. Time funds loaned unchanged at 5@5¼ per cent., depending on maturity, but business in this department was limited to renewals. Commercial paper likewise discounted unchanged at 5@5¼ per cent., and acceptances were firm.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Another Million-Share Market.

Business on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday was again far above the million-share mark, making nine such days thus far this month. With this continued activity stocks moved into higher ground, and many of the leaders and more active specialties are now selling at the highest prices recorded in several months. In yesterday's market both railroad and industrial stocks moved upward in unison. New York Central, on active dealings, advanced 2 points, this issue being the most prominent issue among the carriers. Among the recognized leaders Baldwin was the outstanding issue yesterday. This stock sold up to 129¾ and closed with a net gain of 1¾ points. From the standpoint of gains, Davison Chemical, which in recent weeks has been in the limelight, again came to the front yesterday. This stock sold up to 76¼, at which level it was only 1¼ points from last week's peak level, from which it broke about 20 points in about as many minutes. It gained 5¼ points net yesterday, the advance being accompanied by increased activity. According to students of the market, the professional bear element has virtually ceased to oppose the market, and whatever reactions do take place are due almost entirely to profit taking.

Christmas and the Market.

Although one more holiday remains on the calendar before Christmas, Wall Street attention may be said to concentrate on the Yuletide season, when, according to optimistic observers of business and security values, a tidy Christmas present in the form of expanding business will be noticeable in many lines of industry. Reports from the iron and steel, oil, railroad and automotive industries, among others, tend to show an excellent promise of increasing activity, and in brokerage circles there was no attempt to minimize the importance or value of these barometers. One argument that was used effectively by the "constructive" interests was that bank clearings outside of New York City had shown, as of Nov. 17, an increase of $240,000,000 over the preceding week, as contrasted with a ten-year average figure showing a decrease of nearly 5½ per cent. The gloomier element in the financial district sought to contravert this argument, however, with statements that commodity prices were still high and that "labor had not yet been liquidated." As proofs which many industrial leaders believe will not be completed so long as tax rates remain high.

Oil Output East of the Rockies.

While leaders in the petroleum industry are still watching developments in the California oil fields where production has fallen more than 100,000 barrels daily during the past few months, more attention is being given to the decline in production east of the Rocky Mountains. It is pointed out that even though California output continues on a large scale, only an certain amount of the oil can be shipped eastward, this amount being limited to the facilities to handle the oil by tank steamer, interests in the trade, however, hope for a further reduction in that State, but the strength in the oil stocks yesterday, while due almost entirely to the change in fundamental conditions affecting the industry, was stimulated by reports received from the Southwest that the Powell field shows a reduction of about 100,000 barrels in output. When the Powell field came into prominence a short time ago it caused more concern in trade circles than did California, because Powell crude could be shipped eastward more easily than could California. With Powell on the decline, however, producers expect a speedy correction of the recent demoralized conditions in the industry, and some trade experts go so far as to predict that crude oil prices may move upward before the close of the current year. Already there have been several advances and purchasing companies are showing more willingness to buy oil now held in storage.

A Mystery Pool.

The directors and large stockholders of one moderate-sized oil company have been gratified by an advance of about ten points in their stock, and up to yesterday they all harbored the delusion that the stock was naturally going up on its own merits and without any friendly aid whatever. Every day they met and solemnly assured each other they were doing nothing in the market. Their unknown benefactor dropped in on them yesterday from Chicago, from where he has been operating the myatery pool. He now wants to know if they want to take the accumulated stock off his hands at current market prices or for him to sell it on the "way down." One of the directors remarked that he knew there must be a catch in it somewhere.

Comment came from numerous quarters yesterday on the volume of buying of railroad shares and the effect of this buying on the market. From New York Central, which reached a new high for the year at 104⅜, down to the Chicago & Alton preferred, which advanced 1½ for the day, it was pointed out that the railroad shares showed a strength and the purchasing was in such volume as to indicate confidence in the railways despite the impending session of Congress. Students of the stock market recalled the time when the railroad shares were one of the props of the market, and expressed the idea that the recent activity might indicate they were returning to this position.

Watching Directors' Meetings.

The financial community has been so taken by surprise at increased dividends by several corporations that it now is watching with more than usual interest each meeting at which a corporation's dividend is considered. The extra dividend idea, started by the United States Steel Corporation, is taking hold of the imaginations of some of even the more conservative directors in other companies. Like the idea of stock dividends last year and at the first of this year, it required but a few of the larger ones to take the step for many of the smaller ones to follow suit.

Estimating the Sugar Trend.

Those observers who have been predicting lower prices for sugar in the remaining weeks of the present year were obliged yesterday to start their calculations all over again. The reason was the third successive rise in the price within the last week by which refined sugar has mounted from 6.75 cents a pound to 9.25, or within three quarters of a cent of the year's high, reached on April 25. While the rise in refined was accounted for by the rise in Cuban raw in the same period, the trade found it difficult to explain the fundamentals of the twin movement. The head of one refinery expressed the opinion that the first of next year would see a decline with the bringing in of the new Cuban crop, but he refused to forecast whether there would or would not be a further increase in prices in the meantime. As the situation now stands, sugar and manufacturers are well stocked up to Jan. 1.

Even Flow of Money.

Over a period of a month there has been nothing more than minor fluctuations in rates of both time money and call money, an evenness of flow which bankers suggested yesterday was having a healthful effect on business all the way through. Industrial men were said to be basing their operations for periods quite far in advance on the basis of present money quotations, the belief apparently prevailing that the market had reached an equilibrium after the slow but steady advances noted in the early Autumn months, which in turn were followed with a sustained although moderate recession of quotations.

TEXAS & PACIFIC PLAN IS ANNOUNCED

ACCEPTED BY BONDHOLDERS

Holders of Common Stock to Vote on Approval Dec. 21—New Securities to Be Issued.

Texas & Pacific reorganization plans drawn to avert an assessment on the common stock and to prevent a foreclosure sale that would cost the company its Federal charter were presented by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. yesterday. In the plans provisions have been made for future financial needs of the company through a general and refunding mortgage not to exceed $5,000,000.

The plan, it was announced yesterday, has already been accepted by the committee of bondholders of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company, which includes William Church Osborn, Dunlevy Milbank, Alvin W. Krech and Albert A. Jackson. Assent to the plan has also been given by the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which holds $23,703,000 of the second mortgage income bonds, and is owner of judgments against the Texas & Pacific. The Missouri Pacific will receive new preferred stock in exchange for the bonds.

The most important features of the plan are:

Common stock of the Texas & Pacific is to remain undisturbed and no assessment is to be imposed upon it.

Second mortgage income bonds, of which $24,676,000 are outstanding, are to be exchanged for 5 per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock, par for par.

A new general and refunding mortgage bond is to be issued to provide for refunding the underlying bonds and for future extensions, betterments and improvements.

Outstanding judgments, aggregating $4,440,060, to be refunded into unsecured coupon serial notes bearing 6 per cent. interest and maturing in annual installments over a period of ten years beginning Jan. 1, 1930.

Cash totaling $5,000,000 plus $1,400,000 due the Government as the result of improvement during Federal control is to be provided by the issuance of $4,400,000 in notes maturing March 1, 1930, and secured by pledge of general and refunding mortgage bonds.

Compensation of the readjustment managers will be $200,000 unless the plan is abandoned. All other expenses of readjustment will be paid by the Texas & Pacific.

The receivers estimate that the net income available for interest will not be less than $4,500,000 for 1923, and will be $5,600,000 for 1924, $6,300,400 for 1925, and $6,700,000 for 1926.

"Assuming the acceptance of the plan by all security holders," the statement issued yesterday said, "the annual fixed charges after consummation of the plan will be $2,268,510, and the annual dividend requirements of the new preferred stock will be $1,233,800, a total of $3,502,310."

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Texas & Pacific to authorize the necessary action to carry out the plan will be held at the office of the company, 120 Broadway, New York, on Dec. 21.

The Texas & Pacific Railway Company has been in receivership since 1916, when receivers were appointed at the suit of holders of judgments on outstanding notes. The road is the last of the old Gould properties to undergo a reorganization. Among the others of the Gould properties that have been reorganized are the Western Maryland, the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis Southwestern and the Wabash.

The readjustment of the Texas & Pacific's finances has been in contemplation since 1917, but the intervention of Federal control and the legal and practical difficulties which presented themselves have prevented the earlier publication of a plan.

The readjustment managers pointed out that it was necessary to await the final determination by the courts of the rights of the income bondholders, since a decision in favor of the bondholders might have resulted in judgments against the company for large amounts of back interest. After prolonged litigation the Circuit Court of Appeals finally determined that the holders of the second mortgage income bonds had no right to demand the payment of interest on their bonds, even if earned, if the Board of Directors determined that the earnings should be applied to additions and betterments of the property.

A letter from the receivers to the reorganization managers, attached to the plan, states that $21,209,084 has been expended for additions and betterments to the property during the receivership, of which $15,290,120 was expended out of earnings, that substantially all debts of the company prior to receivership, other than the judgments which are to be funded under the plan, have been paid.

It is expected that there will be available to be turned over to the company upon the consummation of the plan at least $1,500,000 in cash, which will be sufficient, together with the $3,000,000 to be obtained from the director general, for the expenses of readjustment, for working capital and all capital expenditures during 1924.

Application is being made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue the new securities contemplated by the plan. Holders of income bonds desiring to participate in the readjustment are instructed to deposit their bonds with the readjustment managers.

New General Motors Organization.

STACY & BRAUN DECIDE TO DISSOLVE ON DEC. 1

Four of Five Partners Will Continue in Bond Business—Firm Started 15 Years Ago.

Stacy & Braun, dealers in municipal bonds and underwriters of several bond issues, will dissolve on Dec. 1, it was announced yesterday. It was stated that liquidation necessary to the step was completed last week. Of the five partners in the firm, four will continue actively in the bond business, and the fifth will retire.

The dissolution was described as a "congenial dissolution" by G. Gremmel, office manager. He said that geographical considerations had figured in the dissolution, some of the partners desiring to maintain offices only in Western cities, leaving other offices of the firm to those residing in the East. The firm was organized about fifteen years ago.

Charles L. Stacy, partner of the present firm of Stacy & Braun, will become a member of the new firm of Stevenson, Perry & Stacy of Chicago, this firm succeeding the present firm of Stevenson Brothers & Perry. Robert Hixson will retire. Walter Braun and Erwin Barsworth will form the firm of Braun, Barsworth & Co., with offices in Toledo, Detroit and Cincinnati. Warren Hoysradt will become Vice President and Manager of the New York office of the Detroit Company, which is the investment banking organization of the Detroit Trust Company.

DOLLARS FOR GERMANY.

A Christmas service for persons living in Germany was announced yesterday by the firm of C. H. Richard & Co., 29 Broadway, which stated that it would transmit dollars without cost except for insurance and postage up to $20-units to persons living in approximately 300 German cities. The firm decided upon the free dollar service "in view of the precarious situation in Germany and for the purpose of assisting Americans in their endeavor to relieve the suffering among their relatives and friends in Germany."

Under the plan which will go into effect immediately, the company will transmit dollar remittances without charge for a service which a number of banks had abandoned because of fear of robbery or confiscation. Payment will be made in the German cities through an arrangement entered into with the Commers and Privatbank, with headquarters offices in Berlin. On the basis of current foreign exchange levels, each $20-unit so transmitted would be equivalent to a gift of 60,000,000,000—or 60 trillion—marks to the German recipients.

BROWN SHOE PROFITS GAIN.

This Year's Sales Were $29,437,759 —A $2,000,000 Increase.

The Brown Shoe Company, for the year ended Oct. 31, 1923, reports net sales of $29,437,759, against $27,191,697 in the previous fiscal year. After allowing for all operating expenses, charges, Federal taxes and the crediting of other income, the company reported net profits available for the capital stock of $1,334,059, against $1,289,799 the year before.

The net profits for the fiscal year just ended, after allowing for the preferred dividends, left a balance equal to $11.30 a share on the $3,400,000 common stock. This compares with net profits of $10.95 a share on the common stock in the previous year.

To Reorganize Utah Consolidated.

Arrangements are being made for the reorganization of the Utah Consolidated Mining Company, according to reports in the financial district yesterday. It is said that a new company will be formed with 600,000 shares of stock with a par value of $3 a share each. The present capital is 296,980 shares of $5 par value. The new stock is to be sold to present stockholders at $3 a share on the basis of two shares of the new for each share now held. Rights to subscribe for the new stock expire on Jan. 10, 1924.

Extra Dividend is Expected.

Directors of the National Fuel and Gas Company are scheduled to meet for dividend action within the next ten days. According to reports in the financial district the company is expected to declare an extra cash dividend payable to stockholders of record Dec. 15, 1923. Last December the company distributed a 100 per cent. stock dividend.

Meeting of Superior Steel Company.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Superior Steel Company has been called for Dec. 11 to approve a plan for the sale of the company's unissued common stock at $30 a share. Proceeds will be used to redeem the outstanding preferred stock on Feb. 15, 1924.

Will Spend $110,000,000 in Four Months to Increase Output, He Says.

WOOL MILL IN PROGRAM

Motor Maker Regards China as the Best Future Market—Sees Demands Increasing.

The Ford Motor Company has arranged to spend $110,000,000 for new construction within the next four months to bring the company's capacity up to 10,000 cars daily by Feb. 1, according to dispatches received in Wall Street from Detroit, quoting Mr. Ford. Mr. Ford also said that the company would in the near future erect its own wool mill in his home State, as it was found that Michigan was nearly as good a wool-producing State as any.

"We do not expect to supply all the wool we use for upholstering, &c.," he said, "but will make a considerable part of our needs if the cost of producing turns out to be what we think."

Part of the new construction, Mr. Ford said, according to The Wall Street Journal, "will be in our Detroit plants and the remainder in other cities. We are expanding all over the United States, because we believe that no such thing as a saturation point exists. Until the population stops growing and the people stop building roads and stop desiring to ride instead of walk, there will be a steady demand for automobiles. Aircraft development will follow soon, but it will never replace the automobile. No really useful thing is ever displaced."

Commenting on conditions generally, Mr. Ford said the best future market is China. The Chinese, he explained, will build their own roads if they can get the cars, and "automobiles will develop China quicker than railroads or missionaries." Mr. Ford expects Germany will be in trouble for a long time. In connection with the production of the various mills, Mr. Ford said:

"Our plant in Manchester is making 85 per cent. of all the parts that go into Ford cars and trucks turned out in England and soon we will be making 90 per cent. of the parts over there. We have not gone in for making the small English taxicabs, even though they consume less gasoline, because we have found the Englishmen want pep and power. We are selling between 40,000 and 50,000 Fords a year in England and it looks like we will sell many more over there."

Asked about rumors that he was behind the Lelands in asking for information from Lincoln stockholders, with a view toward repaying those who were bona fide investors in the defunct Lincoln Motor Company, Mr. Ford said he had no connection with the movement and did not intend to have any. "When we paid off those who supplied the company with material we finished our connection with the former company," he said.

Why do Investment Trusts Issue Several Kinds of Securities?

Answer:—

TO meet the needs and demands of different classes of investors. Some conservative buyers of securities acquire only bonds; others desire the regular income and protection afforded by preferred shares. A third group is attracted by opportunities for large returns and appreciation in values made by common shares of well-managed Trusts.

Bonds and Preferred (Preference) Shares of British and Scottish Trusts have ranked high among fixed-income investments for more than 50 years. The excellent dividend record of Common (Deferred) Shares over a long period is set forth in our Booklet, "The Investment Trust."

BROOKLYN EDISON BUYS FLATBUSH GAS

To Ask Service Commission to Authorize Transfer of Electric Franchises.

SALE PRICE IS $4,500,000

Consumers in Flatbush Section Will Get Cheaper Electric Lighting, Prendergast Says.

Negotiations are under way whereby the Brooklyn Edison Company will take over the business, electric distribution system and franchises of the Flatbush Gas Company and application will soon be made to the Public Service Commission for authority for the transfer. The Flatbush Gas Company is owned by the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, and the sale price is $4,500,000. This was announced yesterday by William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

The Flatbush company serves consumers in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, and, according to Mr. Prendergast, the transfer of the electric service to the Brooklyn Edison Company will result in a saving of approximately $350,000 a year to electric consumers in that section.

"It has been the policy of the commission to secure uniformity of rates in the same section of the city, and another movement in this direction is now under way," said Mr. Prendergast in announcing the contemplated sale.

"Within a short time a formal application will be made to the commission to authorize the Brooklyn Edison Company to acquire the electric distribution system of the Flatbush Gas Company and also providing for the transfer of the electric franchises held by it. The latter company is owned by the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. The price it has been agreed to pay is $4,500,000.

"If approved, this sale would mean that all the electric lighting business in Brooklyn would be done by the Brooklyn Edison Company, which will avoid duplication of plant, equipment, facilities and organization which is now necessary with two companies doing the same class of business.

"The change, if made, will also have the great advantage of reducing the base price for electricity now paid by 35,000 users in Flatbush from 9 cents per K. W. H. to 8 cents. The Brooklyn Edison Company will file a new schedule to this effect.

"At the present time the Flatbush Gas Company is purchasing 70 per cent. of the electric energy it distributes from the Brooklyn Edison Company, and is therefore to a great extent a middleman. Unless it is to continue to be a middleman it will have to add materially to its plant to take care of new business, and it is estimated that the necessary expenditures would amount to $5,000,000. It is the commission's belief that middlemen's profits should be eliminated in utility rates and this is among the considerations that may justify the proposed sale.

"The application will be made the subject of a hearing. Among the franchises it is proposed to transfer there is one which contains a provision that its transfer may only be effected with the approval of the City of New York."

According to Matthew S. Sloan, President of the Brooklyn Edison Company, the application for approval of the sale will be filed with the Public Service Commission next week.

FORD ROAD REBUFFS I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—For the third time the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings on railroad consolidation, held open so that facts in regard to Henry Ford's Detroit, Toledo & Ironton road might be put into the record, was adjourned today without a representative of the corporation having been heard.

Several days ago a subpoena was issued for E. G. Leibold, formerly Mr. Ford's private secretary, now Vice President of the road, but, so far, attempts to serve the summons have failed. Further efforts will be made to bring the Ford official into the proceedings.

The commission has asked railroads concerned to submit reports on traffic volume and traffic interchanges, but the Ironton Company has failed to take any part. Some time ago a letter from its officials, declaring merely that the Ford road desired to be let alone and work out its own policies in its own way, was received and put into the docket of the commission's investigation. Later the commission made more formal demand for facts which it considered necessary to make up the record, but without avail.

In adjourning today notice was given that another session would be held tomorrow morning, at which the Ironton would be heard if the compulsory subpoena had been served in the meantime.

GRAIN EXPORTS ARE LARGER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 4,087,000 bushels, compared with 2,417,000 bushels the week before. Figures made public today by the Commerce Department gave the following comparisons between exports last week and those of the week before:

Barley, 419,000 bushels, against 118,000; corn, 216,000, against 150,000; oats, 83,000, against 76,000; rye, 653,000 against 141,000; wheat, 2,717,000, against 1,935,000; flour, 464,100 barrels, against 457,700 barrels. Canadian grain exported from the United States ports amounted to 1,538,000 bushels, against 1,583,000.

JERSEY TAX LEVIES GROW.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 26.—Taxes totaling $3,613,103.24 have been assessed for the year 1923 against miscellaneous corporations operating under New Jersey charters, an increase of $319,894.14 over 1922.

These taxes are collected from a total of 17,042 corporations, an increase of 1,663 over 1922. Under New Jersey laws those corporations not employing one-half of their issued capital stock in manufacturing, mining, agriculture or horticulture within the State must pay the corporation tax.

The total of all taxes levied for the current year reached $37,423,096.78, the largest amount in the State's history.

Of this total $12,705,205.69 is used for the administration of the State Government, while $14,667,993.14 is distributed among the local taxing districts.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Rates Move Forward Briskly—Sterling Features—Commercial Bills Easily Absorbed.

European exchanges were buoyantly higher yesterday. The advance in sterling was most vigorous, London checks at $4.40, the day's high, showing a gain of 3½ cents over Saturday's final, and a recovery of 14 cents from the year's low established last Monday. French francs were also strong, at one time showing an advance of 10 points from Saturday, at 5.54 cents, with Italian exchange approximately 5 points higher, at 4.38½ cents. Spanish, Scandinavian, Holland, Swiss and Belgian remittances all moved up in sympathy with the bulge in sterling and francs.

All rates started strong on higher cables, the improved foreign perspective stimulating a covering movement by the "shorts" which soon put rates up substantially over Saturday. Supporting purchases were also made by large international bankers, and, though there were liberal offerings of cotton, grain and oil bills the ease with which these were absorbed indicated clearly that much in the way of an inherently strong position had been created through the elimination of the speculative selling of last week. Profit taking cut into the gains moderately, but the tone was firm at the close.

German marks were nominally quoted at 15 cents per trillion or at the rate of 6,666 billion for one dollar, which coincided with Saturday's final, and 6,000 a year ago.

MEXICAN OFFICES HERE CENTRALIZED

DICTATED BY ECONOMY

Alberto Mascarenas Is Made Head of Both Services, and Predecessors Go Home.

In conformity with the policy of economy announced by Alberto Pani, Mexico's new Secretary of the Treasury, the Mexican Consulate General and Mexican Government Financial Agency of New York City have been brought under a single head. Alberto Mascarenas, until recently Consul General for Mexico in London and chief of the Mexican Legation there, has taken charge of both offices with the dual duties of financial agent and Consul General. As financial agent he succeeds Carlos R. Felix, who has been called to Mexico for other duties, and as Consul General he displaces Faustino Roel, who also will return to Mexico.

The offices of the Financial Agency have been maintained in the Equitable Building at 120 Broadway and those of the Consulate General at 7 Dey Street. After Dec. 1 both will be at the latter address. Confirming the consolidation, Mr. Mascarenas said yesterday:

"While the offices of the Financial Agency and Consulate in this city will be consolidated, the business of the agency will be carried on as heretofore and we shall do our utmost to serve every one in the financial district and in this city having business with Mexico through the agency the same as heretofore. While under one roof, the affairs of the agency and the Consulate will be kept entirely distinct. The consolidation of affairs is simply a matter of economy.

"I am very happy to assume the duties of this new dual office at a time when the attitude of the bankers of this great city toward my country is so friendly. I shall do everything in my power to co-operate with them in their willingness and efforts to help Mexico."

Mr. Mascarenas said he expected to be able to give out a more detailed statement in the next two or three days by which time he will have received complete instructions.

The new Consul General was educated at the University of Santa Clara, California, and served as Consul General at San Francisco until 1921, when he was made Consul at Havana. From Havana he was sent to London as Consul General.

Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, and several general chairmen of brotherhoods will confer with New York Central Railroad officials in New York Dec. 4 on the recent request for a wage increase of approximately 12½ per cent., Mr. Stone announced today.

Mr. Fred Hirschhorn, President of the General Cigar Co., Inc., has summarized his letter to us as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

"The General Cigar Co., Inc. was incorporated on April 28, 1906 under the laws of New York as the United Cigar Manufacturers Co. The name was changed to the present title as of March 1, 1917. PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds of this issue will be used to reduce the Company's floating debt and thus provide additional working capital.

SECURITY

These Notes will be a direct obligation of the General Cigar Co., Inc., which will covenant in substance among other things that—

This shall not, however, prevent the purchase of property subject to a mortgage or the creation of a purchase money mortgage to the extent of 75% of the fair value of the property purchased, nor the pledge as security for loans made in the regular and current course of business of accounts receivable and other quick assets (as defined in the Indenture) or stocks, bonds or other securities other than stocks or securities of subsidiary companies.

(2) In the event that and so long as net current assets (as defined in the Indenture and excluding the Notes as current liabilities) are less than 150% of the amount of Notes then outstanding, no dividends will be declared or paid upon the common stock of the Company, and further, that the Company will at all times while any of the Notes are outstanding maintain such net current assets in an amount at least equal to the amount of Notes at the time outstanding.

PROFITS

The profits of the General Cigar Co., Inc., as certified by Messrs. 6 months ending June 30, 1923	1,355,489.75

During these periods the bank loans of the Company have never substantially exceeded the net proceeds of this issue of Notes.

The average annual profits for the five years and six months shown above, computed as above set forth, were $3,145,023.26 or equivalent to more than 7.3 times the maximum annual interest charges of $462,000.00 on this issue of Notes, and for the year 1922 were equivalent to more than 6.9 times such interest charges. For the six months ending June 30, 1923, the profits, computed as above were at the rate of more than 5.8 times such interest charges. I believe that the profits of the Company for the year 1923 will be approximately as large as those for 1922.

WESTINGHOUSE DEAL IN JAPAN CONFIRMED

GERMANS ANGLED FOR IT

American Company to Furnish Technical Skill and Experience for Oriental Enterprise.

E. D. Kilburn, Vice President and General Manager of the Westinghouse Electric International Company, said yesterday he had received cable messages confirming the report published in THE NEW YORK TIMES last week that Westinghouse and Japanese electrical interests had effected a co-operative business arrangement. The messages were from Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Westinghouse board, and L. A. Osborne, President of the Westinghouse International Company, who are now in the Orient.

"The new company is known as the Mitsubishi Denki Kabushiki Kaisha, or in English, the Mitsubishi Electric Manufacturing Company," said Mr. Kilburn. "I assume that the reported capitalization, 15,000,000 yen or $7,500,000, is correct, although word on this has not yet been received.

"The Westinghouse Company has for many years been engaged in promoting the use of electricity in Japan and its efforts have met with so favorable a reception that Japanese electrical development, including railroad electrification, the use of water power, the installation of large steam generating plants and the formation of superpower systems compares favorably with that in the United States.

"As a consequence of this rapid development, electrical apparatus has become one of Japan's largest imports, and since Japan's principal exports—silk, copper and objects of art—cannot be expanded by a corresponding degree, the Japanese began to feel that there was danger of a continuing unfavorable balance of trade. Hence it seemed wise to Japanese interests to begin the manufacture of electrical machinery and supplies in their own country.

"In pursuance of this policy the Mitsubishi Interests, which are engaged in banking, ship building and steel making, approached the Westinghouse Company with a proposal for a co-operative agreement whereby the Westinghouse Company was to supply technical skill and experience to a Japanese manufacturing company. The Mitsubishi Electric Manufacturing Company is the outcome of these negotiations. The Japanese profit by the arrangement through the employment it will give to Japanese workmen and the improvement in their foreign trade situation, while the Westinghouse Company profits by receiving a continuous revenue for services and royalties in lieu of exports that it was certain to lose within a comparatively few years."

If the Westinghouse Company had not accepted this proposal, Mr. Kilburn explained, "it is possible that a German firm would have been considered by the Mitsubishi organization."

A third party to the agreement is Takata & Co., Japanese importers with offices at 30 Church Street. This concern, which is the Japanese agent of the Westinghouse Company, will act as distributer for the Mitsubishi Electric Manufacturing Company and will also continue to import such Westinghouse products as needed.

President Osborne of the Westinghouse Company has been decorated by the Japanese Emperor with the Third Order of the Rising Sun, having received the Fourth Order on a previous visit to Japan. Mr. Tripp has received the Second Order of the Sacred Treasure, the highest Japanese civilian decoration. Both Mr. Osborne and Mr. Tripp are now on their way to Shanghai. They will return to the United States by way of India and Europe.

SUGAR UP 10 POINTS MORE.

Leading refiners advanced the price of refined sugar yesterday to 9.25 cents a pound, ten points above the price prevailing Saturday. This is the third advance within a week. The price on Monday, Nov. 19, was 8.75 cents.

Refined sugar is now within three-quarters of a cent of the year's highest of 10.50, reached last April, and compares with the year's low of 6 cents, reached on Jan. 27. The highest price quoted by the local refiners since 1914 was in July, 1920, when the price reached 22.50 cents a pound. The lowest price was 3.25 cents on April 8, 1914.

Sale at par of $3,000,000 Packard Building first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, due Feb. 15, 1933, is announced by Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia.

Sees Good Outlook in Steel.

J. A. Topping, head of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, commenting upon conditions in the iron and steel industry yesterday, said: "I feel very much encouraged over the outlook. Decided improvement is evident, which is not confined to activity in pig iron. There is growing strength in other lines. I can see no reason why there should not be normal business next year."

RAILWAY EARNINGS GROW.

Railroad reports received yesterday continued to show a substantial increase both in the net earnings and gross income for October. Pennsylvania's net operating income for the month was $4,483,394, an increase of $940,864 compared with October last year.

While the gross revenues for the month were $63,160,989 on the Pennsylvania system, an increase of $210,064, the railroad showed a decrease of $967,340 in passenger revenue, and $621,856 in express revenue, while the freight revenue increased $1,632,857, compared with October, 1922. The expected decrease in the maintenance of equipment amounted to $338,061, while the decrease in transportation costs totaled $1,547,320. This makes the total operating income for the first ten months of this year $66,269,870, an increase of $4,901,513 over the same period of last year.

The report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company shows a net operating income of $2,626,004, an increase of $401,697 over the same month of last year. This increase was made despite the fact that the gross revenues of $15,385,210 was $322,726 less than for the same month of last year.

RESCUED COLOMBIA IN FINANCIAL CRISIS

STABILITY IN FOUR MONTHS

A drama in finance, amazing for the swift shifting of situations momentarily freighted with possibilities of disaster, was unfolded yesterday for the first time by the man who played the principal rôle in preventing the collapse of the tottering financial structures of Colombia. This man was Professor Edwin Walter Kemmerer of Princeton University, recently Chairman of the American Financial Commission to Colombia.

With four other members of the commission he reorganized, in the last few months, the entire banking system of that country to sound financial stability on a gold standard.

Professor Kemmerer told his story at a luncheon given to the commission by the Pan-American Society of the United States, in the Bankers' Club. The other members of the commission were Howard M. Jefferson, manager of personnel development in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Dr. Fred R. Fairchild, Professor of Political Economy at Yale University; Thomas R. Lill, member of the New York accounting firm of Searle, Nicholson, Oakey & Lill, and Dr. Frederick L. Loquiens, Professor of Spanish at Yale University, who acted as secretary. Early in March the group of five sailed for Bogota on a contract with the Colombian Government for seven months' service.

According to Professor Kemmerer, through the co-operation of authorities and financiers in the fourteen departments of the country, the commission got thorough information as to conditions there. As a result, early in June, less than three months after arrival, the commission had ready for Congress several bills, one of the chief of which was for the establishment of the Bank of the Republic—the new central bank of issue and rediscount. The bill also covered the subject of currency reform.

President Pinina called a special session of Congress. On July 11 the Bank of the Republic law was passed. It was thought that if everything went smoothly the bank would open for business in January, 1924. On July 24 a run started on one of the largest banks in Bogota, the Bank of Lopez, and at once a panic was on.

Professor Kemmerer said that the run that started the run were in large part false, but none the less efforts to stop the run were of no avail. Despite help from the Government the bank's cash soon was reduced to only about $100,000. This was transferred to the Government to pay savings depositors in full and the bank closed its doors.

The failure gave rise to all sorts of rumors regarding other banks. The public became frightened, and a run started on the oldest commercial bank in Bogota. There was rioting in the street and troops were called out to repel the mobs.

With the Bank of the Republic law but a few weeks old, the organization committee had barely been appointed when the panic began. The situation was desperate, but it was met, and instead of the six months they expected, Professor Kemmerer said, the new bank was organized in only four days, but it was heroic work.

They pressed into service airplanes and special trains, which brought $3,000,000 in unissued gold certificates to Bogota from a Government mint. The bank received more than $250,000 in gold from subscribing member banks in Bogota and $3,000,000 in gold for the Government's subscription. This payment was made through a sale under orders cabled from Bogota to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York of uniissued Bank of United States certificates of indebtedness which it was holding for the Colombian Government.

Arrangements were made for almost $2,000,000 of rediscounts for the Colombian banks. When the bank opened on the fourth day, Professor Kemmerer said, it had notes outstanding of upward of $2,000,000 and a gold reserve of something like 170 per cent. It offered at once to redeem its notes on demand in drafts on New York at a rate approximating the gold export point for Colombia. It also redeemed other paper money of the Government on the same terms. The panic stopped immediately, confidence was restored and business again returned to normal.

In President Kemmerer's opinion, the new legislation, with Colombia's great natural resources, gives to that country a future that is exceptionally bright.

BUYING BY SPINNERS HOLDS COTTON FIRM

Active Spot Demand and Speculative Realizing Offset by Trade Inquiries.

The cotton market showed continued firmness yesterday, with nearly all the active months making new high records for the season. A noticeable falling off in the volume of business as compared with the activity of last week was regarded as indicating a contraction of speculative interest, but a continued active spot demand was reported in the South and realizing sales across the local ring were again readily absorbed with the aid of further trade buying. These features, combined with the prompt stopping of the first December notices, were probably the chief factors on the advance which carried the price of January deliveries up to 35.15 or 39 points net higher. The advance in December was checked just under the recent high record, but that delivery sold at 35.72, increasing its premium to 60 points over January compared with 52 points at the close of Saturday. Last prices were 12 to 16 points off from the best under realising but the tone was steady at net advance of 14 to 35 points on the more active positions.

There were notices issued against December contracts representing about 7,700 bales of the local certificated stock. It had been expected that the notices would be larger, and the circulation of those issued appeared to bring out very little liquidation of December contracts. As a result it was soon rumored that the notices were being stopped and the absence of pressure against December during the afternoon tended to confirm reports that the cotton was being taken up by a leading trade interest. The gossip was that these interests were prepared to take up further deliveries, and the stopping of the notices here was accompanied by reports that the trade was also taking up notices in New Orleans. Naturally enough, the prompt stopping of the December notices was regarded as indicating the firmness of the spot situation, which in a more general way was also reflected by bullish advices from the South. According to these reports both Bremen and Liverpool were buying in the Southwest and one of the telegrams received here said that a big St. Louis firm had swept the Arkansas markets clean of spot offerings on Friday and Saturday of last week. Notwithstanding these reports over 6,000 bales of consigned cotton arrived here yesterday, presumably for delivery on contract. The bulk of this cotton is said to be coming from Norfolk and to be averaging very close to middling in grade.

Liverpool rallied from an opening decline as a result of trade buying to fix prices and a moderate spot demand, while private cables also reported that there was a good demand for cotton goods in Manchester. The local market opened 5 to 15 points higher in response to these advances, and after some little irregularity, turned upward on the ready absorption of the little December liquidation in evidence and continued trade buying or rebuying by recent sellers. The rally in foreign exchanges and the better tone of the early stock market, were features which probably encouraged the buying, and in some quarters there was a good deal of bullish comment on reports of a decidedly more active demand for cotton goods in the local market late last week. The buying may have lacked the volume and aggressiveness of last week, but offerings were correspondingly light, and active months showed net advances of 33 to 47 points late in the afternoon, with May deliveries selling at 35.50.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to 25 points higher with very fair volume of business, although the sales showed some falling off as compared with those of last Friday.

FINAL DECREE ENDS TILE COMBINATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—A final decree ordering the dissolution of the Tile Manufacturers Credit Association, sought in injunction proceedings brought by Attorney General Daugherty in January, 1922, was entered today in the United States District Court at Columbus, Ohio.

Announcement of the decree by the Department of Justice said members of the association, which the Attorney General's petiton charged was organized primarily for the purpose of establishing and maintaining uniform prices, were restrained by its terms from hereafter organizing any similar association.

The thirteen members of the Association, described as being the largest floor and wall tile manufacturers in the country, were specifically restrained in the decree, the Department said, from "in any way making or exchanging reports as to prices, sales and orders." They are expressly permitted, however, to obtain information as to production, stocks, prices and other data to any Government agency requiring it, provided such information is not distributed among themselves.

$500,000 Lease on Broadway.

John H. Schaler, architect and investor, who recently leased the 25-foot four-story building at 1,741 Broadway, on the west side, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, has now leased the entire building for a term of twenty-one years at a rental aggregating approximately $500,000, or about $24,000 a year, to the Times Square Auto Supply Company.

Mr. Schaler leased the property from Lawrence S. and Chauncey M. Mayers, jewelers, who in May, 1921, leased the parcel for a term of twenty-one years from Mrs. Caroline M. Taylor, the owner, in whose family the property has been held for several generations.

Mrs. Taylor entered into an agreement with Mr. Schaler to extend the lease for a further term of forty-two years, consisting of two renewals of twenty-one years each on a reappraisal basis.

JULY WHEAT GAINS, DECEMBER LOSES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Houses with Eastern and foreign connection sold December and bought July wheat, widening the difference somewhat, while a local elevator house was a good seller toward the last, making a heavy close with December ¼ cent lower and the deferred deliveries ¼ cent lower to ½ cent higher. A local professional who was short bought December and May early, making a moderate buing, but when the buying ceased the market reacted.

Considering the news it held up very well. An increase of 1,021,000 bushels in the visible supply made the total 75,000,000 bushels, compared with 73,379,000 bushels the previous week and 35,191,000 bushels last year. Stocks of bonded wheat are 14,867,000 bushels, against 20,971,000 last year, making a total stock of wheat in all positions of 89,867,000 bushels, against 56,072,000 bushels in 1922.

The activity in corn is detracting somewhat from wheat. Readjustment between the cash and futures and between hog and corn prices is nearing its end, and while there was further liquidation by holders of December, which depressed it one cent under May against 3 cents over recently and the finish was 1¼ cents lower, the deferred futures were ¾@⅞ cent higher.

The break in cash grain to around 4 cents under December for No. 4 mixed when it can be delivered at 5 cents discoun tabout marks the end of the readjustment. Cash grain was off 1 to 3 cents for the day, but the demand was accompanied by reports that the trade was also taking up notices in New Orleans. Naturally enough, the prompt stopping of the December notices was regarded as indicating the firmness of the spot situation, which in a more general way was also reflected by bullish advices from the South. According to these reports both Bremen and Liverpool were buying in the Southwest and one of the telegrams received here said that a big St. Louis firm had swept the Arkansas markets clean of spot offerings on Friday and Saturday of last week. Notwithstanding these reports over 6,000 bales of consigned cotton arrived here yesterday, presumably for delivery on contract. The bulk of this cotton is said to be coming from Norfolk and to be averaging very close to middling in grade.

Liverpool rallied from an opening decline as a result of trade buying to fix prices and a moderate spot demand, while private cables also reported that there was a good demand for cotton goods in Manchester. The local market opened 5 to 15 points higher in response to these advances, and after some little irregularity, turned upward on the ready absorption of the little December liquidation in evidence and continued trade buying or rebuying by recent sellers. The rally in foreign exchanges and the better tone of the early stock market, were features which probably encouraged the buying, and in some quarters there was a good deal of bullish comment on reports of a decidedly more active demand for cotton goods in the local market late last week. The buying may have lacked the volume and aggressiveness of last week, but offerings were correspondingly light, and active months showed net advances of 33 to 47 points late in the afternoon, with May deliveries selling at 35.50.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to 25 points higher with very fair volume of business, although the sales showed some falling off as compared with those of last Friday.

Don't wait till it comes to learn the economy of a HEATED GARAGE

WHY gamble against the thermometer? No automobile owner who figures the economy of a Richardson Garage Heating System would expose his car to the ravages of an "ice-box" garage this winter. Low in cost—inexpensive to operate—the cheapest insurance against winter depreciation.

Get in touch with your plumber or heating contractor now and learn about the Richardson system. Anyone who owns a Richardson and Boynton Heating or Cooking outfit of any kind knows that there can be no finer guarantee of perfect heating for the garage.

The Lawyer and the Will

A BACHELOR had made his home with a man and his wife, who were witnesses to his will. The will was attacked on the ground that the statute governing the execution of wills had not been complied with. Both witnesses said none of the required formalities had been followed. However, the testimony showed that a lawyer was present at the execution of the will and the Court of Appeals said, "it was always considered to afford a strong presumption of compliance with the requirements of the statute . . . when they had been conducted under the supervision of experienced persons familiar not only with the forms required by law but also with the importance of a strict adherence thereto."—95 New York 334.

HAVE your will prepared and executed by your lawyer. He is thoroughly versed in the technique of will making, and his services may prove an invaluable protection to those you plan to benefit.

Write, or telephone Rector 6400 (Extension 329) for our booklet, "Some Things to Consider in Having Your Lawyer Draw Your Will." This booklet suggests many estate problems to be provided for in your will, and contains memoranda pages for notes to your lawyer. Send it to him with a request that he draft a will for you, suited to present conditions.
